FROM THE BOSS

Jürgen Klopp

Good afternoon and welcome back to Anfield for our Premier League game against Bournemouth.

I guess the first place to start is to admit our last two results haven't been good enough, and particularly our performance at Watford last weekend. There is no hiding from the fact we were disappointed by the outcomes of both games in the last week and rightly so.

Because of our good run this season, and in fact into last season too, perhaps our last two games have been a bigger topic of discussion than they would be normally. I understand this and I am absolutely okay with it.

But internally I can tell you it has been business as usual. As always, we have had our analysis meetings,

MY TEAM-TALK TODAY IS: BE IN THE MOMENT, BE THERE FOR THIS TEAM, AND BE THERE FOR EACH OTHER

looked at where we were not good enough, then we've trained hard and prepared ourselves to fight once again.

We never hide from truths here, it is one of our strengths. We know we have done extremely well to get into the amazing position we find ourselves in. We were not carried here – we had to fight and battle our way here.

What this group of players have done, until now, for me is sensational. I am so proud of them and I am so appreciative of them. Truthfully, both my coaches and I could not feel more blessed than to have this incredible group of people to work with each and every day.

And the main reason why they are so good – world-class good – is because they are completely honest. Honest with themselves and honest with us, always.

It's this professional and intellectual honesty that defines them in many ways. They have no harsher critic than themselves. As the person privileged to lead them, I don't have to worry about the mindset or mentality.

The job in this moment is to look at the practical issues, the problems we have encountered in recent games, and fix them.

It really is that simple. It's our job and our life at this level.

I think I have spoken in these pages before that one of the myths of this season is that we have avoided setbacks. We have had countless setbacks but we have always found the answer. That's what these boys do. They see opportunity in every moment – it's a wonderful trait of theirs.

Today is one of those opportunities. We know there will be added focus on us because of recent weeks. Good – no problem for us or this team. It is good that today we face one of the hungriest and most determined opponents possible. This means there can only be proper focus. Nothing else will be good enough.

I welcome Eddie Howe, his players, staff, officials and supporters of Bournemouth to Anfield.

I have often written in here what I think of Eddie, so no need to be repetitive. Quite simply one of the best out there. But I can add that this season my admiration has grown even greater.

I wrote earlier about responding to problems. Wow, how they deal with their issues this season and still fight and win is incredible. It really is. And as always with Eddie and his guys, they fight while remaining true to their principles.

This is why he will always be admired so much by his fellow managers.

Bournemouth arrive here knowing there is big opportunity for them. This is fine for us, because we know what we face. A very talented opponent – highest motivation possible and with belief. Tough job.

We know a number of the players within their ranks also. Harry Wilson is still 'ours' so cannot play today – this is good news for us, I would say. We have all been delighted to see Harry's progress and growth. Super boy and a super player.

Also, Dom Solanke and Jordon Ibe are players I was fortunate to work with here. Love them both as people and players. Both having fantastic careers and will continue to do so. As long as they're not playing against us in a specific game I always wish them well.

I love that today will be as difficult as any game we have here this season because of all the circumstances. It's a challenge, it's a fight, it's a battle, it's a problem. But there is also a solution and we have that within our power.

And when I say 'we' I really mean the power of the Liverpool collective. Players and supporters. Today it is so, so, so important.

It's an early kick off, there is an external mood around us, so the challenge is there. When we – collectively – have faced challenges in recent years we have come together to meet them.

Players know they must inspire the fans, but our supporters know they can also influence what happens on the pitch. It's coolest when both do it in unison. We have been fortunate it happens most of the time.

My team-talk today for anyone with a Liverpool heart beating in their chest is forget any other game, any other occasion, any other issue. Be in the moment today. Be there for this team and be there for each other. Today is our first, last and everything football-wise. Let's enjoy every second of it.

I can tell those supporters who were in the stadium with us at Watford and Chelsea, we heard you. We heard you singing for us at the end, despite how disappointed you may have been, and we appreciated it, as we always do.

Your support is one of the key reasons why we've been able to have the season we have had so far, so let's do it again today.

===== You'll Never Walk Alone =====
Jürgen

SCOT'S CORNER

Andy Robertson is a picture of concentration as he places the ball for a corner-kick at the Kop end during the 3-2 win over West Ham United 12 days ago. The Reds had to show all their resilience to come from 2-1 down before overcoming David Moyes' spirited Hammers to claim their 21st consecutive Premier League win at Anfield. "Grit, determination, character. We always fight to the end!!!" Robbo tweeted afterwards. The Reds will now need to show those same qualities again today.

WE'RE A TEAM BUILT ON HONESTY AND WE KNOW BETTER THAN ANYONE ELSE WHEN WE HAVE TO DO BETTER

A lot of people have had their say about our form in recent weeks and we have to accept that, especially seeing as we've had a lot of plaudits this season, both as individuals and as a team.

We also have to shut it out, though, otherwise we would just end up being caught up in the speculation at a time when we need to keep our focus and our sense of perspective.

That's no different to when we've received praise either, by the way. Throughout the season we've collectively blocked any acclaim out and focused on our jobs at hand.

And the reality is no one needs to tell us that we haven't played well enough lately. We're a team that's built on honesty and self-awareness and that means we know better than anyone else when we have to do better.

That's where we're at right now and the sooner that we can get back to the standards that we've set ourselves the better. But part of that process is remembering our qualities and not being distracted by the noise outside.

The reason why we are in such a strong position in the Premier League is because it is what our performances since the start of the season have deserved. Again, we can't ignore that fact. Just as we can't get too carried away when we're winning, nor can we get too despondent when results aren't going our way.

The simple fact is we are the same team. We have the same players, the same management, the same staff and the same supporters. We have shown consistently that we can deal with challenges and this is just another one that we have to face.

The good thing is none of us got carried away when there was talk of being invincible and winning this trophy or that trophy. Again, that talk came from outside rather than from ourselves. We just concentrated on going from one game to the next, treating the opposition with respect and doing our very best. This approach has served us incredibly well so why would we change?

Luckily, if there's one thing this group has shown it's how to respond to adversity. We have seen that on so many occasions so it's only a matter of time – and hard work – before we see it again. The most crucial thing of all is that we continue to show faith in each other.

I know the supporters won't have enjoyed the last few weeks as much as the ones that came before it and we want to put things right for them as well. But for that to happen we will need the backing of the fans because they can make such a massive difference. Hopefully we can feed off one another.

We have two home games now, starting today, and we'll be doing all we can to get back on track – and those in the stands can also play their part, as they continually have done.

Aside from the games, there have been a couple of significant departures from our set-up recently and on behalf of the team I want to use this column as a chance to say a big thank you for their contribution.

Our doctor, Andrew Massey, one of our physios, Richie Partridge, and the U23s coach, Neil Critchley, have all chosen new and exciting challenges.

Doctor Massey and Richie were popular, trusted and respected figures at Melwood. The relationship between players and medical staff is always a close one – it's the nature of what they do.

As a dressing-room we're pleased they've left on great terms. Both are welcome back anytime they wish and will remain part of the LFC family because of their contribution.

Critch is a little different, because being based at Kirkby means some of us had limited contact with him. That said, the younger players who are now part of the first-team set-up speak about him in amazing terms and when he was in and around the first team set-up he was always impressive.

We're very grateful for how he's helped shape a number of the young pros in our dressing-room and also for the manner in which he led the team twice this season in difficult circumstances against Aston Villa and Shrewsbury Town.

I'm sure he won't need it, but we wish Critch all the luck in the world at Blackpool and hope he makes a success of a great opportunity.

As Alex Inglethorpe, the Academy director said, it shows there is a pathway to progression and improvement at Kirkby for coaches as well as players – and that's going to serve the club well in the future.

COUNTDOWN

LIVERPOOL FC V AFC BOURNEMOUTH

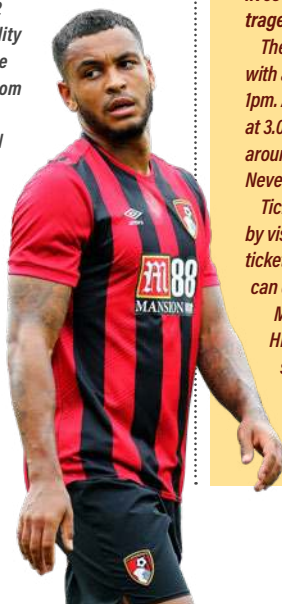

KING: WE CAN STAY UP

Bournemouth striker Joshua King is convinced the Cherries can beat the drop. He was a scorer in last Saturday's 2-2 draw with Chelsea at the Vitality Stadium but results elsewhere saw his side slip into the bottom three on goal difference.

