HOLDEN AXED

'Australia's Own' car to be retired as General Motors retreats from RHD markets worldwide.

After 69 years of car manufacturing and more than 100 years in the automotive industry, Holden will come to end this year.

In a press release issued on 17 February, General Motors stated that the Holden brand will be retired from the Australian and New Zealand markets by 2021. All of Holden's Australian design and engineering operations (including the Lang Lang Proving Ground) will close, with the related Maven and Holden Financial Services operations to wind down, too.

"Over recent years, as the industry underwent significant change globally and locally, we implemented a number of alternative strategies to try to sustain and improve the (Holden) business, together with the local team," said GM International Operations Senior Vice President Julian Blissett.

Most successful Holden was the HQ Series with almost half a million sales.

"After comprehensive assessment, we regret that we could not prioritize the investment required for Holden to be successful for the long term in Australia and New Zealand, over all other considerations we have globally.

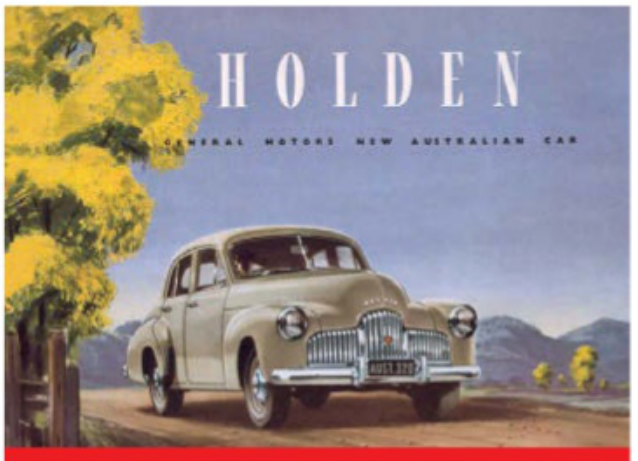

"This decision is based on global priorities and does not reflect the hard work, talent and professionalism of the Holden team."

The end of Holden will also mean the eventual closure of Holden's 200+ national dealer network, although a handful will remain in operation as GM moves to a "specialty vehicles business", offering imported and converted vehicles like the Chevrolet Silverado and Camaro, as well as the upcoming Corvette. Surviving dealerships will be rebranded, most likely as 'Chevrolet', although a generic 'General Motors' moniker may be applied to allow other GM brands (GMC, Buick, Cadillac) to be sold under the same roof.

GM Holden Interim Chairman and Managing Director Kristian Aquilina, who took over from Dave Buttner in December, acknowledged that the decision to end Holden will be felt deeply across Australia and New Zealand.

"Today's announcement will be felt deeply by the many people who love Holdens, drive Holdens and feel connected to our company which has been with us for 160 years and is almost ubiquitous in our lives.

"Unfortunately, all the hard work and talent of the Holden family, the support of our parent company GM and the passion of our loyal supporters have not been enough to overcome our challenges.

When the 48-215 was launched in 1948, Holden had been in the automotive business for more than 40 years.

"We understand the impact of this decision on our people, our customers, our dealers and our partners – and will work closely with all stakeholders to deliver a dignified and respectful transition."

GM's decision to discontinue the Holden brand entirely comes little more than two months after it was announced the Commodore and Astra would be discontinued and the local lineup would move to utes and SUVs only.

The end of Holden will see approximately 600 current staff lose their jobs, with around 200 remaining to process warranty and servicing requirements, as well as the mandated obligation to provide servicing and stock spare parts for the next 10 years.

VT Series was the most successful Commodore.

RHD EXIT

So why end Holden and why end it now? Simply put, the numbers didn't add up.

GM say they undertook a "detailed analysis of the investment required for Holden to be competitive beyond the current generation of products". Claiming the economics to support growing the brand and deliver an appropriate return didn't warrant further investment, GM also cited the "highly fragmented" right-hand drive market as being influential in the decision.

