Madeleine wrote to us to tell her story of how Blue Berry™ has impacted her quality of life and helped her enjoy her favorite hobby: painting beautiful landscapes.

Wonderful to have good eyes

“My name is Madeleine. I am retired and live in Montreal. I enjoy spending time in nature, painting beautiful plants and landscapes.

Eyes began to weaken

“As I got older, I got concerned that my eyes would begin to weaken. This would upset me, because I love painting, which is very demanding on the eyes and requires accurate vision.

When I went to my optometrist, he explained to me how eyes can degenerate with age and that the vision unfortunately often gets worse with time.”

Read About Blue Berry™

“Then, in a magazine, I read about a man who had used Blue Berry tablets to maintain his eyesight. In hopes of getting the same results, I bought a box at my local pharmacy, and started the same day. I’ve been taking Blue Berry™ for almost a year, and I’m very happy with the product. I’m painting and my spirits have been lifted.

I’m very happy to have found this product, and recommend it highly to anyone who wants to take good care of their vision.”

THE BIG PICTURE

SCREEN GODDESS

“I don’t have to use my body to seduce, no. I just stand there,” said Ursula Andress, here on the set of her 1965 hit She, in which she played an immortal queen. Shooting in Israel and England suited the Swiss-born star, since “I am always dreaming about traveling.”

JANE SEYMOUR

I'm Grateful for My Life's Challenges

It's difficult to believe that Jane Seymour hasn't lived a charmed life, but the actress insists that like anyone, she's had obstacles to overcome. "I always say that people who excel at something are people who have had a problem when they were younger," Jane, 69, told Closer at the Elton John AIDS Foundation Academy Awards Viewing Party. Jane's troubles began at age 5 when a teacher singled her out. "I was told that I had flat feet and a speech impediment," she recalls. "The two things that I have done in life are the exact opposite: I danced and I play Americans and they roll their R's. [As a child] I couldn't say an R to save my life!" Fifty years after her film debut, Jane is still in demand. "I'm actually booked up with movies till the end of the year," she says. "It is amazing at my age."

"I wanted to be a ballerina. I became an actress by default."

— Jane

She's a proud grandma to six grandchildren.

After four failed marriages, she found happiness with boyfriend David Green.

JANE FONDA

Makes a Big Statement With a Cropped Silver Pixie

THE ACADEMY AWARDS ended with two big surprises this year: The dark horse foreign film Parasite won for best picture, and presenter Jane Fonda debuted her icy new 'do. "Hair had ruled me for many years," the two-time Oscar winner has said, confessing that she always kept hers long and blond to please the men in her life. In going gray, Jane, 82, joins actresses Jamie Lee Curtis, Diane Keaton and Helen Mirren who have all helped make silver tresses hip and stylish.

Going gray also seems in line with Jane's reemergence as a social activist. During one of her "Fire Drill Fridays," a series of protests to raise awareness of climate change, Jane vowed to stop buying new clothing to help halt global warming. True to her word, she rewore her gown from the 2014 Cannes Film Festival to the Oscars and carried her red coat, which she calls "the last article of clothing I will ever buy."

It took Jane's colorist Jack Martin seven hours to create her new silvery tresses.

HEALTH UPDATE

5 Ways to Prevent Coronavirus

ACCORDING TO THE Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the best way to prevent coronavirus infection is to avoid being exposed to the virus. You should also follow these simple steps to stop the spread of respiratory viruses:

- 1. Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60 percent alcohol.
- 2. Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then throw the tissue in the trash.
- 3. Stay home when you are sick and avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- 4. Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands.
- 5. Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

HELLOS & GOODBYES

● ROYAL TREATMENT

The Di is cast! On March 31, Diana: A True Musical Story, a celebration of the life of Princess Diana, opens on Broadway. “To bring Diana to life onstage is obviously a huge privilege,” said actress Jeanna de Waal, 31, who originated the role of the princess at the La Jolla Playhouse in California last year. “[I hope people] leave the theater with an idea of what she did for the world. She made everyone feel special, from the highest person to the lowest-ranking person.”

Now
you see them!

● CASH AND HARRY

It's no trick. As part of its Fine Books and Manuscripts auction on March 6, auction house Bonhams is putting up for bid a pair of items from Harry Houdini that are neither book nor manuscript. Specifically, they're two of the legendary magician's escape traps — one a metal milk jug, the other a black steel crate which was loaned out to the 1953 movie Houdini. It's expected to bring $50,000 to $70,000.

● MAKING A SCENE

But will it be packed to the Gil? With the 20th anniversary of CSI: Crime Scene Investigation coming up in October, CBS is reportedly in talks to revive the long-running police procedural as a limited-event series. While supposedly set once again in Las Vegas, the network hasn't left any clues as to which of the show's slew of characters — including William Petersen's venerable forensic expert Gil Grissom — could appear.

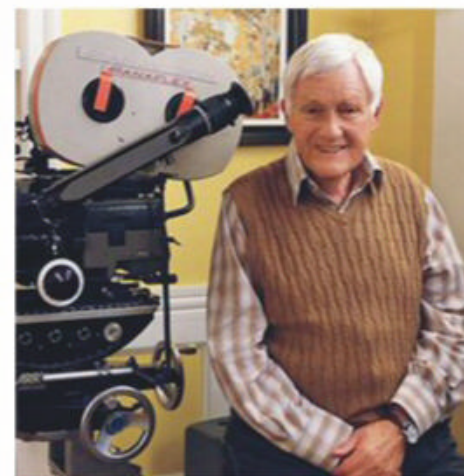

● HOSTESS MOSTEST

Our cupcakes runneth over. Following the successful offerings of Birthday, Mermaid and Unicorn varieties, the bakers at Hostess are serving up three more limited editions of their cream-filled snack treats — Strawberry, Mint Chocolate and Llama, a purple-frosted yellow cake featuring sprinkles both inside and out. Each box contains eight cupcakes and goes for around $3.

● FAREWELLS

Bummed out. On Feb. 6, author Roger Kahn, famous for his '72 ode to the Brooklyn Dodgers, The Boys of Summer, passed away at 92. On Feb. 7, actor and game show fixture Orson Bean (above), best known for playing Loren Bray on Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, died at 91 after being struck by a car in L.A. Finally, dancer and actress Paula Kelly, who starred in Sweet Charity and played public defender Liz on the first season of Night Court, died on Feb. 9. She was 77.

Going Out With Style: Kelly Clarkson

Classy! At the recent Hollywood Beauty Awards, singer and TV host Kelly Clarkson, 37, not only stepped in to accept the Stylist of the Year honor for her stylist Candice Lambert (who had a family emergency) but also offered her own thoughts on the subject. “[I teach my kids] to embrace who they are and whatever fashion they love and rock that...it's what sets them apart and that's how Candice is,” Kelly said. “She really leans into who I am as a person and sometimes I'm uncomfortable. But aren't we all?”

Introducing ZOOMER!

The portable, folding, battery-powered chair that offers easy one-handed operation

Remember when you were a child and got your first bicycle? I do. It gave me a sense of independence... I felt like I could go anywhere, and it was so much easier and more enjoyable than walking. Well, at my age, that bike wouldn't do me much good. Fortunately, there's a new invention that gives me the freedom and independence to go wherever I want... safely and easily. It's called the Zoomer, and it's changed my life.

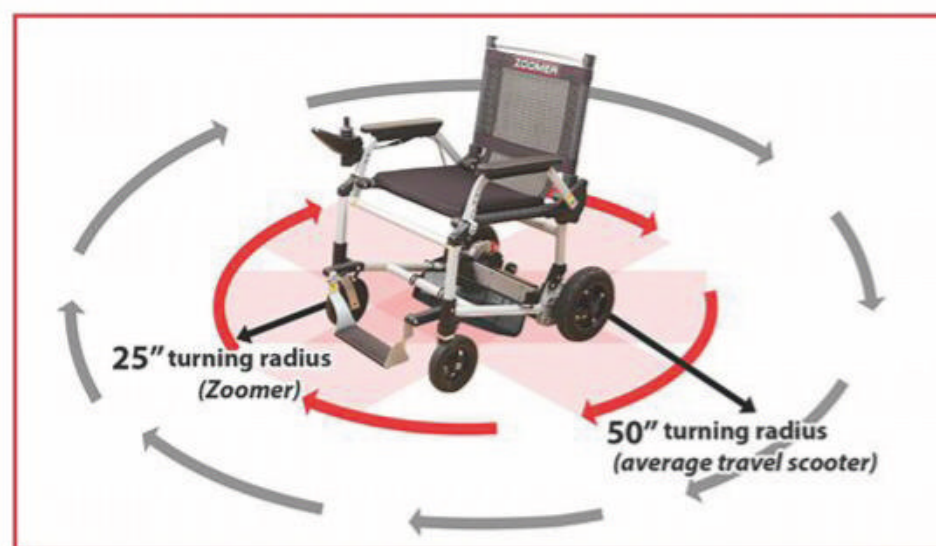

If you are one of the countless Americans who need a little help getting around, there is a safe, simple and easy-to-use solution... the Zoomer. It is propelled by small yet powerful dual motors for speeds of 3.7 miles per hour over a variety of terrains, on up to a 10 degree incline. Its innovative airline-safe Lithium Ion battery enables you to go 8 miles on a single charge, and the automatic electromagnetic brakes let you stop on a dime.

