Cardi B

Kendall Jenner

Is Cardi B wearing anything underneath this Saks Potts trenchcoat? It's unclear. One thing's for sure: The fur-accented topper dresses up Kendall's mom jeans and dad sneakers!

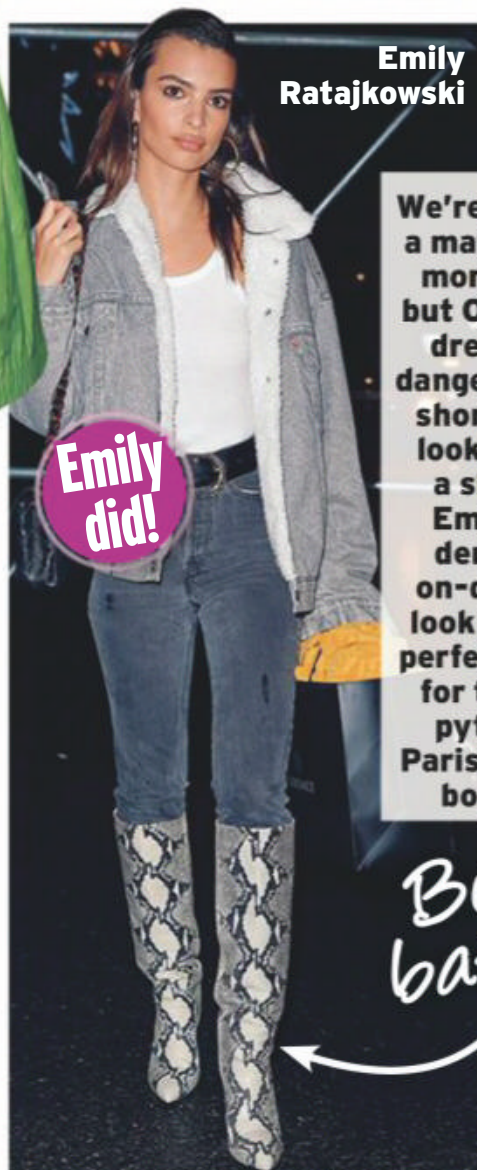

We appreciate the way Chrissy's high pony, hoop earrings and sandals add feminine flair to this Frame jumpsuit. By opting for sneakers, Mandy's version doesn't have the same sartorial balance.

Hollywood's HOTTEST NEW WORKOUT

Get ready to row your way to A-list shape at Health House!

Los Angeles has plenty of trendy gyms and boutique fitness studios, but there's a new workout in town that's changing the game — and attracting an A-list crowd. Founded by former athlete and trainer Jon Knopke, Health House is the first-of-its-kind rowing and strength group fitness studio that delivers a full-body burn, torching 2-3x more calories than any other group workout.

FINDING A NEW FITNESS FORMULA

After Knopke suffered an injury several years ago, he knew his intense training would no longer serve him, setting him on a path to create a revolutionary new fitness formula rooted in rowing. Rowing is a high-intensity, low-impact cardio workout that uses 86% of your muscles, allowing you to effectively sweat, shape and sculpt without putting pressure and impact on injury-prone joints. With two class formats — Rip & Row and Ripped, each workout caters to specific muscle groups, helping you achieve your best body ever.

COMMUNITY IS KEY

As if a challenging workout weren't enough, Knopke has curated an optimal environment that goes far beyond fitness, creating a unique experience for everyone. The facility's modern, luxurious layout features best-in-class technology, including digital rowers and a leaderboard that delivers personal analytics, inspiring a little friendly competition.

WHOLE-PICTURE WELLNESS

Health House also provides the best wellness products on the market, allowing members to tap into their full potential. Hemp Hydrate, known for its delicious, purified hemp-infused water, is one of Knopke's essentials, aiding him in both natural hydration and efficient recovery. Most recently Knopke chooses from his go-to brand the new CBD Muscle + Joint Relief Roll-

On, to calm inflammation and ease his sore muscles after a tough Health House workout. It's all natural and contains 200mg of CBD and is both gluten, and paraben-free — ideal for the health-conscious L.A. fit crowd. Sold right at the counter of their popular Wellness Bar, Hemp Hydrate's CBD Muscle + Joint Relief Roll-On has become of must-have of both Knopke and members looking to maximize their well-being.

SECOND CHANCE OF THE WEEK

Is Hannah the Next Bachelorette?!

Eight months after her painful split from lying fiancé Jed Wyatt and then being friend-zoned by runner-up Tyler Cameron, Bachelorette Hannah Brown is still very much single — and just as popular with Bachelor Nation as ever. So with current Bachelor Peter Weber's contestants not earning much fan support, many viewers are hoping Hannah Beast will be unleashed again for the next season of the reality show! "ABC loves Hannah so they could easily give her a second chance," says a source. "It would be a win-win for the network." Still, the former Miss Alabama, 25, is playing coy. "I don't know if I would do it again right now," she said in a recent interview. "I don't need a man; I want a man. I'm just learning to be patient." But dating apps haven't worked out: In a Feb. 17 Instagram story, Hannah revealed that she's been on the waiting list for celebrity hookup site Raya "for months now! Christian Mingle, here I come. [But] I may not be allowed on Christian Mingle at this point," the Dancing With the Stars champ, who had sex with Peter four times in a windmill, joked. In the meantime, Hannah's got an interesting plan: "Sitting at a coffee shop just waiting for somebody to happen," she said. "I'm having hope...that somebody is just going to show up." Good luck with that!

Orlando MISSPELLS His Son's Name

Orlando Bloom needs to send out an SOS. "New tattoo, can you guess who?" the actor posted on Instagram on Feb. 11, showing off fresh ink featuring the date and time of his son Flynn's birth, along with a line of dots and dashes meant to spell out the 9-year-old's name in Morse code. But as fans quickly pointed out, one dot is missing, and the tat actually spells "Frynn." Oops! A week later, the actor, 43, fixed the error. "Finally dot it right!" Orlando posted with a new pic on Feb. 19. "How do you make a mistake like that? #pinterestfail (read the small print)."

CRIB OF THE WEEK

DEMI'S AMAZING MANSION

Demi Lovato is saying goodbye to her Hollywood Hills home. She first put it on the market for $9.5 million in September 2018, two months after her opioid overdose. Now she's slashed the price by $500,000. The three-story modern mansion sits behind private gates right above celeb hot spot Chateau Marmont. But Demi's digs were bad luck for her from the start: Shortly after she purchased it in 2016, damage from a mudslide briefly rendered it unsafe to enter!