Regardless of whether it's right-hand drive or left-hand drive, the costs to develop and then produce a vehicle is about the same, but RHD counts for only a small fraction of global automobile sales, despite some high-volume markets like India and Indonesia.

GM have been withdrawing from RHD markets globally over the past few years as they focus their future efforts on North America and China.

After pulling out of the UK (and Europe entirely), South Africa and India in 2017, GM's Indonesian operations will cease in March. Despite GM still making cars in Thailand, they'll exit that market by the end of this year, too, with the plant there to be sold to Great Wall Motors.

The cull will leave Japan as the only RHD market GM will retain a presence in after 2020.

HOLDEN HISTORY

While the start of Holden as an automotive brand can be traced back to 1948, the origins of the company itself stretch back much further, specifically to 1865 when English immigrant James Holden established a saddlery business in Adelaide. In 1885, the business became Holden & Frost when Henry Frost joined as a junior partner.

By this stage, Holden had added carpentry and ironmongery services to repair and manufacture horse-drawn carriages.

The company built its first automobile body in 1905 (some sources say 1914), with 'Holden's Motor Body Builders' established in 1917 to cater for the lower tariffs that cars imported in chassis form attracted.

Holden boomed in the 1920s, but was hit hard by the Great Depression, leading to General Motors, which already had a presence in Australia, to purchase the firm in 1931, forming General Motors-Holden (GM-H).

Holden produced bodies for GM exclusively from this period, innovating with all-steel construction and enclosed coupe designs, but all these cars still bore Chevrolet, Buick, Pontiac or La Salle badges.

The first Holden-badged car was built in 1948, kicking off an era where Holden, at times, accounted for half of all the new cars sold in Australia.

In 1962, the millionth Holden, an EJ Premier, was built, by which time Holden had also started export operations, including to LHD markets.

The two-millionth Holden, an HK Brougham, was built in 1969, while an HQ Kingswood was the three-millionth Holden, built in 1974. The end of Holden's traditional large cars meant the four-millionth Holden was a VC Commodore, built in 1980.

When the last VF II Commodore rolled off the line at Elizabeth in October, 2017, a total of 7,687,675 Holden-badged vehicles had been built.

The top seller during Holden's 69-year production history was the HQ Series, accounting for 485,650 sales, while the best-selling Commodore was the VT Series with 303,895 sales.

The termination of Holden will result in a reported 600 job losses nationally by the end of the year.

WIN A TRIP TO LE MANS WITH SHANNONS

Shannons major competition for 2020 will see the winner go to the 2021 Le Mans 24 Hour Race.

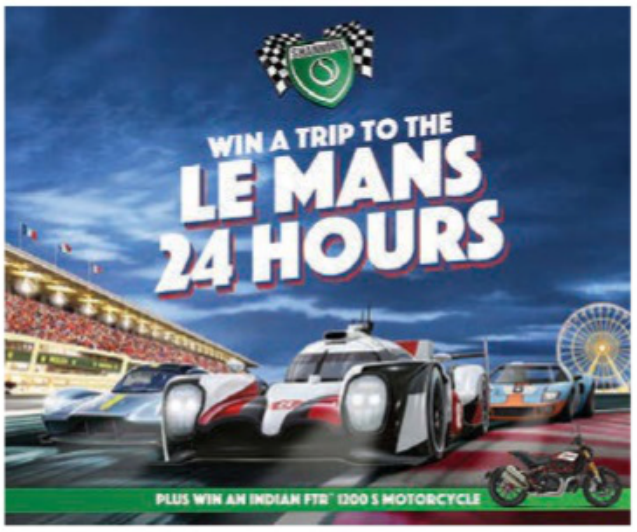

VIP entry to the world's most famous one-day endurance race will be the highlight of a 15-day trip for two that also takes in motoring museums and other attractions in France and Germany.