The secret to the Zoomer is its intuitive steering system. You operate it with a simple-to-use joystick, giving you precision maneuverability and the ability to navigate tight spaces easily with a 25" turning radius. It is designed to let you pull right up to a table or desk. You no longer have to move to another chair to work or eat at your table.

What's more, it folds up easily so it can fit in a trunk or a back seat. Why spend another day watching life pass you by, when instead you could be Zooming around! Call now and a knowledgeable, friendly Zoomer expert will tell you all about it. You'll be glad you did.

Ready to get your own Zoomer? We'd love to talk to you.

Call now toll free and order one today! 1-888-252-1064

Please mention code 112655 when ordering.

The Zoomer Chair is a personal electric vehicle and is not a medical device nor a wheelchair. Zoomer is not intended for medical purposes to provide mobility to persons restricted to a sitting position. It is not covered by Medicare nor Medicaid.

KATE MIDDLETON

Preparing to Be QUEEN

ELIZABETH HAS BEEN SHARING HER HARD-WON WISDOM WITH THE FUTURE MONARCH

"Kate appreciates the queen's sense of humor," says the insider.

ROYAL LIFE SUITS HER

Kate Middleton looked ready for Valentine's Day wearing a red scarf covered in hearts as she arrived in Wales with her husband, Prince William. Unfortunately, the couple's quick trip was for business, not romance. On a whirlwind day that included a visit to a lifeboat rescue crew, a tour of a steel plant and a stop at an organization promoting children's wellness, the duchess never lost her brilliant smile or perfect poise.

Kate's been groomed for the throne since her 2011 marriage, but lately Queen Elizabeth II, 93, has made a greater effort to spend time with her granddaughter-in-law. "Kate's learning all the ins and outs," says an insider. "The queen admires her professionalism, commitment and ability to take royal life in stride without getting flustered."

The daughter of two flight attendants, Kate, 38, hasn't always been so comfortable at the palace. "Kate used to be nervous around Elizabeth," admits the insider, who adds that she had reason to worry.

Around the time of her 2010 engagement, the queen reportedly didn't think Kate worked hard enough. "Over the past few years, they've gotten to know each other on a personal level and the queen became very impressed with her. Kate's also much more at ease in her presence now," says the insider.

Kate would never address her as "Granny" as William does, but the queen has encouraged Kate to call her "Elizabeth" instead of "Your Majesty" when they speak privately — a clear sign of the monarch's affection and regard. Last April, she also made Kate a Dame Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, a high recognition of her services to the country. "Elizabeth values her opinions and trusts her judgment," says the insider. "Lately, she has been communicating one-on-one with Kate instead of going through William."

CARRYING ON

This new proximity to Elizabeth has given Kate a crash course in how to handle scandals. In the past few months, the queen has dealt with the fallout over Prince Andrew's ties to the late Jeffrey Epstein as well as the commotion caused by Prince Harry and Meghan Markle's choice to leave royal life. "Elizabeth has told Kate never to speak in public about any drama surrounding the family. Instead the palace always communicates through statements that should be short and factual," says the insider. "Kate has learned a great deal."

Earning the queen's trust hasn't stopped her from worrying. Kate fears her royal obligations might cause her to miss special moments with her children, George, 6, Charlotte, 4, and Louis, 21 months. "Family means everything to Kate," adds the insider. The queen can relate to this quandary. "Elizabeth has opened up about how she regrets not spending enough time with her children when they were younger," says the insider. "She admits that one of the biggest challenges of being queen is creating a balance between her personal and professional life."

Elizabeth has faith that Kate will figure it all out. "She is impressed by the way Kate has grown into her role," says the insider. "Her warm and caring personality has made her one of the most popular royals of all time. Elizabeth has no doubt that one day Kate will be a great queen." — Louise A. Barile, with reporting by Natalie Posner

In 2015, Kate welcomed Chinese President Xi Jinping to Buckingham Palace. "Kate's learned in great detail how to address high-powered figures," says an insider.

She's the patron of nearly 20 charities, many involving children.

Last October, Kate joined William for a tour of Pakistan. "As the queen winds down, she is leaning more heavily on Kate and William," says the insider.

Kirk Douglas 1916–2020

Inside His LEGENDARY LIFE

THE HOLLYWOOD ICON
OVERCAME POVERTY,
AFFAIRS AND TRAGEDY
LEGACY OF GENEROSITY

By BRUCE FRETTS

When Kirk Douglas made his big-screen debut in 1946's The Strange Love of Martha Ivers, the director wanted him to fill in his distinctive chin dimple. Kirk steadfastly refused. "I said, 'Listen, this is what you get,'" Kirk recalled. "I didn't cave."

That was Kirk Douglas in a nutshell: self-confident, headstrong and one of a kind. "He had drive, ego and intelligence," John Landis, who directed the actor in 1991's Oscar, tells Closer. "Kirk was a real classic American story and a great Hollywood star. He was a legend, and he deserved to be one."

Kirk — who passed away at the remarkable age of 103 on Feb. 5 — came from the humblest roots. Born Issur Danielovitch Demsky in Amsterdam, N.Y., he was raised by impoverished Russian immigrants. His alcoholic father wasn't allowed to work in the town's mills because he was Jewish, so he scraped together a living selling rags. "He was the toughest guy in town," Kirk said. "I was 7 years old, and I'd done a little play. My father, without my knowing it, had come in the back and saw me doing it, and he bought me an ice-cream cone as a reward. It was worth more to me than an Oscar."

Inspired to become an actor, Kirk hitchhiked to St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., and earned a degree. "I grabbed that diploma the way a runner in a relay race grabs a baton," he said. "I ran for my life."

He attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in NYC, where he met Lauren Bacall. Later, when she'd made it in Hollywood, Lauren recommended Kirk to a casting agent. Three years after landing Martha Ivers, Kirk became a star as a boxer in Champion. He didn't handle fame well at first, developing a reputation for arrogance. "Now that you've got a big hit, you've become a real son of a bitch," gossip columnist Hedda Hopper told him. His response: "I was always a son of a bitch — you just never noticed."

LOVE AND LUST

Kirk also became known as a notorious womanizer. He'd married actress Diana Dill (who became the mother of sons Michael and Joel) in 1943, but Kirk had affairs with countless leading ladies, including Rita Hayworth, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich. Kirk and Diana divorced in 1951, and he was on the prowl in Paris when he met German-born translator Anne Buydens on the set of the 1953 film Act of Love. He asked her out, but she politely declined, wary of the handsome heartbreaker.

"He taught me
to always give it your best shot," says
Michael, with Kirk in 1988.

"The fact that I didn't impress her certainly impressed me," Kirk said. "With no romance in the picture, I stopped talking about myself and began to listen to her."

They fell in love and wed a year later; sons Peter and Eric soon followed. Kirk continued to stray during the early years of their marriage, but Anne stayed with him. "As a European, I understood it was unrealistic to expect total fidelity in a marriage," she explained. Yet Anne insisted that Kirk confess to his affairs: "I wanted to hear it from him directly, not via an idle piece of gossip."

Over time, the couple came to a deeper understanding. "Anne never tried to change me, but she never hesitated to speak her mind," Kirk said. "She did change me, and very much for the better."

PROFILE IN COURAGE

Kirk ruled as one of Hollywood's top stars through the '50s, and he ultimately used his power for good. Appalled by the blacklist that destroyed the careers of many who were branded as communists, Kirk stood up for screenwriter Dalton Trumbo, insisting he receive credit for 1960's Spartacus. That helped bring an end to the McCarthy era's campaign of fear. "The blacklist was one of the most embarrassing things in our history," Kirk said. "When I think of it, it hurts me."