ROBERT PATTINSON

"I got a job at a car wash. I wanted to change myself so that people would not be able to recognize me for the whole shoot. And it worked," the Batman star, 33, says of working on 2017's Good Time.

CONSTANCE WU

She didn't just play a stripper for her role opposite Jennifer Lopez in Hustlers – she became one! "I gave lap dances to strangers. I made 600 bucks my first night," the actress, 37, recently revealed.

METHODACTORS OF THE WEEK

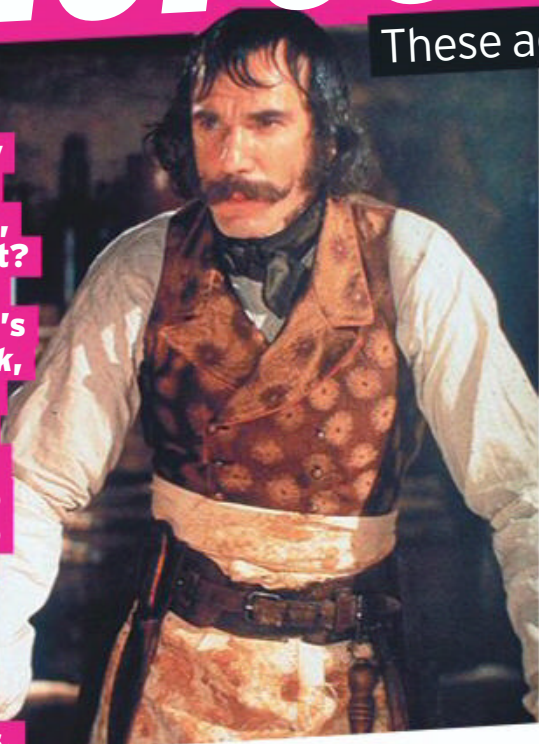

Undercover Stars!

These actors worked 'regular' jobs to get into character

DANIEL DAY-LEWIS

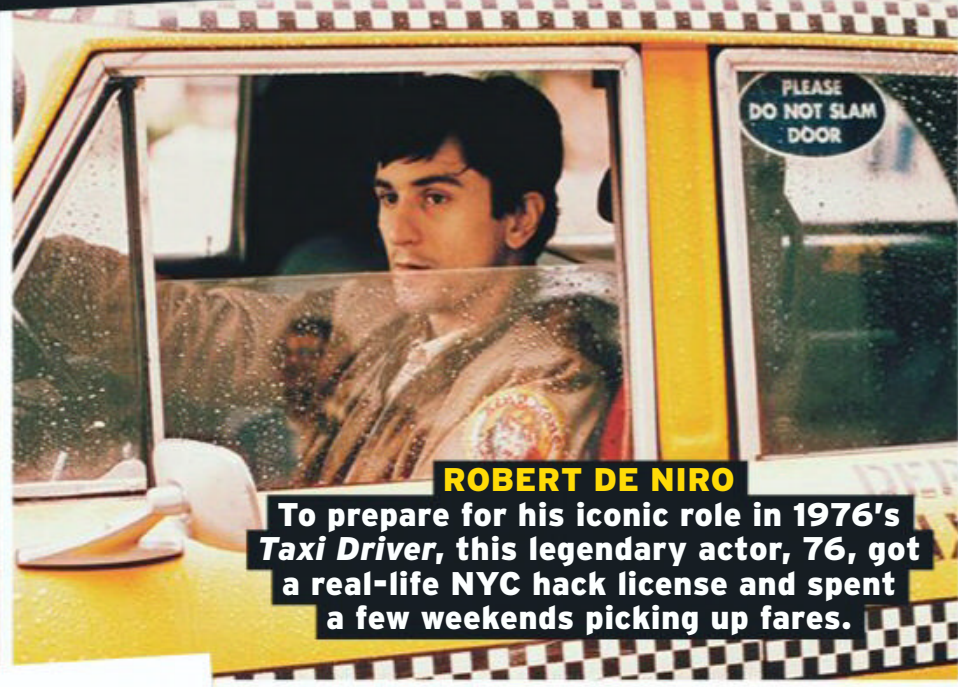

Among the many wild things this Oscar winner, 62, has done for a part?

To play "Bill the Butcher" in 2002's Gangs of New York, he worked as an apprentice at a butcher shop for several weeks so he could learn to gut carcasses "sufficiently well...as if you've known [how] for a lifetime," he says.

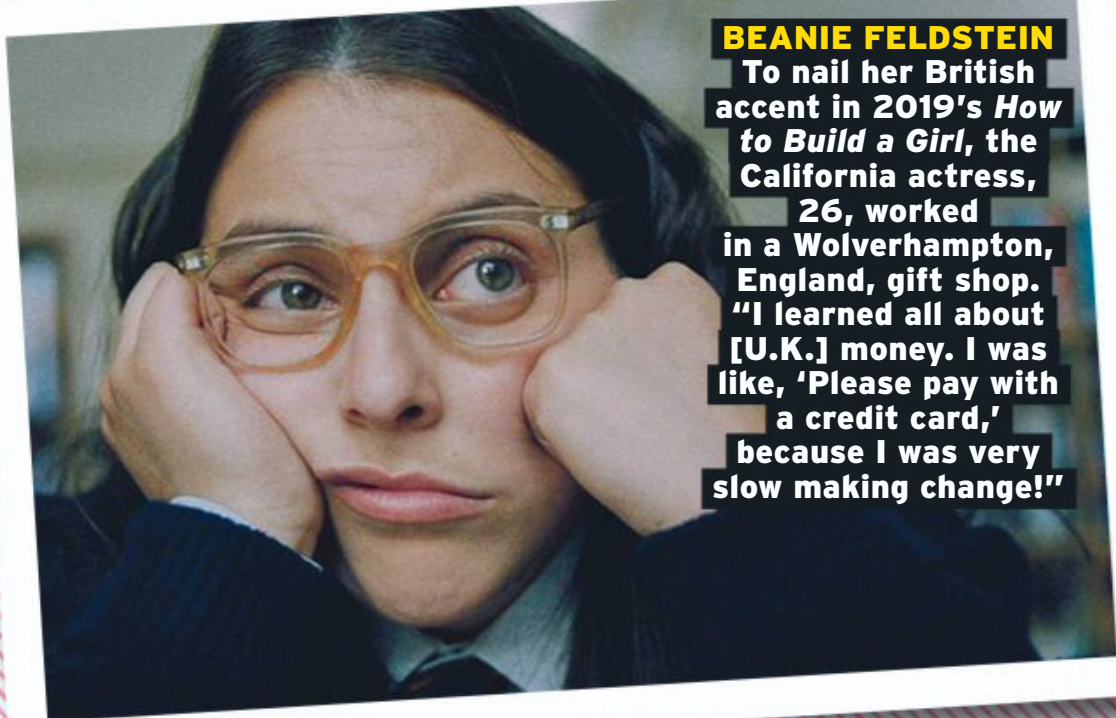

ROBERT DE NIRO

To prepare for his iconic role in 1976's Taxi Driver, this legendary actor, 76, got a real-life NYC hack license and spent a few weekends picking up fares.