Scheduled for 7-23 June, 2021, the Shannons' 'Le Mans 24 Hours Competition' tour will kick off with three nights' accommodation in Paris, presenting abundant sightseeing opportunities.

Using a provided hire car, the winner and their companion will then head to Le Mans, spending three nights in the Sarthe region, taking in the famous 24-hour race that attracts more than 250,000 spectators every year. Access to an exclusive catered hospitality suite (on the Ford chicane section of the 13.6km Le Mans track) is included, along with paddock, pit lane and grid access, a shuttle bus service and special helicopter tour of the circuit.

From Le Mans, the next stop on the tour is France's Champagne region, where the winner will receive entry for two to the Musée Automobile de Reims-Champagne that houses more than 200 cars and motorcycles, followed by a day tour of Moët & Chandon, including tastings at the famous champagne brand's cellars.

Entry to the Cité de l'Automobile in Mulhouse - and its famous Schlumpf Collection of 243 cars - is next, after which the winner and their companion will head to Germany to visit the famous Mercedes-Benz and Porsche Museums in Stuttgart, followed by a passenger ride in a Mercedes-AMG GT R on the famous Nürburgring race circuit before the self-drive tour wraps up in Frankfurt.

The winner will also receive a new Indian FTR 1200 S Race Replica motorcycle, valued at $24,995, with all on-road costs covered and 12 months of Shannons Comprehensive Motorcycle Insurance Cover included.

Valued at up to $55,980, the total prize pool includes flights and airport transfers, accommodation, car hire, VIP hospitality at Le Mans, museum entry, fuel and parking allowance, plus $1,000 spending money. If you're a Shannons Club member, you'll receive $5,000 spending money.

To enter, contact Shannons for a quote on your bike, car or home and contents insurance. Every eligible quote gets you one entry in the draw. Take out a new Motor Policy on your car or motorcycle and you'll receive five entries. Take out a new Home & Contents Policy and you get ten entries. Existing Shannons Home & Contents Policy holders get ten entries in the draw.

To get a quote, call Shannons on 1800 562 268, or go to: shannons.com.au

The competition closes on 9 April, 2020, and terms and conditions do apply. See the website for further details and full terms and conditions.

NEW CHEV CORVETTE PRODUCTION BEGINS

In February, the first production example of the eighth-generation Chevrolet Corvette rolled off the line at the Bowling Green assembly plant, beginning a new era for America's sports car.

The first production Corvette with a mid-mounted engine, the 2020 Corvette Stingray is also the first that will be factory-built in right-hand drive.

The engine position may be new, but the engine itself is a familiar V8, mated to an 8-speed dual-clutch transmission.

The LT2-spec 6.2-litre V8 produces a claimed 495hp and 470lb/ft (369kW and 633Nm), making it the most powerful production Corvette Stingray engine ever.

A 0-100km/h time of 3.0 seconds, quarter mile time of 11.2 seconds and top speed of 312km/h are all achieved in standard trim. Capability and performance is enhanced with option packs, like the Z51 Performance Package, which adds a performance exhaust system, upgraded cooling system, performance suspension, an electronic LSD, larger brakes and high-performance tyres, as well as specific aerodynamic body panels.

Inside, the dash layout is inspired by fighter jets, with a race-inspired steering wheel and easy-to-reach controls greeting the driver, with more practical additions including lockable centre console storage with dual USB ports.

For a two-seat, mid-engined sports car, there's also an impressive amount of storage space, with a rear luggage well large enough to take a set of golf clubs and front storage that can hold overnight bags.

US-market examples of the MY20 Corvette will have reached dealerships by the time you read this, with Australian release expected in early 2021. US pricing starts at US$59,995 and rises to US$71,945 before things like premium paint and the various option packages are added. Australian pricing is unconfirmed, but is expected to start in excess of $100,000.

AUS ALLOCATION OF TOYOTA SUPRA INCREASED

Following the online pre-ordering and long wait times for the new Toyota GR Supra last year, Toyota Australia have announced they've secured a small number of additional stock for the local market that are going direct to dealerships.