That strength of character would serve Kirk well as he faced a number of hardships later in life. In 1991, he was riding in a helicopter when he survived a mid-air collision with a plane; two people, including an 18-year-old boy, were killed. "He asked himself, 'Why am I alive, and this kid is dead?'" son Michael revealed. "That brought him back to his original Jewish roots."

Kirk began studying with a rabbi, David Wolpe, and met with him weekly for the rest of his days. "Being Jewish was a very big part of his life," Rabbi Wolpe tells Closer. "We had many discussions about God." Adds Michael, "It totally changed my father as a man. It brought a tremendous amount of spirituality to his life. As proud as I am of all he's accomplished, to watch what he's done in the third act of his life is amazing. It brought him peace."

BACK FROM THE BRINK

In 1996, Kirk suffered a devastating stroke, which robbed him of the ability to speak. "That was the darkest moment of my life: an actor who can't talk," he said. "Depression had me by the throat."

He pondered suicide, but "humor saved me," he says. "When I put a gun in my mouth, it hit a tooth. Ow! That struck me as funny."

Anne convinced Kirk to see a speech therapist, and he learned to talk again. Then in 2004, the family suffered another tragedy: Kirk's youngest son, Eric, died of a drug overdose at 46. "I must have taken him to 15 different rehabs," Kirk later said. "I visit his grave every week and ask what more could I have done. But sometimes there's nothing you can do."

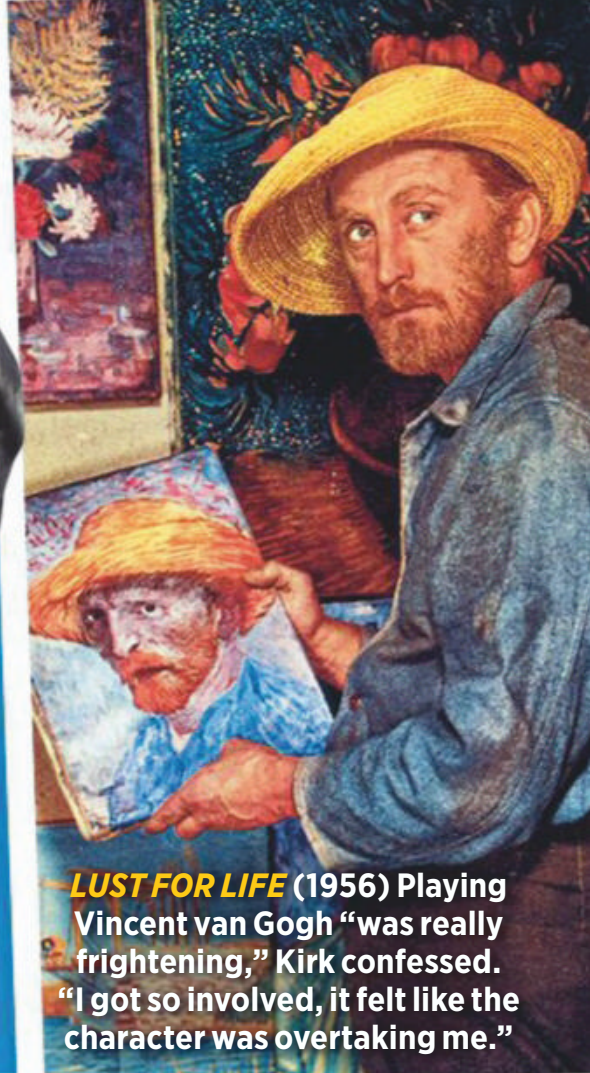

His Greatest Roles

CHAMPION (1949) His turn as an unscrupulous boxer earned Kirk his first Oscar nomination. "My agents didn't want me to take the role, but it ensured my standing as a top-tier star," he later said.

▲ THE BAD AND THE BEAUTIFUL (1952) His second Oscar nod came for his performance in this dark Hollywood drama opposite Lana Turner.

— LUST FOR LIFE (1956) Playing Vincent van Gogh "was really frightening," Kirk confessed. "I got so involved, it felt like the character was overtaking me."

More tough times came: Michael battled cancer, and grandson Cameron served prison time for drug offenses. “You endure it — it’s all part of life,” Kirk said. “Michael says it made me a softer guy.”

Over the years, Kirk came to forgive his father for his shortcomings. “He did have a strong feeling for me, but it was impossible for him to express it, to say, ‘I love you,’” Kirk realized. “It’s a phrase I always use with my own sons.”

Kirk’s love extended beyond his own family. He donated a large portion of his $80 million fortune to charity. “Anne and I always felt an obligation as well as a joy in sharing our good fortune with worthy causes,” he said.

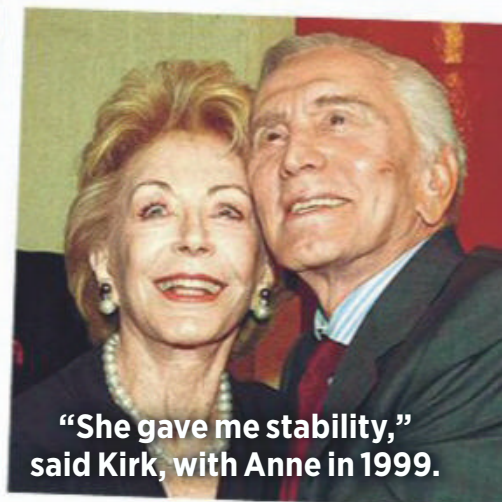

His generosity will live long beyond his 103 years. “He’d want to be remembered as somebody who both made it on his own and never forget how far he came,” says Rabbi Wolpe. “He was an inspiration.” — Reporting by Katie Bruno and Natalie Posner

QUALITY TIME

“Dad’s history was that his father was not there,” Michael observed of Kirk. “The one thing he wanted to make sure that he did was to make that effort for his sons.” He did, and Kirk grew even closer to his boys later in life.

Kirk and Anne’s blended family included sons Michael (far left) and Joel (far right) from his first marriage, plus Eric (second from left) and Peter.

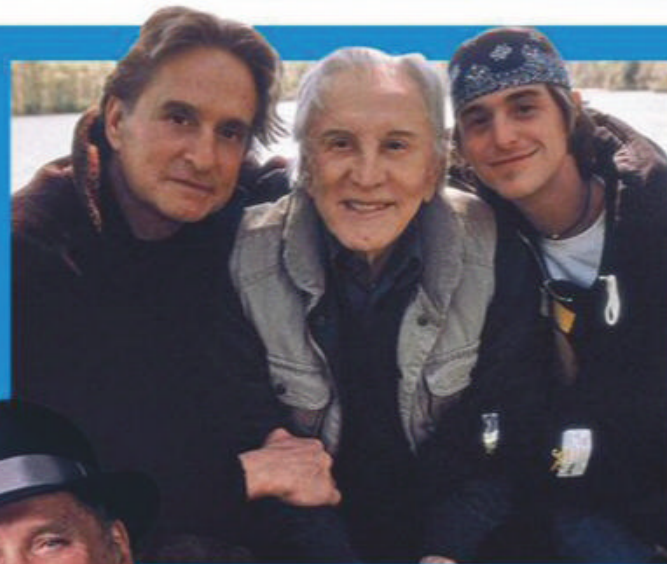

“She gave me stability,” said Kirk, with Anne in 1999.

▲ SPARTACUS (1960) Helping to break the blacklist by crediting writer Dalton Trumbo for this slave-revolt epic was “the most important thing I’ve done in my career,” Kirk said.

▼ TOUGH GUYS (1986)

“Even though they were good friends, they were competitors,” director Jeff Kanew tells Closer of Kirk and frequent co-star Burt Lancaster. “They were like an old married couple who knew each other too well.”

▲ IT RUNS IN THE FAMILY (2003)

One of Kirk’s final big-screen roles teamed him with Michael and grandson Cameron in this dramedy. “The whole experience was great,” says director Fred Schepisi.

GLEN CAMPBELL

Always Gentle on Our Minds

THE PERFORMER'S WIDOW SHARES THE TRIUMPHS
AND TRAGEDIES OF HIS LEGENDARY LIFE

Some days when she first wakes up, Glen Campbell's widow, Kim, forgets that he's no longer with her. "Every morning, he used to give me a big hug and whisper 'I'm in love with you,'" she tells Closer. "We had a lot of trials, but we were so in love throughout our marriage."

As a tribute to her husband and his legendary music career, the Glen Campbell Museum will have its grand opening in Nashville on April 22. That date's no accident — it would have been Glen's 84th birthday. "I realized that by telling Glen's story, he could continue to inspire musicians and encourage people living with all sorts of challenges," says Kim, who was married to the star for 34 years.