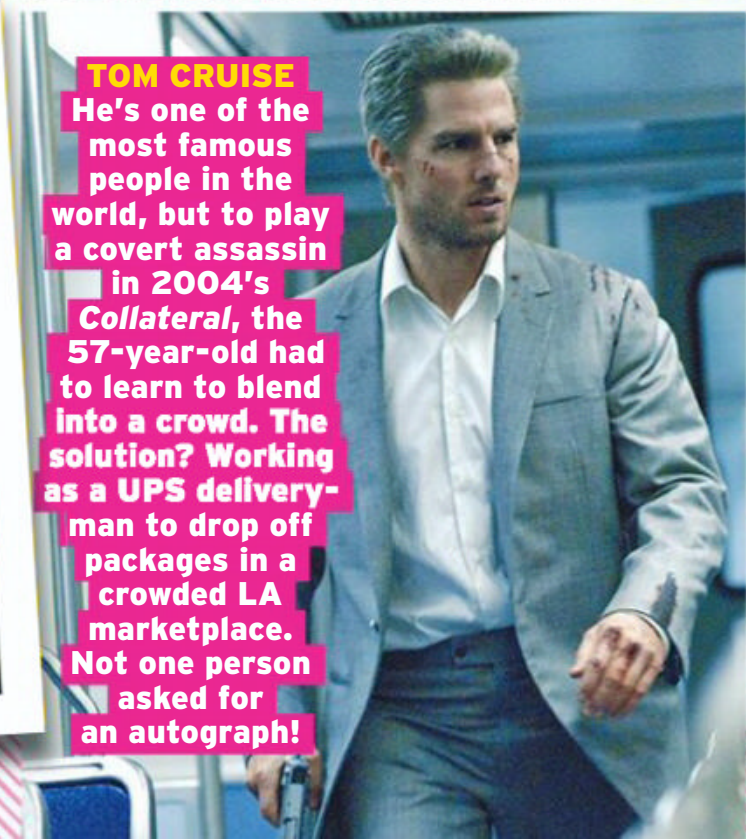

BEANIE FELDSTEIN

To nail her British accent in 2019's How to Build a Girl, the California actress, 26, worked in a Wolverhampton, England, gift shop. "I learned all about [U.K.] money. I was like, 'Please pay with a credit card,' because I was very slow making change!"

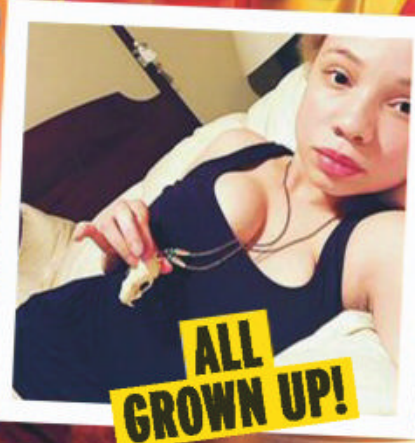

TOM CRUISE

He's one of the most famous people in the world, but to play a covert assassin in 2004's Collateral, the 57-year-old had to learn to blend into a crowd. The solution? Working as a UPS deliveryman to drop off packages in a crowded LA marketplace. Not one person asked for an autograph!

SHOCK OF THE WEEK
STEVEN'S DAUGHTER
MAKES
DEBUT

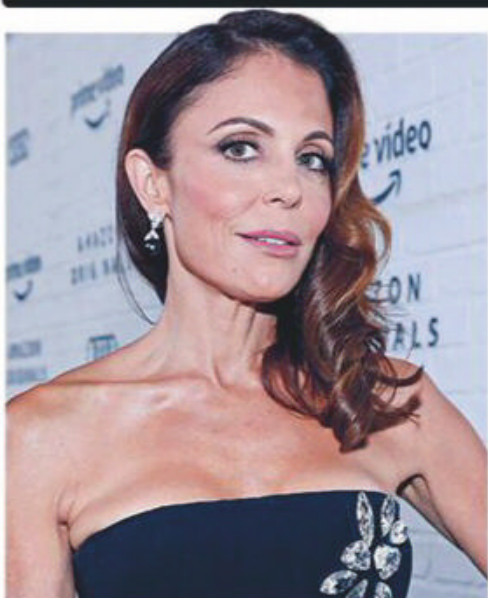

No one can accuse Steven Spielberg and Kate Capshaw's daughter Mikaela of nepotism! Instead of asking her dad to cast her in his next blockbuster, the 23-year-old is forging her own way – in the adult film industry. "I got really tired of not being able to capitalize on my body," Mikaela said of her decision to perform in solo porn videos (meaning she won't have any on-screen close encounters with others). When she phoned home to tell her parents about her new career, they were "intrigued," claims Mikaela. "More like horrified," says a source. "What parent would be happy to hear that? But Steven and Kate are cool, so I'm sure they've come around."

CONNOR OBROCHTA

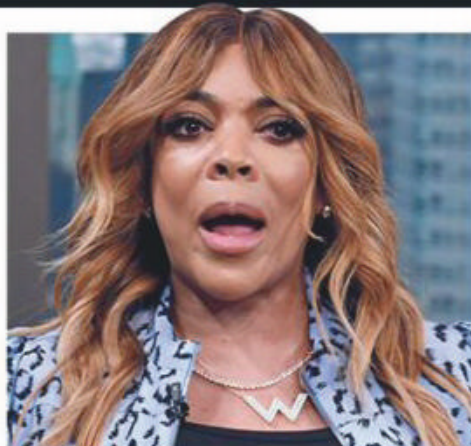

No wonder he's comfortable showing so much skin! "I stay in shape by keeping my mind and body dedicated to living a healthy lifestyle," says the 27-year-old Bachelor Nation star and face of Krisana Vigus' skincare line.