The Norwegian international told the BBC's Match of the Day: "We're fighting a relegation battle against another six teams as everybody knows.

"But I know and every player in that dressing-room knows as well that we've got the players, the staff and the spirit to do our best and to stay up."

FINAL HILLSBOROUGH SERVICE

Wednesday 15 April 2020 is the 31st anniversary of the Hillsborough disaster and this year sees the final memorial service at Anfield to commemorate the lives of the 96 supporters who died in the tragedy.

The service will commence at 2.45pm, with access to the stadium possible from 1pm. A minute's silence will be observed at 3.06pm and the service will conclude at around 3.45pm with the singing of You'll Never Walk Alone.

Tickets can be obtained free of charge by visiting liverpoolfc.com/tickets or the ticket office at Anfield. Alternatively you can call 0151 264 2500.

Margaret Aspinall, chair of the Hillsborough Family Support Group, says: "The decision to hold the last service at Anfield was made by the families after much consideration. Going forward, the families of the 96 will continue to remember their loved ones each and every day as well as in their own way on the anniversary."

VIRGIL: WE WANT TO STRIKE BACK

Virgil van Dijk has vowed that the Reds will bounce back after seeing their 44-game unbeaten Premier League record come to an end at Watford last Saturday.

The Dutch central defender, who captained the side at Vicarage Road in the absence of injured midfielders Jordan Henderson and James Milner, said afterwards: "First of all, credit to Watford.

"They deserved it if you look at the game, the chances they created. They stuck to their plan and obviously scored three goals.

"Obviously we want to look at ourselves and we have to improve again. It's a tough one to take, but it's football.

"The records are only for the media, to be honest I don't think we even mentioned it once.

We want to strike back and show what we've been doing the whole season. That's the only way forward."

ANFIELD'S WOMEN OF INFLUENCE

This weekend we welcome a host of inspirational women to celebrate International Women's Day, chosen for either their significant contribution to the local community or the gender diversity movement within the city.

They will be applauded onto the pitch ahead of today's game, while among a host of matchday activities a film entitled Women of the Kop will be shown on concourse screens across the ground and in Paisley Square. It's also available to watch now via the club's website and social platforms.

This month LFC Foundation will host an 'inspirational women' careers event at Anfield for local high schools as well as running female-focused sessions and activities across their programmes.

Susan Black, LFC's director of communications and executive sponsor of the club's equality, diversity and inclusion agenda, says: "This is something we are really passionate about and why we were the first Premier League club to apply for and be awarded the Premier League's advanced quality standard for equality, demonstrating how committed we are to pushing the boundaries in this area of work."

GARY GILLESPIE

AT THE START OF THE SEASON, WOULD YOU HAVE TAKEN THE SITUATION WE ARE IN NOW? ABSOLUTELY

Everything in life needs to be put into perspective and football is no different. Liverpool are 22 points clear with ten games to go, and 90 minutes away from another Champions League quarter-final. If that's a crisis, it's one we'd all happily accept.

It was always going to be difficult to go unbeaten amid all the talk about records, and maybe now the monkey is off our backs. But of course we've still got to get the job done today and till the end of the season.

You've got to give the opposition credit too, all these teams fighting for their lives have got their own point to prove. Bournemouth, like Watford, will be another big test.

Maybe something has been missing in the last two or three games when we've looked to find that extra gear. It could be the absence of Jordan Henderson. We are certainly not a one-man team but perhaps we've missed his drive in the middle of the park. But you can't question the character or commitment of the team.

For someone like Takumi Minamino, it was always going to be difficult to come into a side like this, and it's way too early to judge the lad. Like Fabinho, in time he'll get used to the hectic pace of the Premier League, adapt to our style of play and find his most effective position. We'll see the best of him next season.

Curtis Jones and Neco Williams, for their part, are still only young lads learning their trade. Before Tuesday's FA Cup tie it'd been an upward curve for both, but we know football is not like that. I actually thought they both played well against Chelsea, and they are both most definitely ones for the future.

• Don't miss Gary on the Snods & Diz Show on BBC Radio Merseyside, Tuesdays 6-7pm.

HEAD to HEAD

An LFC win today will set an all-time top-flight record of 22 consecutive home victories, beating the Reds' own 21-match sequence from 1972. Virgil van Dijk is the only player to start each of the previous 21 Anfield league games. Here are some other facts and stats ahead of the lunchtime kick-off...

Mo Salah is set to make his 100th league appearance for Liverpool today against the side he has scored seven times against in five matches, more than any other at LFC.

December's away-win saw Bournemouth become the first side to lose five consecutive top-flight meetings with Liverpool by a margin of three or more goals.

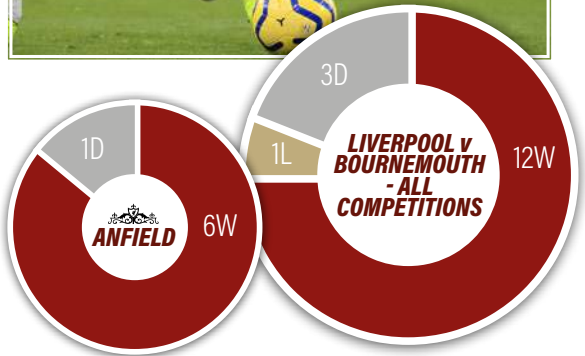

Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain, who got LFC's second last time vs the Cherries, scored his first senior goal for Southampton against Bournemouth in 2010. Former Dean Court loanee Adam Lallana was also on target for Saints in the 2-0 League Cup win.

Liverpool have never lost successive league games under Jürgen Klopp and only once have they failed to score in consecutive Premier League matches.

The reverse fixture before Christmas saw Liverpool kick off a league game at 3pm on a Saturday for the third successive week – doing so for the first time since May 2007. The Reds have had 11 different kick-off times in 2019/20.

Liverpool have failed to score only once in the 16 previous meetings in league and cup – the goalless FA Cup draw in January 1968.

JUST DEAL WITH IT

Recent setbacks have only strengthened our resolve, explains midfield motor Gini Wijnaldum, and the focus on today's fixture will be absolute

The Reds will be going all out to return to winning ways this afternoon after suffering that rarest of things last Saturday – a Premier League defeat.

The 3-0 reverse to Watford took a lot of people by surprise, not least the vast majority of the 100 or so journalists who had gathered at Vicarage Road expecting to report on Liverpool setting a new Premier League record of 19 consecutive victories.

To Gini Wijnaldum and his team-mates, however, the result only served to demonstrate what they already knew: that the highest of standards are demanded week in, week out in this most competitive of domestic leagues.

The antidote to the sting of the Hornets defeat, of course, was that it also underlined just how remarkable the Reds' consistency has been during the first five-and-half months of the campaign.

Gini will be aiming to help his team bounce back this afternoon as they bid to make sure that Liverpool's top-flight title count doesn't also stall at 18 but instead rolls on to that coveted figure of 19.

"We play in a league which is the strongest competition in the world so you have to face all sorts of problems," he says. "Before the Watford game we had managed to deal with them and just kept finding a way to win games."

Interview: William Hughes

"WE'VE NEVER

OURSELVES
HISTORY BOOKS"

"FOCUS ON THE
NEXT GAME,
TRY TO WIN IT,
TRY TO PLAY AS WELL AS POSSIBLE,
THEN SEE WHAT HAPPENS AT THE END"

"Now we have to do that again although we know it will be incredibly tough against Bournemouth who are battling hard to stay in this league.

"We also saw it in our last game here against West Ham. It was a difficult night with a swirling wind and an opponent who gave everything, who fought for everything and who put in difficult set-pieces. So that was difficult, too, but it will not be different in any game and we just have to deal with the situations that we face each time we go out on the pitch."

Getting the job done has always been the only thing on the players' minds and so talk of records has been like water off a duck's back. Indeed, Gini and company have made a united front in stressing their belief that re-writing those record books will mean nothing if the season ends without silverware.

"To be fair we haven't ever really thought about breaking records or putting ourselves in the history books," he continues. "Of course we want that, everyone wants that and if you ask every player, they will say they want it. But we are just focused on the main goal which is game-by-game.

"Trying to win the next game and trying to play as good as possible is all we have tried to do from the very start of the season. Then at the end you just hope that you have trophies to go with any records you may have.

"But we won't change. Our main focus is on the game we're going to play and the next one is against Bournemouth. When we have played our last game, we will see how it will end."