In classic rags-to-riches fashion, Glen grew up the seventh son of 12 children born to an Arkansas sharecropper. "He was a child prodigy," says Kim, noting that he picked up guitar at age 4.

Arkansas couldn't hold him. In his 20s, Glen moved to Los Angeles and began getting session work — a lot of it! He played on the recordings of every big name of the period, from Frank Sinatra and Doris Day to Elvis Presley and the Beach Boys.

The new museum traces Glen's evolution from unknown guitarist to studio musician to solo performer. By the late 1960s, hits like "Wichita Lineman" and "Gentle on My Mind" made Glen a star. As host of The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, which ran from 1969 to 1972, he became a household name.

"He would have loved watching all the clips of him playing guitar with Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash and Jerry Reed," says Kim of the videos on display at the museum. "If he could be here, he'd probably stand at the door and welcome everyone in."

RHINESTONE COWBOY

Glen married four times and fathered eight children. "They're all very talented and that made him proud," says Kim, who remembers Glen most as a "loving father and husband." Still, she didn't allow the museum to whitewash Glen's struggles with alcoholism and cocaine abuse in the '70s and '80s. "Glen was very public about his battle," she says. "I hope people find it inspirational."

He faced an even bigger challenge when he was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease in 2011. Glen performed a series of goodbye shows, which were filmed for a documentary, to bask in the applause of his fans one last time. "We believe that music helped him," says Kim, who founded the Kim & Glen Campbell Foundation to research how music can be used as medicine. "He helped take Alzheimer's out of the shadows and remove some of the stigma."

Glen, who passed away in 2017, will always be remembered for his songs, but Kim is proud of his courage, too. "His whole life is a testimony to the faithfulness of God," she says, "and his ability to transform your life if you place your faith in him."

INSIDE THE GLEN CAMPBELL MUSEUM

"He was so young at heart," Kim remembers.

It's no surprise that the man who sang about a "Rhinestone Cowboy" had several embellished suits!

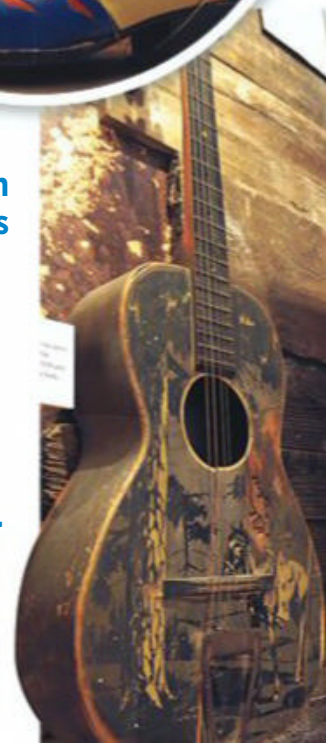

Visitors can also see the six Grammy Awards given to Glen during his illustrious career.

He treasured this pair of boots worn by his hero Gene Autry.

The museum also displays the Sears, Roebuck & Co. guitar young Glen taught himself to play. His father bought it for him for $5.

MORGAN FAIRCHILD

What I've Learned at 70

AS SHE MARKS A MILESTONE BIRTHDAY, THE SMALL-SCREEN SEX SYMBOL KNOWS THAT TRUE BEAUTY LIES INSIDE

Her name became so synonymous with gorgeousness in the '80s that Jon Lovitz's pathological liar always boasted about "my wife, Morgan Fairchild" on Saturday Night Live. But that wasn't always the case. "I grew up fat, with thick glasses," Morgan told Closer at the recent Hollywood Beauty Awards, where she won for Timeless Beauty. "The kids would tease me, so I learned what it was like to be bullied, and I learned what it was to accept kindness."

The award isn't the only reason she's had to celebrate lately. She turned 70 on Feb. 3. "I went to dinner with a couple of friends, and we just laughed our heads off all night," Morgan says. "It was wonderful."

HEALTHY LIVING

Over the years, Morgan has grown wiser about many things, including diet and fitness. "I grew up in Texas, and everything was deep-fat fried," she remembers. "I ate like that when I was a kid, but not once I got to be old enough to take care of myself."

She considers herself lucky to have learned from the example of her family. "My mother died at 74," she says of Martha

Morgan was born Patsy Ann McClenny in Dallas and later changed her name.

Jane McClenny, who was a high school English teacher. "She had diabetes, arthritis, fibromyalgia and strokes, and I know I am in so much better health than she was at this age."

What are Morgan's secrets? "No sun, no drugs and no drinking," she says. "I drink at least a liter of water a day. Hydrating yourself keeps your skin looking good."

But what really matters to Morgan isn't only skin-deep. "The most important thing is kindness to each other," she says. "Everybody's having a rough time — you never know what they're going through. So reach out in small ways and big ways every day — those random acts of kindness that people don't expect." — Reporting by

Amanda Champagne Meadows

She co-starred with Mark Harmon in the prime-time soap Flamingo Road from 1980 to 1982.

Raising His Voice

For its 18th season, The Voice is bringing in a new coach. Nick Jonas, who's topped the pop-music charts as a member of the Jonas Brothers and as a solo artist, will join John Legend, Kelly Clarkson and Blake Shelton. "I'm so excited to be a part of the Voice family," says Nick. "It's such an awesome group of individuals, and I can't wait to help these artists really build and hone in to find their unique voices." Jokes Blake, 43, of Nick, 27, "I'm not even sure [he's] old enough to be a coach. I'm going to have to look through the rules."

TUNE IN! The Voice returns Feb. 24 at 8 p.m. ET on NBC

Dean Norris (inset) will appear with Bob Odenkirk in Season 5.

Will Saul Call Walt or Jesse?

Expect more familiar faces from Breaking Bad as the prequel Better Call Saul enters its fifth season. Among them are Dean Norris as DEA agent Hank Schrader. With the recent announcement that Season 6 will be Saul's last, fans are wondering if Bad boys Walter White (Bryan Cranston) or Jesse Pinkman (Aaron Paul) will turn up. Says exec producer Vince Gilligan, "I would love to see them in Better Call Saul before it all ends."

EMMA

Before getting cast in the title role of the Jane Austen adaptation Emma, "I was already a fan," says Anya Taylor-Joy (The Witch). "I found her writing really witty and spiky and spicy. Even though the setting was usually very proper, the way that her characters would communicate and usurp each other through language always stole my heart." Still, the young actress admits she was nervous about tackling a part that has already been played by the likes of Gwyneth Paltrow. "I was really daunted but so excited," Anya says. "I thought, 'Here is a character who's so difficult to pin down. Her emotions are flitting around so quickly. You can't decide whether she's an entitled princess or she's amazing.' The idea of trying to figure out how to play that character really appealed to me." [PG]

COCONUT LAYER CAKE MURDER

Joanne Fluke

For her 25th case, will bakery owner Hannah Swensen once again have the recipe for getting to the bottom of things? While on vacation in California, Hannah receives a hysterical phone call from her sister Michelle that sends the amateur sleuth back home to Lake Eden, Minn. — and right into the mix of clearing Michelle's boyfriend, Detective Lonnie Murphy, of murder!

THE GIRL IN WHITE GLOVES

Kerri Maher

After her take on Kennedy sister Kick, the author of The Kennedy Debutante traces the life of a more famous figure for her new novel — Grace Kelly. "So much of what's known about [her] is surface level: the smile, the clothes, the movies, the glamour of Monaco and being a princess," explains Maher. "So, of course, we want to know more about her."

Miss Barbara Eden

A pop master-piece. At the height of her fame in 1967, the star of TV's I Dream of Jeannie recorded her one and only album — a 10-track set that's now available on CD for the first time and highlights her roots as a singer. As she once told Closer, it's a talent she liked to show on set and in the makeup room she shared with The Flying Nun's Sally Field. So much so, Sally "told a reporter the most difficult thing about [her role] was going to makeup at 6 a.m. and listening to Barbara Eden sing!"