WINNER OF THE WEEK

BETHENNY FRANKEL

The former RHONY star is set to host her own business competition show on HBO Max.

LOSER OF THE WEEK

WENDY WILLIAMS

The talk show host is slammed for joking "Come on down" after Price Is Right host Drew Carey's former fiancée, Amie Harwick, is pushed off a balcony to her death.

Oh, Omega-3

Buzzworthy and Good For You. Where to Get Your Omega-3s

Omega-3 fatty acids have various benefits for both your body and brain. Not only does your body need these fatty acids to function, but they also deliver some big health benefits.

Herring

Cold-smoked, pickled, or precooked, smoked herring is a popular breakfast food in countries like England, where it's served with eggs and called "kippers".

Anchovies

Rollled around capers, stuffed in olives or used as a pizza or salad topping, this tiny little fish, with its strong taste, adds flavor to many dishes and sauces.

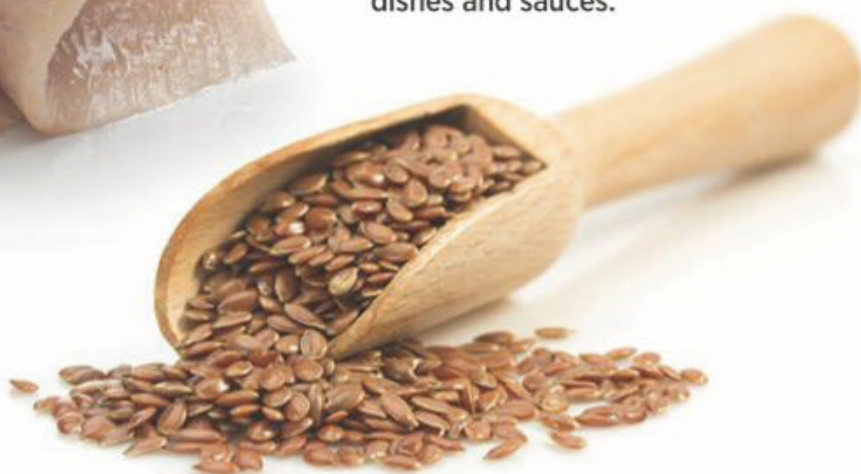

Salmon

One of the most nutrient-rich foods on the planet, salmon is a great choice for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Flaxseeds

Toss them on your salad, add them to your shakes, flaxseeds are often ground, milled or made into an oil.

UNDER PRESSURE

"Meghan's recent actions have left Kate fuming. She could snap any minute," says an insider.

"The way the queen sees the situation with Meghan and Harry is you're either in or you're out," says a source. "William agrees."

Kate & Meghan

FACE-TO

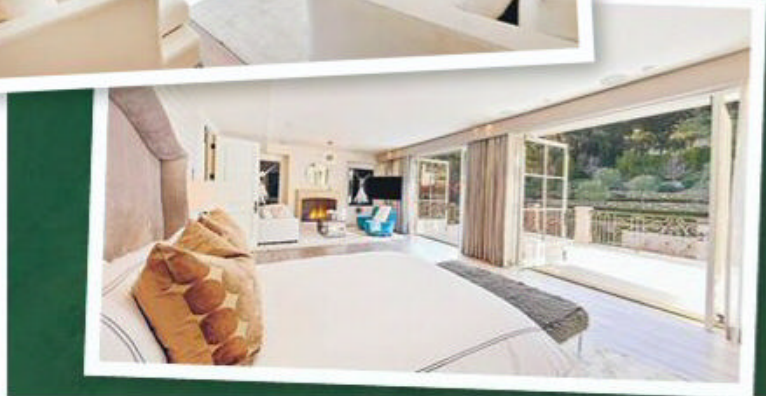

The end is in sight. In late February, the palace revealed that March 31 will be the last day that Prince Harry and Meghan Markle will be considered senior members of the royal family following their bombshell January announcement that they were quitting in hopes of living a financially independent life. But first, the palace confirmed, the couple would be returning to Britain for a final run of events, ranging from Harry's Feb. 28 Invictus Games Choir recording session with Jon Bon Jovi to Meghan's March 8 International Women's Day celebration, plus a few more outings in between — not to mention, a palace insider confirms, more crisis talks about their future. It's all leading up to the main event: the

Their $7 Million Malibu Dream Home?

The Sussexes are currently renting a $14 million mansion on Canada's Vancouver Island. But a new report reveals they're eyeing a $7 million home in Malibu. The eight-bedroom, 12,249-square-foot property on 1.75 acres has a theater, pool, tennis court and wine cellar and is owned by stars David Charvet and estranged wife Brooke Burke, who've been renting it out.

Commonwealth Day service at Westminster Abbey on March 9, where they'll join the queen and the rest of Harry's relatives, including his brother, Prince William, and William's wife, Kate Middleton.

It's going to be one hell of a reunion. While the palace has previously confirmed that Harry, 35, and William, 37, have had to see each other amid contentious "Megxit" talks, Commonwealth Day marks the first time in four months that Kate and Meghan, both 38, will be required to publicly step out together. "Tensions have been brewing between the duchesses for years," says the insider. "The queen's panicking over fears that Kate and Meghan are ticking time bombs. After everything that's happened, it's almost inevitable that there will be an explosive final showdown between the women when they finally come face-to-face in London."

COMING TO A HEAD

The latest drama has been building for weeks. This round began when the queen asked Harry and Meghan to return to the U.K. from Canada, where they've been renting a home with 9-month-old son Archie since late 2019. "The queen desperately wants her family to put on a united front and save face," explains the insider. However, "Meghan didn't bother to confirm her attendance until the last minute, after Harry eventually talked her around. And she was in a foul mood about it."

That pushed some buttons. "Kate is already offended by the way Meghan constantly breaks royal protocol, and she's taking the insult to the queen very personally," says the insider, adding that the Duchess of Cambridge has been driven to tears, especially because Meghan's friends cry "bullying" every time she's criticized. "Kate wants to scream at Meghan and tell her what everyone thinks — that she's a gold-digging liar and is only after money and fame!"

Meghan is prepared to fight back.