Released in February, the new allocation will supplement the 345 examples of the Supra sold in Australia so far (to the end of January, 2020).

"Being able to import an additional allocation of cars means enthusiasts can now achieve their GR Supra dream sooner than expected," said Toyota Australia Vice President Sales and Marketing Sean Hanley.

Later this year, an updated version of the Supra will be released, with additional power and suspension improvements.

The current GR Supra produces 250kW and 500Nm from its turbocharged 3.0-litre six-cylinder engine, but the update will add an additional 35kW for 285kW max power.

The addition of a strut brace will be part of refinements in handling that will deliver what Toyota says is "even greater rigidity" and stay true to the Supra's mantra of continual evolution.

Other standard Supra features will be unchanged for the update, including the sports-tuned eight-speed automatic transmission, launch control function, active cruise control, 18-inch wheels (on the Supra GT) and an expansive suite of safety technologies that includes lane departure alert, active speed limiter, blind spot monitor, rear cross-traffic alert, a reversing camera and pre-collision warning with autonomous braking and daytime pedestrian/cyclist detection.

To this, the Supra GTS adds 19-inch wheels, head-up display, sports pedals and a premium JBL 12-speaker sound system. GTS options include Alcantara interior trim and matte grey paint.

Arrival time for the updated Supra has not been confirmed, nor has pricing, but Toyota Australia says there will be an increase over the current $84,900 starting price for the Supra GT ($94,900 for the Supra GTS). Toyota adds that the upgrade is expected to be even more limited in number than the current version.

BUGATTI LAUNCHES CLASSIC CERTIFICATION PROGRAMME

At February's Retromobile classic motorshow in Paris, Bugatti launched 'La Maison Pur Sang' – a factory programme for the certification and restoration of classic Bugatti automobiles.

The programme has been in development since last September and will be rolled out gradually, starting with certification services only. Led by Luigi Galli, specialist for Tradition and Certification at Bugatti, the team at La Maison Pur Sang ('The Thoroughbred House' in English) will determine the provenance and authenticity of individual historic Bugatti automobiles, using all available information, from historical documents and admission registers, to photos and even the comparison of certain component numbers.

Following successive stages of expansion, the restoration of historic Bugatti automobiles – from the Type 10 to the EB 110 SS - will be carried out in the future. Whether these restorations will be conducted in-house at Bugatti's Molsheim factory, at a separate facility or outsourced to specialists (like Pur Sang in Argentina who currently build accurate reproductions of classic Bugattis) is unconfirmed.

"Tradition and history are a great privilege, but also a great responsibility for us," said Stephan Winkelmann, President of Bugatti.

"We're conscious of our 110+ years of tradition and want to enable many of our historical vehicles to continue to drive perfectly on the road or to be in collections even after decades.

"With 'La Maison Pur Sang', we offer an official framework for these automotive treasures. It is very important to protect and preserve Bugatti's tradition and heritage, as well as the existing knowledge of the brand."

At the same event, Bugatti announced a loyalty programme for Veyron owners that includes warranty extension with regular maintenance at a Bugatti-approved partner. In line with the La Maison Pur Sang programme, restoration services will also be available on the Veyron in the future.

FORD PRESENTS MY20 GT

Ford have released details on their GT supercar for 2020, with key improvements by Ford Performance including upgraded engine cooling and more horsepower from the 3.5-litre EcoBoost twin-turbo V6. A new exterior finish and update on the classic Gulf Racing livery have also been introduced for 2020.

"Ford GT continues to be the pinnacle of Ford performance," said Ed Krenz, Ford Performance chief program engineer.

"GT is always the ultimate expression of Ford racing innovation, and that means constantly raising our game for our customers as well as earning the checkered flag."

Revised calibration of the EcoBoost V6 has delivered an extra 13 horsepower (9.7kW) to increase maximum power to 660hp (492kW), with a broader torque curve, too.