When that time comes, Gini and his team-mates will be able to reflect on a campaign that saw them, at worst, equal not only the Premier League's best tally for consecutive wins but also draw level with Bill Shankly's side of the Seventies in registering 21 successive home league victories.

The Reds reached that tally last time here at Anfield with their 3-2 victory over West Ham United, a night on which Gini opened the scoring with a stooping header from a wonderful Trent Alexander-Arnold cross to register his fourth goal of the campaign.

The 29-year-old admits it is nice to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with one of the best of Shankly's teams.

"Yes, of course that was nice to hear. I think everyone involved can be proud of that record but I also have to say that we really worked hard to win those 21 games, for instance as in that game against West Ham.

"As I say, we don't think about records – we just want to win every game, especially because we have been in a moment where we have had a momentum of winning lots of league games and we want to keep it like that.

"So yes we are lucky that we have records that come with the wins, but the wins are always the focus."

Today then, Gini and his fellow Reds can create a club history high of 22 consecutive home league victories if they can overcome Bournemouth.

It is fitting that the sequence started with a 3-0 win over the Cherries in February last year when Wijnaldum was also on the scoresheet, producing a sublime lob to beat goalkeeper Artur Boruc at the Anfield Road end for the second of Liverpool's goals that afternoon.

"That's what we will try to do. After the Chelsea [FA Cup] game our aim was straightaway to focus

"WE LEARN FROM MISTAKES, WE WORK REALLY HARD TO DO THAT, AND THAT'S WHY I THINK THINGS ARE NOW IN A GOOD WAY FOR US"

on the next game, recover, train hard, and prepare ourselves as well as possible to play against Bournemouth which is going to be a really difficult game.

"Really, that is how we look at all the games we face and that's what we have done since the start of the season."

In the aftermath of the Vicarage Road setback, Gini's compatriot Virgil van Dijk called for the Reds to strike back as quickly as possible.

Wijnaldum, who was rested for last Tuesday's tie at Stamford Bridge, echoes those sentiments and believes that the ability to learn quickly has been a key factor in the Reds' evolution under Jürgen Klopp.

"If you go back a few years ago, we made mistakes. But we learned from the mistakes we made and I think that's why we have been – why we are – so good right now.

"We have worked really hard for that, to have it the way it is right now. We have a team that has played with each other for a few years and during the years we have learned a lot and that's why things are now in a good way for us."

Gini, who played his 175th game for Liverpool at Watford last weekend, has started the last two league matches without Jordan Henderson alongside him with the skipper sidelined through a hamstring strain.

The Reds have missed the captain's influence and he looked a frustrated spectator when cameras panned to him at various stages of the West Ham game just under a fortnight ago.

"It's always difficult to see it from the sideline because you don't have any influence on the game," says Wijnaldum, who has won 62 caps for the Netherlands.

"Of course, Hendo has been in great form and he is our captain. We had a disappointing result at Watford but I think most times this season whichever players have played have done a wonderful job to bring us to the position where we are.

"As a team we have done it well until now, so we all need to make sure that we keep our focus until the end of the season."

AFC BOURNEMOUTH

FINAL COUNTDOWN

Bournemouth celebrate Callum Wilson's goal at Sheffield United last month. The no13's strike gave the Cherries an early lead in the Steel City but the in-form hosts struck back to take the spoils 2-1 that day. After losing their last five fixtures on the road, Eddie Howe's men will be looking for a change in fortunes today as they head into the final 10 games of their fifth Premier League campaign.

ADAM SMITH

Attack-minded full-back who reached 150 league games for Bournemouth last season. He initially had a loan spell with the club in League One during the 2010/11 campaign and has also represented the Cherries in the Championship.

MANAGER: EDDIE HOWE

Aside from a 10-month spell at Burnley in 2011/12, Eddie Howe has managed Bournemouth since January 2009 and has taken charge of 448 fixtures.

The 42-year-old has led the club to three promotions including the landmark Championship title success in 2014/15 that brought Premier League football to the club. Despite relatively limited resources, the club have been extremely competitive in their five top-flight seasons.

As a player, he had two spells with Bournemouth, playing more than 300 games mostly as a defender. In December 2006, aged 29, he was promoted to the role of player-coach and handed the task of coaching the reserves. After working as a youth coach under Jimmy Quinn, he took over as caretaker-manager before assuming the role in a permanent basis. Eddie steered the club clear of relegation despite starting the campaign with a 17-point penalty relating to the Cherries having gone into administration.

CALLUM WILSON

Joint-top scorer for the Cherries in Premier League football this season, netting his seventh of the campaign in this 2-1 defeat at Sheffield United last month. A prolific scorer throughout his career, he initially burst onto the scene with Coventry City in League One.

PHILIP BILLING

The Dane impressed with Huddersfield Town during the 2017/18 and 2018/19 seasons and was added to Eddie Howe's squad for a fee of £15 million following the Terriers' relegation. He has been a regular in the starting line-up so far this season.

CHERRIES READY TO FIGHT FOR SURVIVAL

The battle for Premier League survival is hotting up and with 10 games remaining Bournemouth are aiming to produce a strong run-in.

Despite holding Champions League-chasing Chelsea to a 2-2 draw at the Vitality Stadium last Saturday, the Cherries found themselves sucked into the relegation zone on goal-difference after rivals Watford and West Ham United both collected precious home wins the same day.

There was little indication of the troubles ahead when Josh King's winner against Manchester United left them sitting seventh at the start of November. But a run of just one win from their next dozen league fixtures left Eddie Howe's men in 19th position.

Back-to-back home wins over Brighton and Aston Villa alleviated the danger but one point from a possible nine means Bournemouth arrive at Anfield in a precarious position with a tough-looking run of games to come.

Three of the team's seven league wins so far have come on their travels with victories at Aston Villa, Southampton and Chelsea showing their quality. However, they have lost eight of their last nine away league games, including the last five in a row.

The Wilsons have been leading the scoring charts.

On-loan Reds winger Harry Wilson, ineligible this afternoon, has made an impact with seven league goals, the same tally as fellow top scorer Callum.

They also pose a big threat at set-pieces having scored more goals than any other Premier League team from dead-ball situations.

But the Cherries have failed to find the net in 11 league games this season – as many as Newcastle and Norwich, with only Watford (12) having failed to trouble the scorecards in more top-flight fixtures this season.

Just as alarmingly, their win at Chelsea back in December is their only clean-sheet in the last 17 league games.

The team has earned just two points from losing position this season – at West Ham last September and against Chelsea last Saturday.

Following that game against Frank Lampard's side, Howe said: "The last five performances have been stronger and we've started to score goals and create chances from open play.

"We're not where we want to be though, and it's going to be really tight and a big battle to get the points we need from now until the end of the season.

"We're prepared to fight for the challenge ahead, but I cannot predict what it will take for safety, it's too tight."

BACK STORY

Cherries picked off

Saturday 25 January 2014 and it's a first trip to Dean Court for the Reds since 1968 with a 2-0 win sealing progress to the fifth round of the FA Cup.

Goals in either half from on-loan winger Victor Moses and Daniel Sturridge – enjoying the best season of his career – knocked the newly-promoted Championship side out in the weekend's early kick-off.

Moses was one of two loan signings in Brendan Rodgers' first-team squad in 2013/14 – left-back Aly Cissokho being the other – and this was the then Chelsea-owned winger's second and final goal of his spell in which he would make 22 appearances, controlling Luis Suarez's deep cross on 26 minutes to drill home low at the near-post from 18 yards. Sturridge meanwhile had been a revelation following his January 2013 capture from the same side, his one-on-one finish on the hour from another Suarez assist his 14th of 24 goals that campaign.

While a plucky Bournemouth performance created several openings for the hosts, the result was never really in doubt according to The Observer verdict. "While there were fleeting moments when Liverpool strayed dangerously close to the banana skin, they had danced around it with the minimum amount of fuss long before the final whistle," it read.

"They were simply too clinical and professional for a famous upset to ever realistically be on the cards and by the end, with the match over as a contest, the visitors were threatening to make this a more humiliating experience than a refreshingly sprightly Bournemouth deserved."

The tie was also one of several of Martin Skrtel's 320 games for Liverpool which ended with the Slovakian patched up following a clash of heads.

The no37 returned to the fray following the accidental collision having endured a pitchside repair of several surgical staples to a nasty cut. Incidentally, both Skrtel and Moses were team-mates again at Fenerbahce last season.

The win would turn out to be Martin Kelly's last start for the club before a summer transfer to Crystal Palace, while Liverpool's bench included 20-year-old German defender Stephen Sama, this the third and final occasion the former Borussia Dortmund youngster would make a first-team matchday squad. Ryan Fraser meanwhile was a late sub for the Cherries in what was his first full season on the south coast.