“Seeing the royals again and being surrounded by Harry’s family right now is Meghan’s idea of hell,” says the insider. “She doesn’t have much to lose by laying her cards on the table. She could do the unthinkable and bring up William’s reported cheating scandal with Kate’s friend Rose Hanbury — which was hardly a blip for the royals, and meanwhile she’s being treated like the worst thing that’s ever happened to the monarchy.” She’s also annoyed by how everyone’s circled the wagons around disgraced Prince Andrew even though the Duke of York is in the midst of a sex trafficking scandal involving his old friend, late convicted pedophile financier Jeffrey Epstein, “which many people think is far worse than Meghan and Harry deciding to step back from the royal family.” (The pair made their point by declining the invitation to Andrew’s 60th birthday party on Feb. 19.)

THROWING SHADE

It doesn’t help that Meghan didn’t get everything she wanted in the “Megxit” deal. “She’s been complaining about how she and Harry can no longer use the ‘Sussex Royal’ name they planned to trademark or even the word ‘royal’ in any of their branding,” notes the insider, a decision the palace publicly confirmed on Feb. 21. In an extraordinary statement released on their soon-to-be-renamed SussexRoyal.com website on Feb. 21, the couple said they’d agreed not to use the word “royal” in any of their branding either in or outside of Britain after March 31 — but also made a point to add that the queen doesn’t have “any jurisdiction” over “the use of the word ‘royal’ overseas.” Meghan, says the insider, “wants the queen to know that despite all their efforts to control her and Harry, she’ll never give up her title.”

William was stunned by the pair’s lack of humility — and the animosity will likely lead to more crisis talks surrounding the arrangement, which is set to be reevaluated in a year. “Harry made some pretty outrageous demands,” the insider says of his requests, ranging from continuing to receive free security from the Metropolitan Police (which the palace has not agreed to yet) to getting an allowance from his father, Prince Charles. “But the way William sees it, Harry shouldn’t get a penny from the royals after he leaves,” says the insider, even if it is from Charles’ personal fortune. “William thinks Harry’s been brainwashed and wants his father to cut off his brother’s allowance altogether so that he can get a taste of what it’s really like to be financially independent.”

All the drama is really taking a toll on Harry’s mental health. “Just a few years ago, he was incredibly close to his family, and now he has to defend the love of his life against them,” says the insider, noting that this trip will mark the end of the era for the spare heir and his controversial American wife. “While Meghan just wants to tell Kate what she really thinks of her and get it over with, he’s more conflicted. He’s being forced to give up everything he knows — his goodbye to the queen is bound to be especially emotional.” ■

MEGHAN HAS A TWIN!

Passengers on JetBlue have been doing a royal double-take in recent years: One of the airline’s flight attendants, Christine Mathis of New Jersey, 32, says she’s stopped at least 10 times a day and told she looks like Meghan. “I started getting mistaken for Meghan years ago when I worked in first class — passengers would stop me and say I looked like ‘that girl from Suits,’” the married mother of one has said, explaining why she finally decided to start moonlighting as a professional Duchess of Sussex look-alike. “People are so convinced that I am actually Meghan that I thought why not see if I can get some jobs pretending to be her?”

The Heartbreaking Goodbye

The city of Los Angeles mourns the loss of an icon and his beloved daughter in a star-studded memorial service

"This was one of his favorite songs," said Beyoncé before performing "XO." "I want us to do it all together, and I want you to sing it so loud that he hears the love. Are you ready? I love you."

Vanessa, who's filed a wrongful death lawsuit against the company that owned the helicopter, gave a eulogy in front of stars like Shaquille O'Neal, Kanye West, Kim and Khloé Kardashian and Kris Jenner. "He was my everything," she said of Kobe.

TEAMMATES FOREVER

Jennifer Lopez, who came with fiancé Alex Rodriguez, cried as a grieving Vanessa said, "I'll never get to see my baby girl walk down the aisle, have a father-daughter dance...or have babies of her own."

ALICIA PLAYED BEETHOVEN

Jimmy Kimmel urged fans to be grateful for "the time we have left with each other."

There wasn't a dry eye in the House That Kobe Built. Hollywood and sports' biggest names including Beyoncé and Jay-Z, Jennifer Lopez and Alex Rodriguez, Dwyane Wade and Gabrielle Union, Jimmy Kimmel, Christina Aguilera, Alicia Keys, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and more joined Kobe Bryant's family and fans inside LA's Staples Center on Feb. 24 to honor the 41-year-old NBA great and his 13-year-old daughter, Gianna, nearly a month after they and seven others were killed in a tragic Jan. 26 helicopter crash. But while there were some moments of laughter and levity during the public memorial dubbed "A Celebration of Life" — like when Kobe's idol and close friend Michael Jordan, through streaming tears, quipped that Kobe had turned him into "another crying meme" — deep sorrow dominated what was a heartbreaking goodbye. Vanessa, 37, who comforted daughters Natalia, 17, and Bianca, 3 (Capri, 8 months, wasn't seen on camera), left the audience heartbroken as she eulogized her "baby girl" and her "soul-mate...God knew they couldn't be on this [earth] without each other," Vanessa said. "He had to bring them home to have them together. Babe, you take care of our Gigi." ■

HOLLYWOOD POLI

HAYDEN ATTACKED — AGAIN!

They have a disturbing history. Last May, Hayden Panettiere told a police officer that her boyfriend, aspiring actor Brian Hickerson, had repeatedly hit her in the face following another beating a day earlier. He was charged with felony domestic violence — and a judge issued a protective order, forcing the pair to be apart for four months over the summer. But by September, the case was dismissed presumably after Hayden, 30, refused to testify, and she later insisted their relationship has “always been OK. There was never a problem. Everything’s good.”

But it may not be. Brian, 30, was arrested again — this time in Wyoming on Valentine’s Day. According to the Teton County Sheriff’s Office, Brian, who had allegedly been drinking, punched his girlfriend of 18 months “with a closed fist on the right side of her face” during an argument. (He was charged with domestic battery and released on bail.) “Hayden’s family fears for her life,” says a source. “She’s cut them off after she cut off her friends months ago. They’re genuinely scared after hearing that Brian attacked her again.”

They want her to leave him. “Hayden and Brian are toxic. Her loved ones believe she’s broken in so many ways and has become dependent on him,” explains the source, adding that “things escalate and get out of control often, beyond the violence. It’s a terrible relationship.”