Visiting Galway, Ireland, in her family's ancestral homeland made a lasting impression on Kate Flannery. "I felt so American at first," the former co-star of The Office confides to Closer. "It was like another planet, but then you start to see the beauty and get the sense of humor. I suddenly felt like there was something very familiar there." That's no surprise as Galway is famed for its warm hospitality. "You have to go to the pubs," says Kate, who recommends ordering the salmon and a Guinness. "It was the freshest fish I've ever had in my life — and my first real Guinness. It really tastes different." — Louise A. Barile, with reporting by Diana Cooper

Simple Supper SHOWSTOPPERS

These tasty recipes from The New York Times' food editor make it a cinch to serve up a heartwarming Sunday dinner every week

Many of us have fond memories of Sunday dinners — the hours spent around the table with family and friends that nourished the body and soul. That's why in his new cookbook, See You on Sunday, the New York Times food editor Sam Sifton implores readers to embrace the tradition. "The purpose of cooking regularly for friends and family is simply to do it, and to make better the lives of all involved in the process of eating the meal," he muses. As for the dishes you serve, "the intention is that you can make them," says Sifton, noting that his recipes are easy to prepare, leaving more time to socialize and savor the delicious results. Try one of these suppers this Sunday!

*Sophisticated
yet simple!*

CARAMELIZED SCALLOPS

Serves 4

- 2 cups kosher salt
- 16 sea scallops, the tough muscle on the side removed
- ¼ cup white wine
- ¼ cup white wine vinegar
- 1 shallot, peeled and minced
- ⅓ cup heavy cream
- 1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter, cut into tbsps.
- 4 tbsp. neutral oil

1. In a bowl, dissolve salt in 2 cups boiling water. Add 8 cups cold water. Stir again; cool to room temperature.
2. Add scallops to brine; let sit 10 min. Rinse, dry with paper towels, and place on a baking sheet. Cover with more paper towels; chill 1 to 2 hrs.

3. Combine wine, vinegar and shallot in a saucepan; boil. Cook until reduced to a syrup, about 5 min. Add cream, salt and pepper; cook 1 min.

4. Turn heat to low; whisk in butter a few pats at a time. Remove from the heat.

5. Heat two sauté pans over high. Add 2 tbsp. oil to each. Sprinkle scallops with pepper. Cook, undisturbed and not touching, 3 min.; turn and cook 2 min. more. Drizzle with beurre blanc and serve.

PER SERVING: 688 cal, 21g protein, 4g carbs, 0g fiber, 0g sugar, 65g fat

The perfect supper centerpiece, it can be served with quick sides like steamed green beans or baked potatoes.

OVEN-ROASTED LAMB

Serves 8

- 1 (3 lb.) boneless leg of lamb, rolled and tied
- 1 cup white wine
- 2 bay leaves
- 4 tsp. pepper
- 4 tsp. kosher salt
- 6 cloves garlic, peeled and diced
- 6 thyme sprigs
- 3 rosemary sprigs
- 3 tbsp. butter
- 1 lemon
- ½ cup sherry vinegar
- ½ cup honey
- 2 tsp. fennel seeds, cracked
- 2 tsp. coriander seeds, cracked
- 2 tsp. red pepper flakes

1. Heat oven to 425°F. Place lamb, wine and bay leaves in a roasting pan. Make 8 to 10 1" incisions on top of meat. Mash 2 tsp. pepper, next 4 ingredients into a paste. Rub meat with paste, 1 tbsp. butter; squeeze lemon over the top.

2. Roast 15 min; reduce to 350°F. Roast 1 hr.

3. Place remaining pepper and ingredients in a pan; simmer until reduced by half. Remove; whisk in remaining butter.

4. Heat broiler. Coat lamb with glaze; broil, turning occasionally, 5 to 7 min. Remove the meat to a platter. Let rest 10 min. before slicing.

PER SERVING: 459 cal, 48g protein, 21g carbs, 1g fiber, 18g sugar, 17g fat

This Asian spin on Italian meat sauce is sure to wow your guests.

MAPO RAGÙ

Serves 8

- ½ cup neutral oil
- 3 yellow onions, peeled and sliced
- 1 tsp. kosher salt
- 2 lbs. ground pork
- 8 cloves garlic, peeled and minced
- 1 (2") piece fresh ginger, peeled and chopped
- ¼ cup gochujang
- 2 tbsp. soy sauce
- 4 tsp. brown sugar
- 2 bunches kale, roughly chopped
- 1 (12 oz.) box silken tofu, drained and whisked

1. Heat half the oil in a wok over medium-high. When oil shimmers, add onions and a pinch of salt. Cook, stirring occasionally, 10 min. Turn heat to low; cook, stirring occasionally, 20 to 30 min.

2. Remove onions; return wok to high heat. Add remaining oil and pork; cook 15 min. Remove.

3. Return wok to stove over medium. Cook garlic and ginger until soft. Add gochujang, soy sauce and brown sugar. Stir in 1 cup water, pork and onion.

4. Bring sauce to a simmer; stir in kale and cook 5 min. Stir in tofu. Serve with rice, rice noodles or pasta, garnished with sliced scallions, if desired.

PER SERVING: 327 cal, 35g protein, 14g carbs, 3g fiber, 6g sugar, 14g fat

5 TIPS FOR KETO DIETING

AUTHOR NAOMI WHITTEL
ON HOW TO ACHIEVE
LOW-CARB WEIGHT LOSS

VEG OUT: “Fiber is the key to Keto,” says Naomi Whittel, author of the new book High Fiber Keto. “We put together a clinical study of 22 women at Jacksonville University in Florida, and in 22 days, they lost [a maximum of] nine pounds of body fat, gained lean muscle, their skin and blood glucose levels improved, and some lost inches off of their waistline.” The key is adding the right amount of cruciferous veggies like Brussels sprouts, collard greens, cauliflower and broccoli. Artichokes are also a good choice.

KEEP IT NEAT: On her plan, Whittel says, “Do something called NEAT: non-exercise activity thermogenesis. It could be as simple as getting up from your desk every 30 minutes to stretch and move around, dancing in the morning to your favorite song or parking your car farther from where you’re going, so you get in at least 7,500 steps a day.”

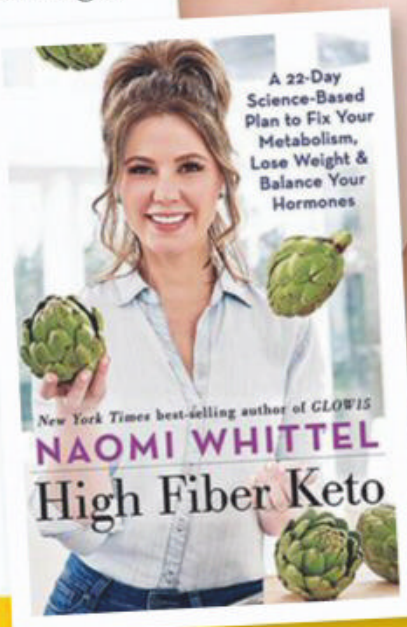

JUST ADD WATER: Keep hydrated by drinking lots of water and eating cucumbers and celery, advises Whittel. And since Keto uses food with fewer electrolytes like sodium, magnesium and potassium, add plenty of those to your diet, too!

DINE SMART: When eating out, “make sure you’re getting enough ‘good fats’ — add a tablespoon of olive oil” to your dish, Whittel says. “Then it’s about good protein and the right vegetables: Avocado is great, and I wrap sushi in cucumber with no rice.”

MAKE IT EASY: Whittel’s diet works seamlessly with the SlimFast Keto line of meals and snacks (including “fat bomb” peanut butter cups!) that fit with ketogenic guidelines when you’re on the go.

Read New York Times best-selling author Naomi Whittel’s High Fiber Keto: A 22-Day Science-Based Plan to Fix Your Metabolism, Lose Weight & Balance Your Hormones (right, $26.99, out Feb. 25 at naomiwhittel.com) or text KETO FIBER to find out more about SlimFast Keto.

Whatever Happened to the...a...

ED

From Oct. 8, 2000, to Feb. 6, 2004, a lawyer-turned-bowling alley owner proved you could go home again.

Lesley Boone

While Carol's friend Molly Hudson dealt with liquids and gases as a chemistry teacher, Lesley, who turns 52 on Feb. 25, has been solid in appearances on TV's Medium, Desperate Housewives and Grey's Anatomy and recurring roles on Agent Carter and Kevin (Probably) Saves the World.

Julie Bowen

After playing Ed's one-time high school crush Carol Vessey, Julie, 49, didn't waste any time doing more TV — co-starring in Boston Legal, Lost and, of course, Modern Family, which has won her two Emmy awards. She's also done movies such as Horrible Bosses and raised three sons.

Tom Cavanagh

Ed Stevens may have traded in the courts for the lanes of Stuckeybowl, but Tom, 56, has been a hard one to pin down. He's done movies like Yogi Berra, appeared on TV's Scrubs and Royal Pains and now stars on The Flash and in the Darrow & Darrow TV pics. He's wed and has four kids.