The gallery-cooled pistons and high-energy ignition coils from the track-only GT MkII have been fitted and new buttress air ducts added that increase air flow by 50 per cent for enhanced engine cooling, while larger intercoolers keep charge air temperatures cooler.

A titanium Akrapovic exhaust system is now standard, offering reduced weight and a deeper, more aggressive note compared to the previous factory exhaust.

Suspension damping has been stiffened in track mode, with a view to enhanced handling and body control on race circuits.

A new interpretation of the Gulf Racing Heritage livery for 2020 adds black pinstriping between the signature Gulf colours of orange and blue, while the optional race number is now a '6' – inspired by the number of the Le Mans race winner from 1968 and '69. Carbon fibre wheels are also available with this colour scheme for the first time.

The new exterior finish for 2020 is 'Liquid Carbon' - essentially the carbon fibre body devoid of paint but protected with a clearcoat finish. Optional to this are over-the-top single or dual racing stripes and painted mirror caps.

"This next chapter in the Ford GT story allows us to fully demonstrate our mastery in both the art and science of carbon fibre craftsmanship and finishing," said Angus Smith, General Manager of Multimatic Niche Vehicles, North America.

"The results of this ongoing partnership between Multimatic and Ford Performance speak for themselves, as each Liquid Carbon GT is a manufacturing marvel, showcasing the characteristics and nuances inherent in carbon fibre composites."

Carbon fibre wheels are standard equipment on the GT in Liquid Carbon, with options including titanium wheelnuts, five different brake caliper colour choices, six-point anchors for the racing seats and five different interior finishes.

As with previous iterations of the GT, the 2020 version will not be released in Australia.

TEAM SYDNEY SECURES COCA COLA BACKING

The 2020 season launch for the Virgin Australia Supercars Championship saw Team Sydney unveil their ZB Commodore racer - decked out in Coca-Cola livery reminiscent of the Wayne Gardner Racing Commodores of the 1990s.

The Coca Cola ZB Commodore is one of two Triple Eight-built customer cars that the Sydney squad will run this season. James Courtney, who announced his move from Walkinshaw Andretti United in October, will be the team's lead driver. New Zealander Chris Pither drove the other car at the pre-season BP Ultimate SuperTest at The Bend, and while it hadn't been announced at time of writing, the Kiwi will almost certainly be the team's second driver,.

The livery on the Team Sydney car at the series launch suggested Coca-Cola Amatil (CCA) are the primary sponsor of Team Sydney, and the appearance of the two cars at the SuperTest seems to confirm that this 'total coverage' livery will carry through to the season proper (after this issue went to press).

Team Sydney may be a new name, but it's essentially a rebranding of Tekno Autosports. The Jonathon Webb-run outfit is relocating from their existing base on the Gold Coast to a temporary facility within Sydney Motorsport Park (SMSP) shortly, then a permanent base at SMSP later this year.

Webb will remain as Team Principal and relocate to Sydney, with a handful of current Tekno team members expected to also make the move, but Webb stated at the season launch he was looking for Sydney-based personnel to fill a number of roles.

Established in 2011, Tekno's highlights include winning the 2016 Bathurst 1000, but success has been elusive recently, with last year's team driver Jack Le Brocq failing to achieve a single top-ten finish all season.

As with the second driver, Team Sydney's enduro pairings were also unconfirmed at time of writing. Last year, Webb drove the endurance rounds with Le Brocq, but has yet to confirm any driving duties for the 2020 season.

FORD vs HOLDEN

These two blue chip Aussie classics are going to auction through Grays Online this March.

If a picture equals a thousand words, these pictures could equal close to a million. Combined, this pair of highly sought-after Aussie classics may hit a seven-figure sum when they go to auction through Grays Online on 26 March.

In a classic 'Ford vs Holden' battle, we have a 1971 XY Falcon GT-HO Phase III in the blue corner and a 1977 LX Torana SS A9X in the red corner.