Three horrific crimes have left the entertainment world reeling

DREW'S EX-FIANCÉE MURDERED

The murder rocked Hollywood. On Feb. 15, cops were called to the home of marriage and family therapist Amie Harwick – who had been engaged to The Price Is Right host Drew Carey until they amicably ended their relationship in late 2018 – and found her body beneath a third-story balcony with injuries consistent with a fall. The coroner ruled her death a homicide and confirmed there was also “evidence of manual strangulation.” Hours later, cops arrested her ex-boyfriend, photographer Gareth Pursehouse, 41, and he’s now facing the death penalty. Reports revealed that the New Sex Bible for Women author, 38, had two restraining orders against him that had expired – and that she’d expressed concern after he saw her at a January awards show. “I’m so broken up. Amie and I had a love that people are lucky to have once in a lifetime,” a grieving Drew said after her death. “[She was] a beautiful person who didn’t deserve to die like she did.”

HARRY MUGGED

Harry Styles might not love Valentine’s Day after this, and who could blame him? The music star, 26, was mugged in London’s Hampstead area on Feb. 14 just before midnight. According to reports, a man armed with a knife approached the singer and demanded money – which Harry calmly handed over, though he was understandably shaken up afterward. The city’s Metropolitan Police confirmed that a report about the robbery was made the next day, but no arrests were made. Hours later, the former *One Direction*er was hit with another shock: His ex-girlfriend, TV host Caroline Flack, died by suicide on Feb. 15. “Harry was so heartbroken to hear about her death,” says a source. “It was a traumatic few days for him.”

LOOKING BACK

"I wish I could go back and change all kinds of things, but I can't," he says of his failed marriage.

DEVOTED DAD

His experience has "taught me how important it is for me to be sober now during these formative years for my kids," says Ben, with (from left) Violet, Seraphina, Jen and Sam.

Why Ben Really Drank: MY MARRIAGE WAS Falli

In revealing interviews about his struggle with alcoholism, Ben Affleck admits his biggest regret is losing Jennifer Garner

For years, Ben Affleck thought he could control his addiction. After a 2001 stint in rehab, the Oscar-winning actor, director and producer says he “drank relatively normally for a long time.” But soon his dependency became evident again, leading to additional rehab stays in 2017 and 2018. “I started to drink every day,” he admitted in one of a series of raw and candid recent interviews, in which he also revealed that many people in his family, including his father, struggled with addiction. “I would drink until I passed out on the couch. It was really hard for me to accept that that meant I was an alcoholic.”

But the hardest part was realizing what he’d done to his marriage. The actor revealed that his excessive imbibing grew out of control as his 10-year union to Jennifer Garner, 47, crumbled in 2015. (They separated that year and finalized their divorce in 2018.) “I started drinking more and more when my marriage was falling apart. My drinking, of course, created more marital problems,” said Ben, 47, adding that his split from Jen is the “biggest regret of my life. I never thought I was going to get divorced. I didn’t want to get divorced. I really didn’t want to be a split family. It was so painful and disappointing.”

JEN WAS HIS ROCK

He blames himself entirely, and thanks Jen, with whom he shares Violet, 14, Seraphina, 11, and Samuel, 8, “for being thoughtful, considerate, responsible and a great mom and person.” And while they’ve worked to find a positive way to co-parent, a source says he’ll never stop wishing they could still be married. “She was always there for him, no matter what,” the source notes of Jen, who even drove him to rehab in 2018, while he was still visibly intoxicated. “She was his tower of strength — even after they broke up. If he could turn back time and change certain things he would.”

Jen wasn’t expecting him to be so honest. “She was both surprised and touched,” says the source. “She’s happy he’s admitted to his mistakes and proud of Ben for cleaning up his act.” But Jen, who has moved on with tech entrepreneur John Miller, 41, has no desire to revisit their tumultuous relationship, where they clashed over everything from personalities (she’s disciplined, he’s not) to interests (he gambles, she doesn’t). “Giving their marriage another shot,” says the source, “is the last thing on her mind.”

That won’t stop Ben from being the best man he can be. “I have certainly made mistakes,” he said. “But you’ve got to pick yourself up, learn from it [and] try to move forward.” ■

J. Lo & Shakira: HOW WE GOT OUR BEST BO

NO PAIN, NO GAIN

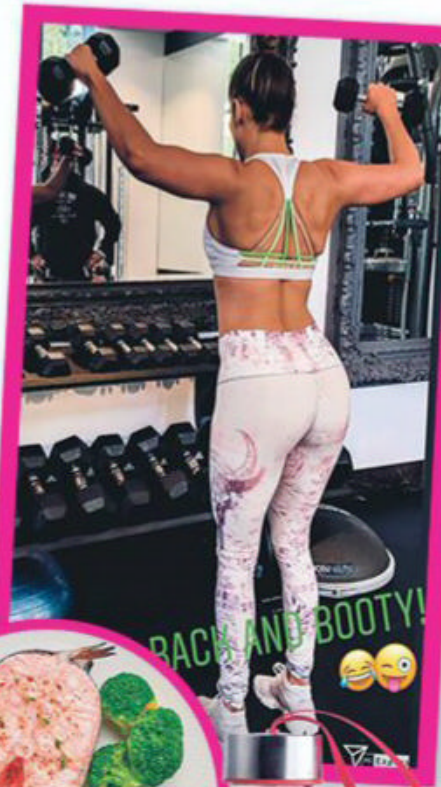

The secret to Jennifer Lopez's amazing physique (hello, 8-pack!) is consistency, but to prep for her jaw-dropping Super Bowl gig on Feb. 2, she added some extra intensity and reps to her already-grueling sweat sessions and ate exceptionally clean. "She put a lot of time and effort into making sure her performance was incredible," says a source. Mission accomplished!

HER EXERCISE REGIMEN:

Before the big day, the 50-year-old mom of two hit the gym every day and focused on her butt, back and biceps with her NYC-based trainer, David Kirsch. "She was very disciplined," he says. Go-to moves included seated leg extensions, Romanian dead lifts (using a barbell), butterfly curls and, of course, squats.

HER DIET: It's been mainly lean proteins like chicken, turkey and salmon and veggies. And tons of water.

WELL-DESERVED SPLURGE: After the show, Jennifer (who famously did a 10-day no-sugar challenge last year) had a major craving. "They said if I did good I could have a doughnut," she said on her way back to her trailer. "Give me a doughnut!"