The Reds' cup run was ended at the Emirates in the next round, with Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain among the goals as Arsenal edged a tight contest 2-1. Jordan Henderson netted his only LFC penalty to date in the second half.

The pitches at LFC's new, eco-friendly training complex in Kirkby are designed to replicate Anfield's immaculate playing surface, and then some Towards the end of last month a new video was posted on Liverpool FC's official website updating fans on progress at the club's new world-class training facilities.

It's now been confirmed that the 9,200sq metre building in Kirkby will boast three pitches measuring approximately 32,000sq metres, with dedicated goalkeeping and warm-up areas separating two of the playing surfaces.

There will also be an outdoor sports area with a full-size tennis court, artificial grass head-tennis court, a large artificial grass training area, a beach volleyball court and two padel tennis courts and (the latter being a racquet sport typically played in doubles on an enclosed area a third the size of a standard tennis court).

The pitches have been made to mirror Anfield's hallowed turf (above) as closely as possible, complete with under-soil heating and floodlighting, and each is reinforced using Desso Grassmaster artificial fibres.

The stitching process has taken 12 weeks using five machines to install more than 192,000km of fibre that has been woven into layers of sand beneath each playing surface.

Approximately 2.5 tonnes of grass seed will be sewn in spring ahead of the opening of the facility later this year. Each pitch will be composed of 97 per cent natural grass and three per cent artificial grass fibres.

To support healthy growth, the pitches contain 180 tonnes of Zeolite, a form of volcanic ash and other organic products, which reduces nutrient loss and helps keep the pitches to an exceptionally high standard.

Sixty pop-up irrigation heads have been installed to provide water to all the pitches to give the slick, fast surface required for Liverpool's style of play under Jürgen Klopp.

Work on the maintenance area is complete, including a newly-installed borehole to extract groundwater to irrigate the pitches and tend to the landscaping on site. This will ensure that the club's irrigation strategy is self-sufficient, avoiding the use of mains-sourced water for irrigation. The club's Academy site also uses an existing borehole to irrigate its pitches.

As part of the maintenance building, the Reds have invested in a biological vehicle wash system, allowing its grounds-team to wash equipment, vehicles or parts and reclaim the water used.

The system treats and filters out grease, grime, oil and grass cuttings that can collect on vehicles and equipment and effectively recycles the dirty water to be used again.

Overall Liverpool FC's new training complex creates a combined first-team and development squad facility, each of which has their own identity.

The state-of the art facilities comprise two gyms, a full-size sports hall, pool, hydrotherapy complex and specialist sports rehabilitation suites. There are also dedicated TV studios, press-conference facilities and offices.

The design of the main building provides a clean, modern and warm environment with lots of natural daylight and simple but crisp detailing which celebrates the club's history.

All in all, world-class facilities for world-class footballers.

Q&A

ANDY ROBERTSON

Watford wasn't good, admits everyone's favourite Scottish left-back, but this group is utterly determined to get back to winning ways soon

What's the biggest thing for you in this title run-in - what it means to you as a group, to you personally, or what it means to the fans?

Everything comes together as one. You play football to win games and to win trophies and luckily over the last year we've been able to win some matches and some silverware.

But the Premier League would be a massive one for us as this club has suffered for 30 years so we want to put that to bed and get Liverpool right back to the top and then we want to continue that.

That's the aim and as we're such a close group of players there's nothing better than celebrating titles with each other. Winning the Champions League last season was a couple of days we'll never forget. We want to recreate that but we know only hard work gets you there.

The unbeaten run came to an end at Watford last week which was obviously disappointing...

Watford were at it from the start and we took time to get going. We had a couple of good moments but nowhere near enough for this Liverpool team. It's a performance that has not been experienced for a number of years by the fans so it's up to us to bounce back.

Up to this point it has still been a fantastic season but we weren't at the races, we weren't the Liverpool that everyone has watched. It's up to us to now get back to that because that's the only way we're going to win games and get closer to our targets. It's up to us to show that defeat hurts and up to us to now go and put a run together that will crown us champions.

We hope that happens. The foundations we've built over the season have been fantastic but we need to keep that going. We're looking forward to the run-in. We're still fighting on two fronts for trophies and we want to try and take them both but we know how hard it's going to be, so we need to keep working hard, keep putting in the hours at Melwood and keep producing those performances on the park.

"WE'RE STILL FIGHTING ON TWO FRONTS FOR TROPHIES AND WE WANT TO TRY AND TAKE THEM BOTH BUT WE KNOW HOW HARD IT'S GOING TO BE"

How do you go about your thinking with four more wins needed for the title?

For us it's always about putting another three points on the board. I know people have their fixture-lists out doing the maths and so it's only natural to say that if we win on Saturday it's three more wins. But for us it's only three points, three points in the right direction and three points towards a lot of people's dreams in this world.

That for us is the biggest objective and the biggest incentive to do it. We're a level-headed bunch and no one at Melwood would let us get ahead of ourselves and none of us have. We've put everything in place to become champions but now we have the last part of the journey and hopefully we get there.

The fans are naturally expectant...

Of course and that's nice for us because if our fans are enjoying the way we're playing and what we're doing, it means we're doing something right. But our message has always been the same: we can't get carried away.

We know how hard this league is and we saw that last Saturday. We went to Watford hoping to make it only three wins away, but we're still four wins away. It's going to be tough but we believe we can do it. It's up to us to now show that and bounce back with another massive game against Bournemouth.

We really need to put in a proper LFC performance and show everyone that Watford was just a blip, that now we're going to crack on and get to where we want to be. Everyone knows where that is – but it's up to us to now show it.

You have a lot of experience behind you but only turn 26 next Wednesday...

It feels like I've been around for a bit but hopefully my best years are still ahead of me.

It's all felt really quick so far. I made my Scotland debut within seven months of becoming a professional and looking back on that it's quite crazy. At Queen's Park I was an amateur training twice a week and then going to Dundee United and after such a short time for Gordon Strachan to call me up shows that if you give people a chance then they might take it and I believe I did for him.

Then when Hull City came calling I don't think I was quite ready, to be honest. I'd say that's one of the most difficult decisions I've ever had to make. Everyone talks about the Premier League but I had only had a year as a professional and was happy in the Scottish Premier League but Steve Bruce was a big factor in telling me I was ready and why I was ready. He told me how he was going to use me and I've never really looked back since.

"WE REALLY NEED TO PUT IN A PROPER LFC PERFORMANCE AND SHOW EVERYONE THAT WATFORD WAS JUST A BLIP, THAT NOW WE'RE GOING TO CRACK ON AND GET TO WHERE WE WANT TO BE"

How has your role changed at Liverpool?

When I was in the Premier League with Hull we had to defend a lot more where you were maybe getting into positions to cross the ball three or four times a game. Now in this Liverpool team it's around 12 to 13 times per game. So you do get more chances to go forward but ultimately whether it's for Hull or Liverpool it's all about getting the clean-sheet first and foremost and the defenders have done their job.

As long as I defend properly I'm happy but extra-happy if I can contribute to goals or assists – everyone loves doing that and I'm no different. That clean-sheet means you can't get beaten in a game so that's first-and-foremost always my aim.

Trent and I are quite attacking full-backs and it helps that we control a lot of the ball in a lot of games, but it puts more pressure on you to provide as you have more chances to cross the ball.

How would you define a modern full-back?

It's about being good in both boxes. Last season was our most productive. Having more composure, looking up a lot more rather than just putting the ball into the box and waiting for the right moments are all things we always work on. Virgil, Joe, Joel and Dejan are a massive part of that as they allow us to get forward.

You clearly have a good relationship with Trent...

We're on the same wavelength. Sometimes we don't need to look up as we know each other's positions. I think he finds me more often when we switch it than I do, though! But it's good to switch the play to take out a lot of the other team and it's been a good weapon for us and ended up with quite a lot of goals. You've also got the option of playing down the sides to either Mo or Sadio – not bad options to have.

The whole squad has a fantastic relationship in the changing-room, which is a good job as we probably see each other more than we do our families! There are a few videos going around with me and Trent winding each other up but that's only because it's so good to beat him at anything as he's the most competitive person I know.

You're now Scotland captain as well as a trophy-winner at Anfield...

When I first came to Liverpool it felt that the manager was really starting to have his project in place and Liverpool were starting to become a force again. I'd like to think I've helped be a part of that.

That progression took me a bit of time and since then we've also been able to sign Ox, Virgil, Alisson, Fabinho, Naby, so there was a clear plan in place by the club and I was lucky to jump into that plan and then be a big part of it.