Jana Marie Hupp

While Mike's wife, Nancy Burton, tried balancing home and career, Jana, 55, took a few more roles on TV's 'Til Death and Bones before concentrating on her personal life. As she said when the show started, "I'm very blessed that I'm in the position I'm in. If it ends tomorrow, it's been an amazing ride."

Josh Randall

Dr. Mike Burton made it his practice of helping out best friend Ed, yet Josh, 48, went on to take care of himself quite well. He's appeared in over 50 TV movies and series, from light roles in Castle, Scrubs and Pushing Daisies to darker turns in Cold Case, Criminal Minds and Ozark.

40

THE MIRACLE ON ICE

Do you believe in miracles!? On Feb. 22, 1980, announcer Al Michaels posed that question as Captain Mike Eruzione and the U.S. men's Olympic hockey team pull off one of the biggest upsets in sports history, beating the USSR, 4-3. Now take a shot at these questions.

1 After this victory, the underdog U.S. team still had to win one more game to take the gold medal. Which country did they defeat to do so?

- A Finland
- B Norway
- C Sweden

2 Which player became the first ever to win Olympic gold and the Stanley Cup in the very same year by joining the NHL's N.Y. Islanders afterward?

- A Neal Broten
- B Ken Morrow
- C Mike Ramsey

4 In the 1981 TV movie Miracle on Ice, Karl Malden portrayed the team's coach Herb Brooks. But who played the squad's goalie Jim Craig?

- A Steve Guttenberg
- B Rob Lowe
- C Michael Ontkian

3 Back in 1960, the U.S. also beat the Soviets on their way to winning our country's first gold medal in hockey. Where was that Olympics held?

- A Lake Placid, N.Y.
- B Salt Lake City, Utah
- C Squaw Valley, Calif.

5 In Disney 2004 feature film Miracle, future CSI: NY star Eddie Cahill played the goaltender. But who took on the role of Coach Brooks?

- A Emilio Estevez
- B Paul Newman
- C Kurt Russell

HEART to heart

EXCLUSIVE

DR. MEHMET OZ

The Decision
THAT
MY LIFE

The medical guru tells Closer his secrets to a long-lasting marriage, a happy family and good health!

The Dr. Oz Show has given millions of viewers important health info, like in this 2016 interview with cancer patient Shannen Doherty.

Dr. Oz with wife Lisa; children Arabella, Oliver, Daphne and Zoe; son-in-law John Jovanovic; and grandchildren Philomena, Giovanna, Jovan and Domenica in 2019.

Dr. Mehmet Oz has a lot to be proud of. With his long-running hit The Dr. Oz Show, he's been educating viewers and helping to save lives with vital health information for more than a decade, winning 10 Daytime Emmys along the way. So what makes him happiest? "I'm proudest of my family, and the kids in particular," the 59-year-old dad of four (and grandpa of four more!) tells Closer. "There are lots of people who've worked with me who have become great doctors, healers, nurses and producers, and a whole generation whose education has been enhanced because they got to work with me at the hospital or on the show." He's also proud of System 20, his new food, sleep and exercise plan, but he'll admit that developing it isn't his all-time greatest accomplishment. Marrying his wife, Lisa, 56, nearly 35 years ago "is the best decision I ever made, without question," he gushes. "I've never been happier!"

Great to talk with you, Dr. Oz! You recently had a fun debate with Mark Wahlberg about...breakfast?

[Laughs] I don't mind breakfast. I just don't think you have to eat it to be healthy, or have it right when you wake up. The argument, and it's the backbone of our System 20 plan, is that intermittent fasting is healthy and helps your focus, in addition to weight loss.

[Mark and I are] trying to negotiate where to compete with each other in the gym to hash it out. I'll be fasting. He's going to have to have a beer and burgers in his belly. And we'll both know how to use a defibrillator by then.

Ha! You said marrying Lisa was your best decision. How has she helped you with your success?

Doing television wasn't on my vision board. It was all Lisa. She was the Visine eyes girl [on TV], so she understood the media. She said, "Get out of the hospital and talk to people." So we made a show for Discovery [Health Channel]. She had a bigger vision for me than I ever imagined.

You just marked a decade of The Dr. Oz Show in September, with many awards. What does that mean to you?

The biggest blessing is having people in the business say, "Kudos, high five," because they know what it took and respect the effort you made. So it means a lot to me.

What made you want to enter medicine in the first place?

My dad's a doctor. When I was a little boy, I'd go to the hospital and watch him. People were so happy he was able to help. There's no more fulfilling job in the world.

Any moment put you on your path?

I remember being in an ice cream store at age 7. There was a kid who was 10, and my father asked what he wanted to be when he grew up. He said, “I have no idea.” My dad told me, “I don’t care what you do in life, but you never give that answer.” He felt you have the freedom to change your mind, but you need to have a goal, or you’re doing a disservice to yourself and people around you.

HEART to heart

Did having kids and grandkids reinforce your commitment to helping others?

Whenever we have an illness in the family, my wife always jokes that I finally became useful. Everyone’s in a panic, they call you and within five minutes you can figure out, is this a dangerous thing or not? It gives me more comfort as the head of the family.

How is everyone doing?

Two grandkids are starting school now. The oldest [Philomena] is in kindergarten, and [Jovan] is in pre-K. Watching them get acclimated and go through the same thing their mother did is fascinating. I love it.

What’s the best part of being a grandpa?

Seeing my daughter Daphne pass along the values that we tried to give to her.

What have your kids taught you?

A lot about social media! And they have a more thoughtful priority list. I was focused early in my career on 100 percent dedication to the work. Their generation says, “I’m going to work my tail off to do what’s best, but not when there’s no value.” It teaches me to triage my efforts.

You’ll mark 35 years with Lisa in June. What’s your secret?

My father-in-law told me: When there are small arguments, give in, so when there are big arguments, you know what it feels like. [Laughs] The real secret, seriously, is to reinvent the marriage every seven years. Relationships evolve. Men marry women exactly as they want them, and women want to change. Women marry the men they think we can become, and we don’t want to change. So we’re like two ships heading in different directions. You have to reconnect.

You’ll also turn 60 in June. Congrats! How do you plan to celebrate?

We’re going to have a big party, then go someplace exotic that we’ve never been!

What are your biggest life lessons?

Be kind whenever you can. It makes everything easier, and if you combine it with being grateful, that’s the key to happiness. There’s a deeper joy you should be seeking. If you’re not really appreciative of all the opportunities you’ve had, even if they didn’t go well, you’ll never feel that.

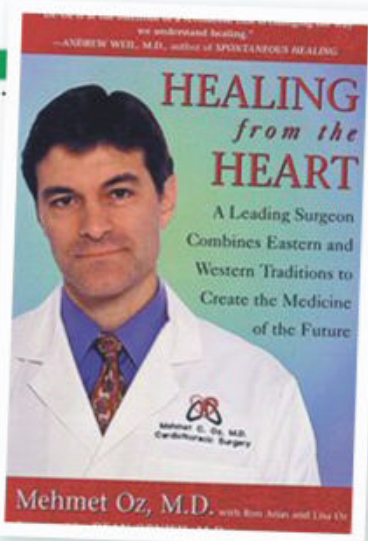

ROLE MODEL

How does Dr. Oz stay so healthy? “The most important thing I do is power yoga. It’s not easy. It keeps me limber and strong, but most importantly, I meditate at the end. That’s what centers me. I get my best ideas then.”

THE ROAD TO OZ

SCHOOL DAYS Born in Cleveland to Turkish immigrants, Dr. Oz was raised in Wilmington, Del., where this school picture was taken.

BY THE BOOK

His wife, Lisa, and Ron Arias helped write his book Healing From the Heart, about mixing Eastern and Western medicine.

TV STAR Lisa produced his first show, Second Opinion With Dr. Oz, which ran on the Discovery Health Channel from 2003–’04. Having his former Harvard roommate as the network’s president helped!

D.C. DIALOGUE

Testifying before Congress in 2014, Dr. Oz offered to help root out unscrupulous marketers using his name to peddle dubious weight-loss products.

WATCH THIS IS A PORTION; WATCH

“If you can change your body, you can change the world.”

— Dr. Oz

Anything people should know about you?

My parents are immigrants, and I think my family and many others like ours reflect the value of emigration to this country. I’m on the board of the Ellis Island Honors Society, which celebrates what immigrants have contributed. I also feel passionately about the importance of HealthCorps, our kids foundation. We touch the lives of hundreds of thousands of kids by getting them to realize that they have much more power over their destiny.

What’s on your bucket list?