UR DIES EVER

DANCING QUEEN

In the months leading up to the much-hyped halftime show, Colombian singer Shakira exercised six days a week (sometimes twice a day!) with her longtime trainer, Anna Kaiser, founder of the dance-based fitness studio chain AKT. She also cut out extra dairy and sugary foods – and screen time! Kaiser had Shakira keep her phone off until after their morning workouts.

HER EXERCISE REGIMEN: They mixed things up in the gym, alternating between dance-based interval training and cardio and toning moves. "Dancing," says Kaiser, "is a great way to move in a proportionate way, so you don't overdevelop any muscles. You'll look like a long, lean, strong version of you." On her day off, the mom of two stayed active with family-friendly hikes and bike rides.

HER DIET: Kaiser has Shakira, 43, eat small meals throughout the day. Breakfast is eggs or avocado with olive oil, tomato and sea salt; lunch is a salad; a snack is soup; and dinner is fresh fish with veggies.

WELL-DESERVED SPLURGE: "Within 10 minutes of being offstage, she was in ripped jeans and a T-shirt with her family and friends eating cake," reports Kaiser of Shakira's post-performance vibes. "She was reveling in the moment."

For the second time in just two days, Adele had a major meltdown in public. On Feb. 15, the singer was photographed in a rage, yelling and flipping off photographers after a friend's wedding in London. The dramatic scene came not long after she was seen screaming at someone on her phone at Heathrow Airport on Feb. 13. And according to an insider, the stress over her split from Simon Konecki, 45, her partner of seven years, is what has the singer, 31, in a sad spiral. Five months after filing for divorce, "they've been butting heads about custody [of son Angelo, 7] and money," says the insider. "She's writing songs and looks great with her amazing weight loss, but Adele won't be truly happy until she and Simon work everything out. They're definitely not even close yet."

JOE GORGA SLAMS JOE GIUDICE

Good riddance! That's how Joe Gorga feels about his sister Teresa's soon-to-be ex, Joe Giudice, being deported to Italy. Gorga, 40, says the Real Housewives of New Jersey star, 47, is better off without her husband of 20 years. "The way he spoke to her and the way he treated her...he put her through hell," Gorga recently told In Touch at his stand-up show, The Real Italians of Comedy, at West Nyack Levity Live in West Nyack, N.Y. So how is Teresa holding up since leaving "Juicy Joe," 47? "There are days I speak to her and she's happy, and others where she's depressed and sad. It's tough." Gorga reveals he's unfollowed and blocked the 47-year-old felon on Instagram. "I keep myself away from toxic people."

PETE VOWS TO WIN KAIYA BACK!

Fresh off his reported stint in rehab in Arizona, Pete Davidson, 26, is on a mission to win back his supermodel girlfriend, Kaia Gerber, 18. "He wants a second chance," a source tells In Touch. "He even wants to marry her and will probably propose!" Their relationship blew up in January shortly before news of Pete's trip to rehab became public. Kaia was "devastated," says the source, but her famous parents, Cindy Crawford, 54, and Rande Gerber, 57, "were relieved, and figured that was the end of that." Not so fast, says Pete. "He wants to see Kaia again – and from what I hear she's open to seeing him again," says the source. "He sought help for his mental health, and that goes a long way with her. She really fell for him. But she's confused because part of her feels one thing and another part of her hears her parents telling her not to go back." For now, she's agreed to meet up with him, adds the source: "It's either going to be a positive reunion – or closure for Kaia and more heartbreak for Pete."

JOE'S PAMPERING PREGNANT SOPHIE

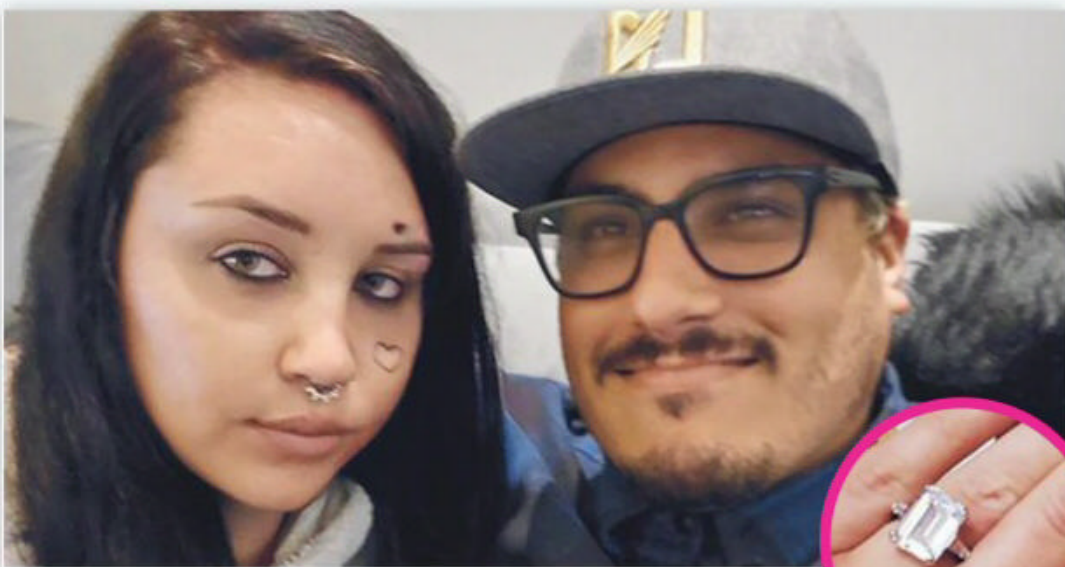

He wants her to enjoy every moment. Following the news that newlyweds Joe Jonas and Sophie Turner will welcome their first child over the summer, a source tells In Touch that the music star, 30, is doting on the Game of Thrones actress, 24. "He's always treated Sophie like a princess, but now more than ever. It's romantic trips, pampering sessions, and when she's tired, he'll take charge of the grocery shopping and run errands," says the source. Joe's also excited to help design nurseries in their NYC apartment and new $14.1 million mansion in LA's Encino neighborhood. "They can't wait to become parents."

Jenna's ENGAGED!

He put a ring on it! After nearly a year-and-a-half of dating – and just weeks before she's due to deliver their baby – Jenna Dewan, 39, and Tony winner Steve Kazee, 44, announced their engagement on Feb. 18. "Steve says he found his dream girl in her, and he treats her like gold – her daughter, Everly [6, with ex-husband Channing Tatum], too," says an insider. Jenna posted a photo on Instagram of Steve proposing on one knee during her recent baby shower with an oval diamond ring from actress pal Nikki Reed's BaYou With Love sustainable jewelry brand and called it "one of the best days of my life." Congrats!