It's a fantastic club to be at and maybe when I joined it wasn't the club that it is just now. We still had the big fanbase and were a big club but weren't quite competing and winning on the last day of the season to make the Champions League was a big step for us.

We've had two seasons now where we've competed right at the top and we hope that continues.

Do you ever sit back and think you can't believe what is happening with this Liverpool team right now?

No. When you're in it and living in it, you can't. Friends and family might but you just need to go again, there's always another game so you can't switch off. We'll maybe look back on it when we retire and say that was a special, special time, but it's all about enjoying being a Liverpool player right now and we can only look forward.

CARAVAN OF LOVE

Previously in these pages we've brought you news about Emma Case, daughter of Reds legend Jimmy, and her project RED, the community archive of Liverpool fans' personal photos and stories.

Now she has an exciting update: "Football may be the thread but this project is about people. We want to create a living, breathing archive; to offer opportunities for all ages to come together and connect, to share their stories. To do this, we want to take the archive to them.

"We have the most wonderful 1969 vintage caravan and our plan is to renovate it and turn it into a mobile exhibition space. Part pop-up exhibition, part interview booth.

"With the caravan we want to take the archive out into the local communities of Liverpool. We'll be heading to matchdays, community centres, libraries and to events across the city and beyond, and we'll be inviting fans to get involved with a whole host of activities."

With this mind Emma has launched a crowdfunding appeal with a target of £23,000 to renovate the caravan and coordinate a summer tour across Merseyside. To find out more, visit crowdfunder.co.uk/theredproject.

RAGNHILD LUND ANSNES

The author of official Liverpool FC books and co-owner of Hotel Tia on tomorrow's launch of Livergirls International...

Have a look around you in the stands at Anfield today. How many girls and women do you see?

The amount of female fans has grown rapidly since the 1950s when Liverpool legend Phil Thompson's mother June, and her twin sister May, used to put on their nice coats and skirts before finding their way to Anfield to support the Reds.

June took all her seven children to see matches at Anfield while her husband Owen, an Evertonian, worked at sea.

That is how 11-year-old Phil got to sit on the front row at Anfield with his mother and admire the 1965 heroes who brought the FA Cup home when they did a lap of honour.

That was it. Thommo and all his siblings became Reds.

Thanks to his mother, who spoke to Bill Shankly on behalf of her son getting an apprenticeship, Phil Thompson ultimately became the first Scouser to lift the European Cup as a captain for Liverpool. The rest is history.

All these years later, football has become the biggest girls' sport in the UK and is on the brink of becoming the largest girls' sport in the world.

The final of the Women's World Cup even beat the viewing ratings of the Men's World Cup final, and as a proud owner of Hotel Tia – the fan zone and LFC-themed hotel, bar and beer-garden on Anfield Road – I have the pleasure of seeing a growing number of females making their way to Anfield from all over the world.

Football brings us together across cultures, religious preferences and gender. However, girls are still a minority in the world's biggest game as supporters. Some feel a little lonely as they don't necessarily feel like a natural part of the lads and their matchday routines, pub groups and journeys.

Six years ago, we started a campaign called Livergirls Norway. I became the first female board member in the official LFC supporters branch (LFCSCN) in Norway in 30 years.

I met so many girls on my LFC book tours with Liverpool legends, but they were not members of the supporters club branch. So we made digital platforms for the girls to meet and discuss football and we have arranged annual girls-only trips to Liverpool.

The results have been fantastic. The percentage of female members of LFCSCN has grown, our female fans have more media exposure, use social-media platforms and the feedback of how the campaign has improved their confidence and life-quality as LFC supporters is simply moving.

Now it's time to take this campaign worldwide. Tomorrow, on International Women's Day (8 March), you are welcome to join us when we launch Livergirls International with a garden party at Hotel

Tia with live music from 2.30pm onwards. It is free to everyone to come along to make new friends and celebrate the best Livergirls in the world (and feel free to wear red or goalkeeper green).

At 6pm we move to Anfield's Main Stand for a reception and a dinner with motivational guest speakers such as LFC Women manager Vicky Jepson, Anfield Wrap producer Lizzy Doyle, CEO of Liverpool FC Peter Moore and Liverpool's very own Phil Thompson. The legendary Voice of Anfield, George Sephton, is our DJ – and I will be the proud host.

I hope to see many of you celebrate LFC's female fans on International Women's Day tomorrow. But first today, up the Reds!

RETRO REDS...

DRESS TO IMPRESS

This shot of the old home dressing-room at Anfield was taken before an October 2015 League Cup fourth-round tie against Bournemouth, a little later during that same season featured here in Back Issues.

If many of the names on the shirts (and on the front of the programme) are now but distant memories, so is the look of the Reds changing-room itself, which was completely replaced and upgraded to a new state-of-the-art facility during the imminent Main Stand expansion over the course of 2015/16.

NO SWEAT

In a mixture of red, white, yellow and grey material, this Eighties-era LFC sweatbands were best worn around the wrists during enthralling games of street five-a-side and occasionally around the head for a laugh until they snapped and it really, really hurt.

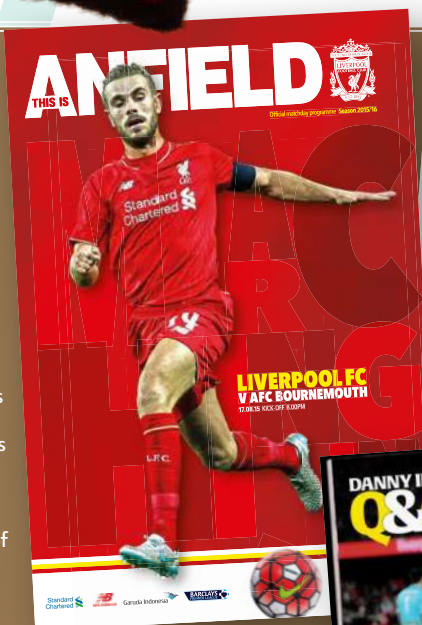

BACK ISSUES

Jordan Henderson was the cover star for the matchday programme when Liverpool hosted Bournemouth in season 2015/16. It was his first home game as club captain, and although he was injured early in the second half the Reds won 1-0.

The issue featured interviews with new Liverpool signing Danny Ings, who'd been given his first professional contract at Bournemouth by Eddie Howe, and ex-Reds skipper Jamie Redknapp, who was signed for Liverpool by Kenny Dalglish from the Cherries in 1991.

Jamie would go on to spend just over 11 years as a Liverpool player. The highlight of that time? "Without a doubt, being appointed captain. The fact that I can tell people I captained Liverpool is what I am most proud of when I look back on my career.

"I'm sure it is something that Jordan [Henderson] is immensely proud of already. My advice to him would be not to change what you were doing in the first place - that's why you were made captain."

Due to a technical issue some dedications may have been lost during the production of this matchday programme and we apologise to any readers who may have been affected. Those who wish to place a message in a future issue are advised to contact lfcprogramme@reachsport.com.

Healthy half-term breakfasts and new mental-health projects

LFC Foundation has launched new mental-health projects that will help young people and adults. The club's official charity is investing in a programme in partnership with Action for Children which will be delivered in schools across Merseyside. The new funding will also support a dedicated professional counsellor for LFC Foundation, available to provide crisis-intervention. The initiative is supported by mental-health advocate and former Reds star Jason McAteer (below).

Meanwhile Red Neighbours invited local families to free half-term breakfast clubs at Anfield recently. Children from schools in the L4, L5 and L6 areas enjoyed a nutritious breakfast and fun activities alongside their families including a stadium tour. They were welcomed by the club's official mascot, Mighty Red, and HFSG chair Margaret Aspinall, while LFC Women players Leighanne Robe and Ashley Hodson were there for the final breakfast club on Friday to pose for pictures and take part in a Q&A.

At Liverpool FC we are passionate about our community and our official charity LFC Foundation delivers programmes and partnerships to create life-changing opportunities for children and young people. We also work with local residents, community groups and schools in the Anfield area, as part of our Red Neighbours programme, focusing on the key issues of food poverty and education, the elderly, getting the community physically-active and creating memorable experiences for youngsters.

ROBBIE'S LATEST HOT PROPERTY

Fowler's Roar are pushing for success as the boss homes in on Anfield development

Robbie Fowler is building a better future – on the pitch in Australia and off the pitch in Liverpool.

After winning just two of his opening nine A-League matches following his appointment as head coach of Brisbane Roar in the summer, Fowler has overseen an upturn in form with the Queenslanders undefeated in eight out of the next nine to propel themselves into a play-off position.