I’m looking for more opportunities to change — that could be in public service, media ventures or traditional commerce. I want to fill the gaps wherever I can.

How do you describe this time in your life?

It’s the most blissful possible. A lot of that’s because small stuff doesn’t bother me as much. The things I used to get all worked up about begin to fade away. It’s like when I played football in college. There’s a clock, it’s ticking, and you don’t get more than 60 minutes, so you don’t want to waste any of them. I’ve stopped wasting time on things that don’t matter. — Reporting by Lexi Ciccone

JENNA BUSH HAGER

Lessons From My Grandparents

THE TODAY CO-HOST LOOKS BACK WITH GRATITUDE ON THE PEOPLE WHO HELPED SHAPE HER LIFE

Jenna today and with her grandparents Barbara and George H.W. in the '80s (above)

Growing up, Jenna Bush Hager couldn't imagine life without her grandparents. "Family was a priority," says Today's Jenna, who credits her paternal grandparents, the late President George H.W. and Barbara Bush, with maintaining a large household "where everybody really loves each other."

In 2018, Jenna lost George and Barbara, who passed away within seven months of each other after 73 years of marriage. That tragedy was closely followed by the death of her maternal grandmother and namesake, Jenna Hawkins Welch, in 2019. As a way to celebrate their lives and overcome her grief, Jenna, 38, wrote Everything Beautiful in Its Time, a collection of essays. "It's really just a love letter to them," she explains.

Twin sisters Barbara and Jenna — whose parents are former President George W. and Laura Bush — enjoyed strong, loving relationships with both sides of the family. "Having her grandparents as such a big part of her life was a special blessing," says a family friend.

Jenna was 9 when her grandfather became the 41st president and remembers the thrill of running around the White House with her sister. She also fondly recalls the summers when the Bush family would vacation together in Kennebunkport, Maine. "George H.W. had a real lust for life and the great outdoors, so he didn't let the girls sit around on his watch," the friend recalls. "He had them out on his boat, teaching them how to fish, or he'd take them on long walks through the woods. At night, there would be card games and big meals — though the running joke was that Barbara wasn't allowed in the kitchen! She was more into doing arts and crafts with the girls."

During their Texas childhood — George W. was governor of the state from 1995 to 2000 — Jenna and Barbara also spent a lot of time with their maternal grandparents, Harold and Jenna. "They were more plain folk," explains the friend, who adds that the couple from Midland, Texas, doted on Jenna and Barbara, their only grandchildren. "Jenna remembers counting stars with her grandparents in a Texas sky," adds the friend.

LEGACY OF LOVE

The TV personality, who co-hosts the fourth hour of NBC's Today with Hoda Kotb, feels lucky to have been named after her grandmother, who encouraged her love of reading. "Her kindness and graciousness were as expansive as the West Texas horizon," Jenna says.

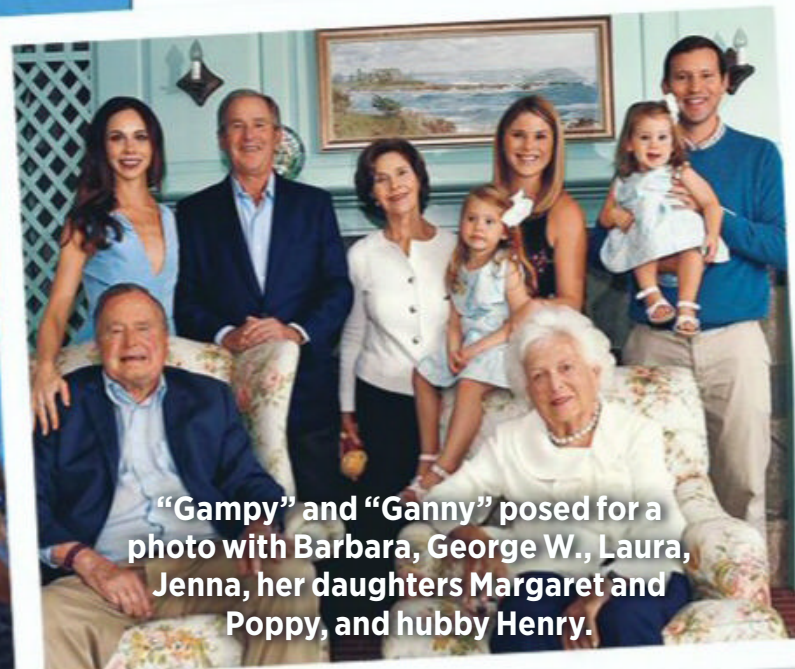

Losing three of her grandparents in such quick succession (grandfather Harold passed away previously in 1995) left big holes in Jenna's life — although she still feels their presence. "I think they are always whispering to me," says the mother of Margaret, 6, Poppy, 4, and Henry, 6 months. "I hear their voices in the letters they sent me and in my memories. They offer comfort, support and guidance, and I will listen to them always." — Louise A. Barile

IT'S ALL RELATIVE

"As long as I'm alive, my grandparents will not be forgotten," says Jenna of George H.W. and Barbara, here in Houston after he was first elected to Congress in 1966.

"Gampy" and "Ganny" posed for a photo with Barbara, George W., Laura, Jenna, her daughters Margaret and Poppy, and hubby Henry.

"She is mindful of passing down what she learned from her grandparents, especially to her baby son Henry, who was born after her grandparents passed away," says a friend.

ROBERT CONRAD

Farewell to a TV FAVORITE

THE WILD WILD WEST STAR TALKED TOUGH, FOUGHT TOUGHER AND CHARMED AMERICA ALONG THE WAY

Robert Conrad enjoyed living up to his tough-guy reputation. “If you treat me nicely, I’ll treat you nicer. If you’re rude to me, put your headgear on. Here it comes!” the handsome star of 1965–’69’s The Wild Wild West shared, adding, “I’m only about 5-feet-8 and 165 pounds, so I’m not the world’s meanest guy.”

Yet Robert, who died of heart failure at 84 on Feb. 8, loved poking fun at his rough-and-tumble image, from his ’70s Eveready commercials daring you to knock a battery off his shoulder to his trash talk on Battle of the Network Stars. It was part of an appeal that made the actor, famous for his tight-fitting outfits (“They glued me into my pants,” he joked), a fan favorite for decades.

GO AHEAD, I DARE YOU!

After some early work loading trucks, the Chicago-born Konrad Robert Falkowski tried his hand at boxing, nightclub singing and stunt work before a detective role on the 1959–’63 show Hawaiian Eye made him a star. It was one of several action-oriented jobs — including a bit part as a Native American in a Western — that helped launch his career. “When there was a stunt with [a] speaking role, they’d hire me,” he quipped. “You got two for the price of one.”

His popularity soared in the late ’70s, when he nabbed a Golden Globe nod and a People’s Choice Award for his World War II drama Baa Baa Black Sheep and had a hit miniseries with Centennial. As his family grew — Robert is survived by five kids from his first marriage, three from his second and 18 grandkids — he cast sons Christian and Shane Conrad on the 1987–’88 series High Mountain Rangers. “He lived a wonderfully long life, and while the family is saddened by his passing, he will live forever in their hearts,” says rep Jeff Ballard. “He did things his own way.”

Robert will always be best remembered for his charismatic turn in The Wild Wild West, which will long keep him alive in reruns. “I feel like the battery I used to represent,” he said in 1994. “I am going on and on and on.”

JULIA LOUIS-DREYFUS

HUMOR & HOPE

THE BELOVED COMEDIC ACTRESS FINDS
LAUGHTER IS THE BEST MEDICINE

Julia Louis-Dreyfus isn't joking when she says comedy saved her life. She was battling breast cancer when she read scripts for last year's final season of her acclaimed HBO political satire Veep. "It was fantastic because it kept me hopeful, and I could focus on work instead of...trying to stay alive," says Julia, 59. "You know, making a funny show is a pretty joyful undertaking. As opposed to, say, getting chemotherapy toxins in your veins."

Now she's got a clean bill of health — and a new movie, Downhill. It's a dark comedy about a couple whose bond is tested after the husband (Will Ferrell) abandons his family during an avalanche at a ski resort.

Playing a woman who faces her own mortality isn't the only way Julia drew on her life for the role. Like her character, Julia is married — to former SNL co-star Brad Hall, whom she met when they were undergraduates at Northwestern University and wed in 1987 — and has two sons. Her real-life kids (Henry, 27, and Charlie, 22) are somewhat older than the boys in the film. "I love my guys now, but I'm always nostalgic," Julia said during a recent Q&A at NYC's 92Y. "I loved being a mom to little boys."