Fears for Amanda

Barely a month after debuting a face tattoo, troubled former child star Amanda Bynes showed off another big surprise on Instagram on Valentine's Day: an engagement ring from Paul Michael, whom she calls "tha [sic] love of my life." Amanda, 33, reportedly met the 20-something from LA recently in Alcoholics Anonymous. But friends fear Amanda – who in 2013 suffered a very public breakdown marked by mental health and drug issues – isn't in the right headspace to be getting married. "And Paul isn't the right guy for her," claims a source. "The ring's not even real!"

Luke Bryan has experienced more than his fair share of tragedy. When he was 19, his older brother was killed in a car crash, and in 2007 his sister, Kelly, died of unexplained causes. When her widowed husband passed away in 2014, Luke, 43, and wife Caroline, 40 — who share sons Bo, 11, and Tate, 9 — took in Kelly's three children, Jordan, 24, Kris, 20, and Til, 17. "We never thought twice about it," Caroline has said of suddenly becoming parents to teenagers. Now that the blended family of seven has settled into a groove — Luke gives Caroline the credit for keeping them afloat amid all the turmoil — the country singer says he and his college sweetheart have a little more space to enjoy each other's company. "Keeping a relationship fun is critical," says the Georgia native, who returned for Season 3 of American Idol alongside fellow judges Katy Perry and Lionel Richie on Feb. 16. "Life gets busy and you get into a funk, but we've gotten better at communicating." Here, Luke opens up to In Touch's Amanda Champagne Meadows about his wife's sacrifices, mentoring young contestants — and keeping his chin up.

Is your wife your biggest source of support?

LB: Being a wife or a spouse of somebody in entertainment is a big sacrifice. The logistics of talking to five children a day, dealing with the responsibilities of our kids — it's amazing to behold. When we first got married she was the breadwinner, and now we're in a whole other phase.

The tables have turned!

LB: I keep promising her that at some point it's going to be her decade where I don't hijack her life.

Many of the kids auditioning for Idol have faced adversity. Do you draw on your own experiences to mentor them?

LB: I see myself in some of these kids. You just have to try to help them through their struggles. The show is an outlet. It's fun and positive and exciting and a way to help their family heal.

What advice do you give them?

LB: You just have to wake up every day and go, "I've had unfortunate things in my life, but I just have to trust in God's plan."

Was work your outlet?

LB: My career has been a bright spot and a blessing. I've had so many wonderful moments with my family because of my success.

Despite everything you've been through, you seem to have a really positive attitude.

LB: Sometimes life gets me down. I'll be on the road with a sinus infection or a pipe bursts in the house. And it never fails: I'll do a meet and greet with a kid from Make-a-Wish and think, "You idiot! What are you complaining about?!" and I just try to keep it real and appreciate every day. ■

A Parade of Pink!

Take cues from the stars and perk up your winter wardrobe with hot hues of fuchsia and magenta

Hollywood's hottest are getting a head start on one of the biggest trends this coming season: hot pink! As seen on the spring/summer 2020 runway (see Gigi Hadid, at right), this ultra-feminine shade is definitely no wallflower. While we often reach for black, navy and gray during colder months, an unexpected pop of pink instantly grabs attention. For extra punch, pair your vibrant look with a bold lip – à la Little Women star Florence Pugh's bright red choice – or opt for a head-to-toe monochrome vibe like Lucy Hale. Then get ready to spring forward in style!

THE ONLY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE YOU'LL NEED

WHAT A RIDE!

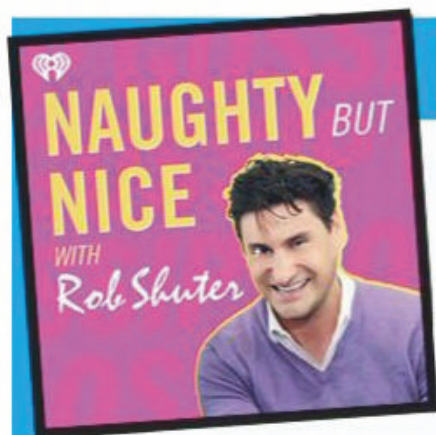

Fresh out of prison after serving a five-year term, ex-cop Spenser (Mark Wahlberg) vows to leave Boston forever. Not so fast: His former boxing coach (Alan Arkin) wants him to help him train an MMA fighter, Hawk (Winston Duke) — and Spenser's bawdy ex-girlfriend (Iliza Shlesinger, leaning on the “Bawstin” accent) would also like a word with him. But when some of Spenser's former cop colleagues are murdered, this motley crew teams up to investigate.

Oh, and there's also a brawl set to Neil Diamond's “Sweet Caroline” and a scene-stealing turn from Post Malone as an inmate who's not Spenser's biggest fan. Taking punches as well as he throws them, Wahlberg gives author Robert B. Parker's classic character (played by Robert Urich on the 1980s TV series Spenser: For Hire) a rollicking reintroduction in an action-comedy that should start a film franchise.

I cried...

AH: When I saw our baby boy, Maddox, holding his little sister, Zaia. It's those moments that you remember forever as a parent!

I reorganized...

PAUL LANDER:

“Miley Cyrus walked the runway at Marc Jacobs wearing a bra as a top. I’m shocked they actually got Miley to wear a bra.”

JIMMY FALLON:

“Crocs has teamed up with KFC to make fried chicken-inspired clog shoes. Not sure if the term ‘clog’ refers to your shoes or your arteries.”

JOE TOPLYN:

“Actor Jussie Smollett faces new charges of lying to the police about being attacked. Apparently for Valentine’s Day, he told the police he was shot with an arrow by a chubby little guy with wings and a diaper.”

STEPHEN COLBERT:

“An Ohio minister wants to sue the NFL because the Super Bowl halftime show made him horny.

I hope he means this year’s halftime with Jennifer Lopez and Shakira, because I’d hate to think he was aroused by Left Shark.”

SETH MEYERS:

“The 2020 Oscars were the lowest-rated in the show’s history. Hell, Martin Scorsese was there, and even he didn’t watch!”

DAVID SPADE:

“A purse valued at $23,000 was stolen from Gwyneth Paltrow’s Goop store in NYC. Surveillance video showed a man open the display case and just take it and walk out. Luckily, the $12,000 loofah is safe behind the counter.”