And away from football Fowler has announced plans to build over 300 homes back home on a site between Anfield and Liverpool city-centre. The Reds legend is well-known for owning a property portfolio in the UK, but this is the first time he has ventured into developing a site.

"I'm delighted to announce that I have teamed up with Elatus Development Group to develop St Anne's Gardens," he said. "I have always had a passion for property development and to be part of a big project like this is not only great for my personal ambition but will be great for this region of Liverpool."

Situated on land between St Anne's Street and Fox Street in Vauxhall, a half-hour walk from Anfield, the three-block development is set to contain 325 properties made up of studios plus one and two-bedroom apartments. Work could begin in May and if all goes to plan buyers will be living in a Robbie Fowler home by the end of 2021.

Before that development is completed, Fowler is hoping to bring success to Brisbane and with his side going into yesterday's game at home to Western Sydney Wanderers firmly placed in the top six – and the top six qualifying for the end-of-season play-offs to determine the A-League winner – the Roar remain in contention for a first league title since 2014.

"Every single day as a coach you learn different parts of how clubs are run, different parts of training, how you can adapt sessions, how you can adapt to players," said Fowler, who scored 183 goals in 369 appearances in two spells for Liverpool.

"As I've said from day one, I'm here to enjoy myself, here to try and get the best results and so far I'm liking it.

"I think we've made lots of good decisions during the season. In terms of letting players go, bringing players on at the right time, making subs early in games – I think I've proven to people I'm not afraid to make tough decisions."

HOME RUN

Liverpool's sequence of Premier League wins at Anfield stands at 21, equalling the record set almost half-a-century ago

Bill Shankly would have loved watching the modern Liverpool FC side in action. You can imagine him peering down from his celestial perch, observing Jürgen Klopp and his relentless Reds, saying contentedly, “Aye, not bad son, not bad.”

A big part of Shankly's masterplan was to make Anfield an impregnable fortress and this afternoon Liverpool FC's current crop stand on the verge of creating yet another club record in what seems set to be a defining era in the club's history.

Klopp's players have been quick to dismiss the various domestic records they have set so far this season, stressing it will only mean something if they have significant silverware in their hands. Yet however the season ends, Liverpool's current home run deserves recognition.

The 3-2 victory against West Ham United here just under a fortnight ago means they have equalled the club record of 21 consecutive league wins at Anfield set by Shankly's side of 1972 and early 1973. Success against Bournemouth today will set a new high mark.

Bill knew how powerful home advantage could be, especially with the backing of the Kop. When he installed the 'This is Anfield' sign in the players' tunnel he famously explained it was “to remind our lads who they're playing for, and to remind the opposition who they're playing against.”

The power of Anfield, as Klopp has referred to it, was a central pillar of Shankly's Reds manifesto: “My idea was to build Liverpool into a bastion of invincibility. Had Napoleon had that idea he would have conquered the bloody world.

“I wanted Liverpool to be untouchable. My idea was to build Liverpool up and up until eventually everyone would have to submit and give in.”

Klopp's philosophy has been startlingly similar with his 'mentality monsters' showing a single-minded, implacable nature that would've had the great Scot beaming with pride.

But what of that stunning sequence in the early Seventies? Shankly's men began their record-breaking run on Saturday 29 January 1972 when Crystal Palace came to town.

The Liverpool boss had been far from happy with his men's league form. The previous game at Anfield had resulted in a 2-0 defeat at the hands of Don Revie's Leeds United. Second-half goals from strikers Allan Clarke and Mick Jones had left Liverpool frustrated and in the ignominy of ninth place in the Division One table for season 1971/72.

A week later Liverpool lost at Leicester City and a goalless draw at Wolves a fortnight later left the Reds in tenth position. Enough was enough.

Palace were brushed aside 4-1 with two of the goals coming from full-back Chris Lawler – the second his 50th in first-class football – before late strikes from Ian Callaghan and Kevin Keegan sealed the Eagles' fate. A fresh resolve had been instilled in Shankly's side and they were determined their home would not be breached again.

First, however, there was more heartache to come at the hands of Leeds, this time in the FA Cup as Revie's side won a fourth-round replay 2-0 at Elland Road following a goalless draw at Anfield.

Liverpool returned to West Yorkshire to defeat Huddersfield Town 1-0 in their next league game and then faced three consecutive matches on home soil. Sheffield United were beaten 2-0, Manchester City 3-0 and, memorably, Everton were thrashed 4-0. When Newcastle United arrived in mid-March the sequence continued as a rampant Reds won 5-0 – a fitting result to mark the first game after the 'This Is Anfield' sign was installed.

Forward Ian St John recalled: "The Newcastle players are in the passageway and they see the sign. Malcolm Macdonald, 'Supermac', is going: 'Oh, we've got the right ground, lads. This is Anfield'. Shanks heard him.

"They get into the dressing room, get stripped, go out and play. Liverpool won, it was 5-0.

"After the game boss goes in and knocks on their door. Joe Harvey says: 'Yes, Bill'. 'Is Supermac there?' They are sitting there, they had just been battered. Shanks then went: 'You'll know where it is next time'."

Shankly later said, "Malcolm Macdonald took it very well. He was quoted in the papers as saying how quickly I had replied to what he said before the game."

Another four home wins followed as Stoke City (2-1), West Brom (2-0), Coventry City (3-1) and Ipswich Town

(2-0) were all swept aside. By the time they had beaten the Suffolk side in their final home game of the season, on Saturday 22 April 1972, the Reds had responded to that league defeat by Leeds by reeling off nine consecutive league wins at Anfield.

Not only that, Shankly's side had won 13 of their last 14 matches, drawing the other. It was a run which had suddenly catapulted them into the race for the title. From ending January 1972 in tenth position, they finished April in second spot, one point behind leaders Manchester City. However City had played all 42 games while Liverpool had two games to play and so would be champions if they won those remaining fixtures.

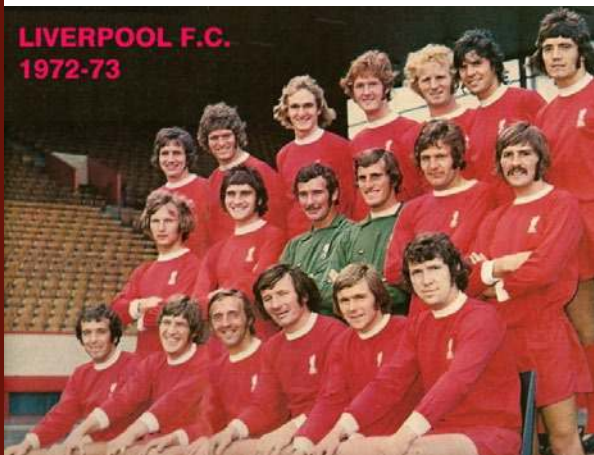

Both were away from Anfield, however, and hopes of an unlikely title triumph faded when a second-half goal from Derby County midfielder John McGovern settled the first of those remaining contests, though Liverpool were left frustrated at the decision of referee Clive Thomas to turn down a first-half penalty appeals when Kevin Keegan seemed to be brought down by Rams keeper Colin Boulton.

To clinch an eighth top-flight title Liverpool now needed to win their final game at Arsenal on Monday 8 May while hoping Leeds failed to take a point from their final game at Wolverhampton Wanderers. At Molineux it ended 2-1 to the hosts, but Liverpool were held to a goalless draw in North London and so Brian Clough's Derby, by now on holiday, were crowned champions for the first time.

Emlyn Hughes later recalled to the Liverpool Echo: "John Toshack had a goal disallowed late on. In our view it was a good goal and had it counted it would have been great to have won the title after losing to Arsenal in the Cup a year earlier.

"It was a sickener not to win the championship, just as it had been not to win the Cup, but I knew it was only a question of time before the team developed fully.

Standard Chartered

"I soon recovered because I knew that if the boys could be kept together we were going to be a great side, as good in my view as the team of the mid-Sixties which won so much at Liverpool."

Crazy Horse's faith in the team was borne out when they started the following campaign where they'd left off in terms of home form.

A quirk of the fixture-list saw both Manchester clubs come to Anfield within the space of four days at the start of the 1972/73 campaign.

There had been little major transfer activity for the Reds that summer except for striker Alun Evans being sold to Aston Villa and replaced by Nottingham Forest's attacking midfielder Peter Cormack who was signed for £110,000 – a joint-club record fee at the time.

City were beaten 2-0 despite the Reds playing more than half of the game with ten men following the sending-off of centre-back Larry Lloyd. United were then dispatched by the same scoreline thanks to first-half goals from Toshack and Steve Heighway.