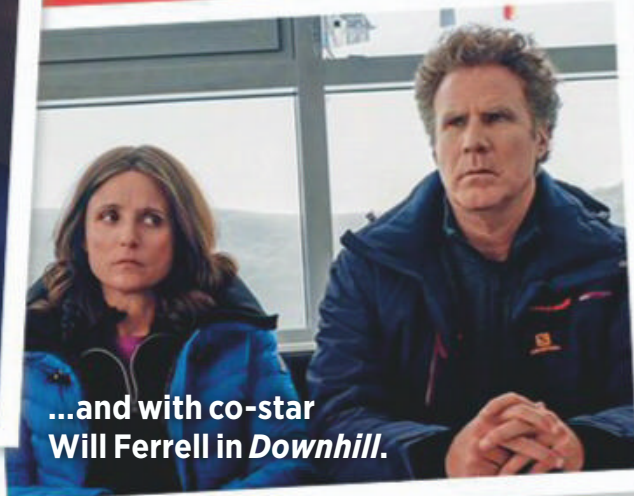

She bonded on set with Will, who's been married since 2000 and has three sons. Says Julia, "He's very devoted to his family, and so am I."

LIFE GOES ON

Having survived cancer, Julia says she's now "even more laser-focused" on the things that really matter in life. "I'm keenly aware of the fact that I'm not immortal," she says. And that's no laughing matter. — Bruce Fretts

If you are feeling exhausted and in need of revitalization, you should consider a detox or cleanse. With Active Liver™ you have the tool to do this gently and on a daily basis.

Detox your body - every day!

Each day, our liver is working hard to remove waste products and toxins from processed foods, unclean air, water and even our own body. But as we get exposed to increasingly more toxins, the liver struggles to remove them all and can start storing them in our body fat. We quickly may notice the results in our energy levels, in our lack of youthful appearance – and surprisingly, on our waistlines.

UNJUNKING YOUR BODY

A detox, like a water or juice fast, is an excellent way to rid the body of stored toxins, but it is often difficult to abide by, and involves days or even weeks of feeling tired and sick. However, there are other ways.

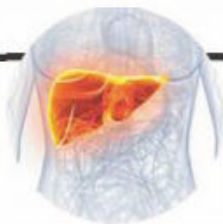

DETOX WITH ONE TABLET A DAY

Active Liver™ is a dietary supplement that helps promote a healthy liver and helps you detox on a daily basis – all year round. With just one tablet a day, it gently but effectively uses known herbal extracts to facilitate detoxing of the body – without the “side effects”.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Liver & Your Waistline

The liver is an important fat burning organ. If the liver is sluggish or clogged with waste material, it can start building up around the waistline, and even inside the internal organs (which may lead to a fatty liver). Making sure your liver is working well will help you flush fats from the body.

Does this sound like you? Then try Active Liver as a help to promote your liver health.

Active Liver™ by New Nordic contains milk thistle, an herb known for protecting the liver and reducing heavy metal toxicity. It also contains turmeric, a superfood and one of the most anti-inflammatory and protective antioxidants known. Finally, Active Liver contains globe artichoke, a plant used for centuries for increasing bile production. Bile is used to bind and flush toxins and fats from the body.

“If there was no obstacle, I would create it. I had to have an obstacle to feel like I existed.”

— Josh

1985 ON THE HUNT Josh (far left) made his film debut at 17 playing one of the treasure-hunting kids in The Goonies. It was a hit, but also his last one for a while as he transitioned into being an adult actor. “I love [the film] now, but there were the struggling career years when I hated it...a good 20 years.”

1989 GUNS ABLAZING

He'd play Wild Bill Hickok in TV's The Young Riders, but Josh had other work on his mind. “I was a volunteer firefighter back when I was doing [it]. I didn't tell them because it was totally wrong that I was actually fighting structural fires when I was working on a series. I shouldn't have been doing it, obviously, but I did it because I felt like it....The camaraderie [of it] was something that I never experienced before.”

JOSH BROLIN

MY LIFE IN

YOU MIGHT think that growing up as the son of actor James Brolin would give one an idyllic childhood, but you'd be wrong. Joshua James Brolin said he was a “neglected,” rebellious kid who joined a surfing gang, the Ciao Rats — a far cry from the innocent kids in his first hit, The Goonies. “I felt like I had to be in the epicenter of whatever was earthshaking at the time, or causing the earthquake,” he once reflected. “[But] most of those guys I grew up with, they're dead now.” Josh survived, yet struggled with his own demons, including drinking and a turbulent marriage to actress Diane Lane. But he landed an Oscar nod for 2008's Milk before becoming sober in 2013 and starring in the biggest films of his career. What changed him? Ultimately his children, Trevor and Eden (with his first wife, Alice Adair), and his baby, Westlyn (with current wife Kathryn), helped make the difference. “Having kids was the best thing that ever happened to me,” shares Josh, who turned 52 on Feb. 12. “It helped me to get over myself and made my life about something else.”

3 1996 DISASTER AREA To Josh, there's "an embarrassment" to acting. "It's [a feeling] of, I don't know if I'm good enough to live up to this, you know? And then you see a movie once in a while that you feel like you did your job and that you did justice to [the filmmaker] and you're happy. And Flirting With Disaster was probably the first film I felt that about."

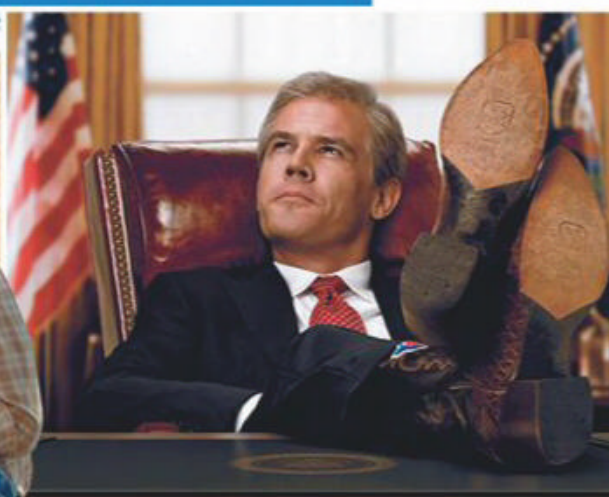

4 2003 CAPITOL IDEA

His role as a U.S. senator who turns Washington, D.C., upside down in the series Mister Sterling was short-lived, but it was "more raw and exposing than anything I've ever played," he admitted. "[The producer] said, 'The more of yourself that you put into it, the better it's going to be.'" turned his career around. But it almost didn't happen since two days after he was cast, Josh got into a motorcycle accident and snapped his collarbone in half. "The only reason I was able to do the movie is I remember [producer Ethan Coen] said to me, 'What shoulder is it?' I said, 'It's my right shoulder.' He said, '[Your character] gets shot in the right shoulder. We'll be fine.'"

6 2008 BY GEORGE When he was asked to play George W. Bush in the biopic W., "I couldn't understand it, [and] I was a little insulted." But director Oliver Stone "said, 'There's something very Americana [and] bucolic about you.' Then I read the script and thought it was amazing. Following a guy from 21 to 58 was an incredible challenge."

7 2010 TRUE LOVE "Whatever No Country did for me, this will take away," quipped Josh, about giving up his new leading-man status for a supporting role in the Coen Brothers' True Grit. "A good part is just a good part. It may not be a huge part, but it's an integral part for great filmmakers who I love — who I love as people, first and foremost, and that I love as artists, absolutely."

8 2012 TOMMY BOY Playing a younger version of Tommy Lee Jones' Agent K in Men in Black 3 "was the toughest thing I'll ever do, and I'm so happy to be able to laugh about it [now]." But at first he really didn't see the resemblance, "It's like, 'Why me?' I don't know if it's the Americana people see in [us]. Or if it's the size of our skulls, or a Cro-Magnon feeling when you look at us."

9 2018 MARVEL-OUS Taking the part of the villain Thanos in Avengers: Infinity War wasn't a problem for Josh. "I'm 50. So what's the thing, to start playing guys that are the next-door neighbor who's the grumpy old dude who's married in the rom-com, and then Jennifer Aniston goes and f---s the other guy who's cooler.... I've been offered a lot of those parts. It's not interesting to me."

10 2019 FUNNYLADY Josh found love again with his third wife, Kathryn, mom to his 1-year-old Westlyn. He's patched up differences with his dad, James, and adores stepmom Barbra Streisand. While Kathryn was pregnant, James says, Barbra would email every day, "When can I come over and feel the baby?"