The wins – and goals – continued to flow on home soil as three, four and then five were put past West Ham, Wolves and Sheffield United respectively.

In October, Cormack scored the only goal on his derby debut to see off the challenge of Harry Catterick's Everton at Anfield.

The home run looked set to end when Stoke City visited a fortnight later and went in at the break with a 1-0 advantage thanks to Jimmy Greenhoff's goal in front of the Kop.

Emlyn Hughes equalised midway through the second-half but time was almost up when the Reds were awarded a late free-kick. Ian Callaghan fired the final kick of the match goalwards and it deflected off Potters defender Eric Skeels and past Gordon Banks, in what would sadly be the England goalkeeper's last competitive football match.

Liverpool's home run continued and Chelsea (2-1) and Newcastle (3-2) were seen off before another dramatic game against Birmingham City.

The Blues were two up inside 20 minutes and 3-1 up just before the break, Bob Latchford restoring their two-goal advantage after Alec Lindsay had struck for the Reds. Cormack made it 3-2 at the break and goalscoring left-back Lindsay levelled the scores 10 minutes into the second-half.

Three-three. The winning sequence again looked in peril before Toshack popped up to score the seventh goal of the game with 13 minutes remaining. The 4-3 win took Liverpool three points clear at the top of the Division One standings with a game in hand on second-placed Arsenal as the season approached the halfway stage.

The year 1972 ended with league wins no20 and 21 on the spin at Anfield as Coventry City (2-0) and Crystal Palace (1-0) were vanquished either side of Christmas.

With Shankly's side not playing their next league game at Anfield until Saturday 20 January 1973, it meant that they went more than a calendar year without defeat.

If Bill were still around today, he would no doubt be keen to point out that had VAR existed in 1973, the Reds' winning home league run would have stretched to 22 games. As things transpired, it was halted by Brian Clough's Derby County after a 1-1 draw which left the Liverpool boss fuming.

Rams striker Roger Davies broke the deadlock after 15 minutes but Shanks stormed afterwards: "[It was] definitely offside. I was right beside it and there's no argument about it." Skipper Tommy Smith felt "he must have been five yards offside."

Liverpool later levelled through Toshack (or Heighway

"I WANTED LIVERPOOL TO BE UNTOUCHABLE, MY IDEA WAS TO BUILD THEM UP UNTIL EVERYONE WOULD HAVE TO GIVE IN"

according to some press reports) but were unable to produce a winning goal. Their unbeaten home league sequence then came to an end in the next Anfield fixture as Arsenal ran out 2-0 winners.

Echo correspondent Horace Yates reported:

"A warning that Anfield games alone many not be sufficient to bring the title to Liverpool was delivered by champions Derby County when they became the first of 22 teams to take a point to the chorus of the Kop."

He needn't have worried. Shankly's side not only went on to clinch the league but also won a European trophy too as they overcame Borussia Moenchengaldbach to land the UEFA Cup.

No pressure on the current crop of Liverpool lads then!

Klopp's class last dropped home league points on 30 January when Leicester City held them to a 1-1 draw on a snowy Wednesday night as Harry Maguire cancelled out Sadio Mane's early opener.

It is fitting that the winning sequence started against today's visitors Bournemouth on Saturday 9 February 2019. Now, Klopp's side will be hoping that another win over the Cherries this afternoon can seal their place in the club's record books.

Last time around, Mane, Georginio Wijnaldum and Mo Salah were the marksmen in a 3-0 victory.

That started a run of seven straight home league wins to end the 2018/19 campaign. Watford and Huddersfield Town were both beaten 5-0, while Chelsea and Wolves were both on the end of 2-0 defeats.

Meanwhile Burnley were beaten 4-2 while the Reds left it late to edge out Tottenham Hotspur 2-1 and also needed a helping hand from Spurs defender Toby Alderweireld who put through his own goal in the last minute in attempting to clear his lines after Mo Salah's header was parried by keeper Hugo Lloris.

Klopp's relentless Reds started this season as they left off with an opening night 4-1 win over Norwich City preceding 3-1 defeats of Arsenal and Newcastle United.

That made it ten straight home league wins but game no 11 presented a potential banana skin. Brendan Rodgers returned to Anfield with his Leicester City side and were seconds away from sharing the spoils before the Reds were awarded an injury-time penalty which was calmly converted by James Milner.

Tough-looking games against Tottenham (2-1) and Manchester City (3-1) were skilfully negotiated before the visit of Brighton and Hove Albion at the end of November presented another test of character for Klopp's men.

Things seemed to be going to plan with the Reds leading 2-0 thanks to a couple of Virgil van Dijk headers and a routine home win seemed likely until Alisson was sent off with just under 15 minutes left for a handball outside his area. Lewis Dunk converted the resulting free-kick and Liverpool's 10 men had to play out a testing final few minutes before emerging with maximum points.

After putting five past Everton in the Merseyside derby and seeing off an impressive Watford side before heading to the FIFA Club World Cup, the Reds returned to Anfield to be given another stern test by Wolves.

Sadio Mané's goal earned a 1-0 win but the visitors were left bemused by a VAR verdict to rule out what would have been an equaliser by Pedro Neto for a marginal offside against Jonny.

That was all out of the Reds' control and they finished the year with a 13-point lead at the top of the Premier League table.

It's four out of four in the Premier League at Anfield in 2020 in league action, too, with the Uniteds of Sheffield and Manchester beaten 2-0 and Southampton 4-0 before Liverpool eventually burst West Ham's bubble with that hard-fought 3-2 success here 12 days ago.

A couple of interesting comparisons: Shankly's side of the Seventies scored 59 goals during their 21-match pattern at Anfield. Klopp's men have netted 61. Both teams conceded just 14 times during their respective runs.

Talking about equalling the club's unbeaten home league record (and levelling Manchester City's Premier League sequence of 18 consecutive victories), Klopp has said: "A couple of years ago, three or four, maybe in the beginning, I said we want to write our own stories, we want to create our own history. Obviously, the boys took really seriously what I said there and that's all cool – but just not too important in the moment.

"It's so special, the numbers are incredible, so difficult. We said it a couple of times, we spoke about wonderful games, brilliant games, we spoke about hard games, difficult games.

"The number of wins you can only have if you win all of these games: the difficult ones, the easy ones – if there ever was one – the brilliant ones and the rougher, more 'grumpy' ones. In the end, that's what counts.

"We all know it's very special, but in the moment we are really just in the situation and want to recover and prepare for the next one. The next opponent is really waiting and wants to fight us."

That happens to be Eddie Howe's Bournemouth and the modern Liverpool vintage will certainly not be underestimating today's guests. But there would be a nice symmetry should they set a new club record against the side from the South Coast having started their winning home run against them 13 months ago.

Hopefully Kopites will enjoy the next 90-odd minutes in our Liverpool home.

REGROUP AND RE-FOCUS

Liverpool FC Women will use the current international break to come back re-focused for their crucial run-in says assistant-manager Emma Humphries.

The Reds dropped to the bottom of the FA Women's Super League with a disappointing 4-2 defeat at West Ham United last time out.

Liverpool now have eight games to move up the table in a league which sees only the bottom side relegated.

They return to action at home to Manchester City on Sunday 22 March before making the trip to Everton three days later. Four of the Reds' final five games will also be played on home soil.

"I think the break has come at a good time for us," said former New Zealand international Humphries.

"We were naturally really disappointed after the West Ham performance. It's probably been one of only two to three games this season where we've been disappointed in the performance as well as the result.

"Clearly if you lose you're going to be disappointed but that West Ham result hit us because we all felt we didn't play well or achieve what we set out to regardless of the result which is always an indicator that your group is going to be frustrated and naturally so.

"At the same time, having this break gives us energy to re-group and re-focus. We've got a really exciting group of games coming up starting with Man City at home and all the players and staff are really excited about meeting the challenge we have in front of us."

Meanwhile, Liverpool FC Women's postponed Barclays FA Women's Super League fixture at Everton has been rescheduled for Wednesday 25 March at Goodison Park (kick-off 7pm).

The match was originally due to have taken place last month but was called off due to adverse weather conditions caused by Storm Ciara.

All tickets for the visitors' section of the ground will remain valid for the fixture.

STADIUM INFORMATION

ARRIVING AT THE STADIUM

Make sure you allow enough time for any necessary security-checks which may include random searches. Bringing bags to the stadium is actively discouraged. However, fans arriving at the stadium with a small personal bag (i.e. handbag/medical bag) should expect this to be searched and tagged before entry. Bringing a bag may delay your entry and in some cases may lead to non-entry to the stadium. Please do not bring large bags or luggage (such as rucksacks/briefcases/suitcases/suit bags etc) to Anfield as they cannot be brought into the stadium.

EMERGENCY PROCEDURES

In the event of an emergency at Anfield you will hear a police message over the public address system. It will be preceded by a loud 'bing-bong' sound. Please remain where you are, listen to the message and, if it affects your area of the stadium, comply with the instructions immediately. These will direct you to a safe area, through exit gates and doors into car parks, roads or the pitch area. If you are disabled or feel unsafe in a large crowd, remain where you are until the stewards assist you to leave. Above all, REMAIN CALM and DO NOT MOVE unless the announcement concerns your area of the stadium.

KICK OUT DISCRIMINATION

Liverpool Football Club is fully committed to equality within the game, and will not tolerate racism, homophobia, or any form of discrimination both on and off the pitch. Anyone who does witness behaviour which is likely to cause offence is encouraged to report this – Text LFC followed by your message to 64446. The club is committed to investigating all reported incidents, as we are fully determined to make Anfield a place that is open to all individuals, regardless of their race, religion, sexual orientation, age, gender or disability. Help us to make Liverpool Football Club a welcoming environment to all.

USE OF PYROTECHNICS AND SMOKE BOMBS IS PROHIBITED

Liverpool Football Club would like to remind fans that flares, smoke bombs and pyrotechnics are illegal and prohibited. Any individual who is found taking these items to Anfield or any other stadium may face prosecution and a banning order. The use of such devices breaches ground safety regulations and poses serious risk of injury to fellow fans. Although there has been a decrease in the use of these illegal items, there have been some instances recently where they have been used. The club would like to remind supporters of the serious consequences they may face surrounding the use of pyrotechnics. Thank you for your continued support in keeping Anfield a safe and welcoming environment for all supporters.

CRITCHLEY FOLLOWS HIS TANGERINE DREAM

Under-23s coach Neil Critchley left the club to take up the position of head coach at Blackpool on Monday.

After six-and-a-half years of outstanding service within the Reds' Academy set-up, the 41-year-old departs to begin his role with the League One side.

Critchley moved to Merseyside in September 2013 to take the reins of the U18s before progressing to the U23s ahead of the 2017/18 campaign.

He also took charge of the first team for two games this season as he oversaw the Carabao Cup tie at Aston Villa in December and, more recently, the FA Cup fourth-round replay against Shrewsbury Town at Anfield, helping guide a side consisting of players from the youth ranks to a 1-0 victory last month.

He told Blackpool's official club website: "The time I've had at Liverpool has been truly special. I've been incredibly well supported there from Alex Inglethorpe and all the staff. It's a truly special football club and it's the people that make the football club the place that it is. It would have had to have taken something equally as special, if not more, for me to even think about leaving.

"But from the conversations I've had here [at Blackpool], I got a really good feeling about the people, where they want the club to go and how they want it to grow."

Academy director Inglethorpe admits the news brought mixed emotions.

"It's bittersweet in many respects," he said. "Obviously losing a person and professional of Neil's calibre is something that is a disappointment, but at the same time we have great excitement and joy that he has been given this wonderful opportunity.

"We see this as a reflection on the Academy as a whole, that it's an environment where players and coaches have a pathway to progression and self-improvement.

"Blackpool wanted Neil because of the work he's done at Liverpool and it shows to everyone within our system that if you work hard and work smart then rewards are there.

"Neil epitomises the best qualities of a modern coach: leadership skills, intelligence, compassion and a hunger for individual and collective improvement. Blackpool are very fortunate to have him and we wish him well.

"For the U23s we are confident in the remaining coaching talent we have to make sure there is no drop-off in the interim period. This season has proved the importance of the role and, therefore, we will take advantage of having amazing people already in post to take stock and assess what to do next."

Responsibilities for Liverpool's U23s in the interim will be assumed by existing coaching staff before a permanent appointment is made.

MATCH REPORT

LIVERPOOL v West Ham United

REDS EDGE FIVE-GOAL THRILLER

- Liverpool come from behind to beat the Hammers and equal the all-time record of 18 consecutive top-flight wins, set by Manchester City in 2017. Sadio Mane's winning goal, from a Trent Alexander-Arnold cross, also ensures that the Reds equal the all-time record of 21 top-flight home wins in a row, set by Bill Shankly's Liverpool in 1972.
- Gini Wijnaldum's stooping header, from an Alexander-Arnold cross, breaks the deadlock, but the visitors go in front through an Issa Diop header and a low finish by Pablo Fornals. Mo Salah nets the equaliser, with a low shot that squirms through the legs of keeper Lukasz Fabianski, before Mane pokes home the winner.
- "I never thought it [Man City's record] would be broken or equalled," says Jürgen Klopp. "We did it and I cannot believe it happened, to be honest. When we equalised the stadium was rocking and that helps us. I could not be more thankful or appreciate the support we get."

GOALS: Wijnaldum (9), Salah (68), Mane (81).

LINE-UP (4-3-3): Alisson, Alexander-Arnold, Gomez, Van Dijk (C), Robertson, Keita (Oxlade-Chamberlain 57), Fabinho, Wijnaldum, Salah, Firmino, Mane (Matip 90). Subs not used: Adrian, Lovren, Minamino, Lallana, Origi.

MATCH REPORT

Watford v LIVERPOOL

AWESOME RUN FINALLY HALTED

• Liverpool's 44-game unbeaten Premier League sequence ends with a 3-0 defeat at Watford. A second-half double from Ismaila Sarr and a strike from Troy Deeney also ends the Reds' record-equalling 18-game top-flight winning streak on an afternoon to forget at Vicarage Road.

• Andy Robertson has Liverpool's only shot on target – Ben Foster denying him with a save – and substitute Adam Lallana strikes the outside of a post, but it's the first time the Reds have failed to score in the league in 37 games and a first Premier League loss since January 2019.

• “We never estimated the situation wrongly, we never thought it would be easy,” says manager Jürgen Klopp. “These boys are working extremely hard. If you win, you do it in the right manner. If you lose, you take it like a man. From time to time, if you are not good enough, you need to restart.”

GOALS: Sarr (54, 60), Deeney (72)

LINE-UP (3-5-2): Foster, Femenia, Kabasele, Cathcart, Masina, Hughes, Capoue, Sarr (Pussetto 82), Doucoure (Chalobah 89), Deulofeu (Pereyra 37), Deeney (C).

Subs not used: Gomes, Dawson, Welbeck, Gray.

LINE-UP (4-3-3): Alisson, Alexander-Arnold, Lovren, Van Dijk (C), Robertson, Oxlade-Chamberlain (Origi 65), Fabinho, Wijnaldum (Lallana 61), Salah, Firmino (Minamino 79), Mane.

MATCH REPORT

Chelsea v LIVERPOOL

CUP TRAIL ENDS IN WEST LONDON

• Liverpool exit the FA Cup at Stamford Bridge following a 2-0 defeat to Chelsea in the BBC's live televised match. A first-half strike from Willian, that is too hot for Adrian to handle, and a second-half goal by Ross Barkley ends the Reds' interest in the competition at the fifth-round stage. The travelling fans, as always, are in fine voice despite the setback.

• The Redmen create chances, but a triple-save by Kepa Arrizabalaga from Sadio Mane, Curtis Jones and Divock Origi with the score at 1-0 proves to be important. Adrian also makes a couple of outstanding saves while Chelsea hit the crossbar twice, but despite the arrival of Roberto Firmino and Mo Salah from the bench there's no way back for Liverpool.

• "Losing 2-0 is not good, but in this case it's relatively easy to explain," reflects manager Jürgen Klopp afterwards. "We made two massive mistakes around the goals. Tonight, it was not bad. I liked the reaction. I liked the way we played. There was some good stuff."

GOALS: Willian (13), Barkley (64).

LINE-UP (4-2-3-1): Arrizabalaga, Azpilicueta (C), Rudiger, Zouma, Alonso, Gilmour, Kovacic (Mount 42), Willian (Jorginho 51), Barkley, Pedro, Giroud (James 90). Subs not used: Caballero, Batshuayi, Tomori, Anjorin.

LINE-UP (4-3-3): Adrian, Williams, Gomez, van Dijk (C), Robertson, Lallana (Salah 80), Fabinho, Jones (Milner 70), Mane, Minamino, Origi (Firmino 70). Subs not used: Loneragan, Oxlade-Chamberlain, Matip, Chirivella. Booked: Fabinho, Milner, Mane.