Given recent auction history, the Falcon should exceed the $500,000 mark, while the Torana is expected to reach $450,000, as it's a GMP&A lightweight A9X.

Apart from their V8-powered performance credentials, what adds to the desirability of these classics is their rarity. A total of 300 GT-HO Phase IIIs were built and only 33 A9X GMP&A Toranas.

Both these cars come from the collection of a recognised classic car enthusiast who's also a well-known identity in the GT Falcon community.

Both are in exceptional condition, too, with the Falcon a Gold Award winner at the GT Nationals and the Torana one of the cleanest A9Xs - with race history – that you're likely to see.

Ford XY Falcon GT-HO Phase III

Within the GT Falcon community, this particular vehicle is well-known, having passed through the hands of a few members of that enthusiast group in the past.

This car's ACCHS report shows it was built in May, 1971, and delivered new to Melford Ford: one of Melbourne's major Ford dealers and a dealership that sold four of these GT-HO Phase IIIs when new.

Ordered in Track Red with the standard GT-HO black vinyl interior, the original purchaser ticked only two option boxes on the order sheet – a long-range fuel tank and Superfringe deluxe push-button radio. That combination makes this car a one-of-one machine.

The car's build spec is listed in the ACCHS report, with a Ford Letter of Authenticity confirming its provenance.

Subject to a thorough nut-and-bolt restoration in 2009, this Phase III has covered 0 kms since. It's spent the past decade in the possession of two different GT enthusiasts and remains in exceptional condition.

Holden LX Torana A9X SS GMP&A

This car will be auctioned through Grays Online on 26 March.

By 1977, the Torana was already a proven racewinner - in LJ GTR XU-1 and LH L34 form - in the hands of drivers like Peter Brock, Allan Grice, Jim Richards, Colin Bond and Bob Morris, to name a few. Even Dick Johnson raced an LJ XU-1 in Group C competition before starting his long tenure with Ford.

Ford's challenge with the Falcon hardtops led to Holden counterpunching with the LX Torana SS A9X, offered in both four-door sedan and two-door hatchback form.

To the 99 factory A9X hatchbacks built for – mainly – road use, Holden produced an additional 33 GMP&A (General Motors Parts & Accessories) A9X hatches in 1977, specifically for racing and defined by a lightweight bodyshell.

Finished in Absinth Yellow, this particular A9X GMP&A was entered in the 1978 ATCC season, then took part in the Hang Ten 400 at Sandown, which was part of the CAMS 'Australian Championship of Makes' series for Group C Touring Cars that year.

One of eleven A9Xs entered at Sandown that year, this car, wearing #26 and driver by John Latham and Brian Reed, failed to finish, but Toranas filled the first five places, led by the HDT factory cars of Peter Brock and John Harvey. Jack Brabham ran an A9X four-door in that event, too.

In 1979, this car's CAMS log book records it as being driven by Ross Mathiesen at Amaroo Park, mostly likely in the Rothman's 'AMSCAR' (Amaroo Super Cars) Series that was a made-for-TV championship for Group C that ran separate to the regular ATCC season. Mathiesen's results from that event are unknown, but he would win the Australian Sports Car Championship (a Group D Production Sports category) that year in a Porsche 911 Carrera.

Surprisingly, this A9X GMP&A not only survived its racing career, but made it through with its original engine, too. The car's numbers-matching provenance is confirmed by period documentation, which includes its CAMS log book.

Shannons are offering motoring enthusiasts the chance to win a 15-day trip for two to the 2021 Le Mans 24 Hours, one of the world's oldest and most prestigious endurance car races.

Plus, travel through France and Germany visiting the famous Champagne region, unique motoring collections and the world-class Porsche and Mercedes-Benz museums. Complete the trip with an adrenalin rush - a hot lap of the legendary Nürburgring.

The winner will also receive a new Indian FTR™ 1200 S Motorcycle.

BENTLEY WINS 2020 BATHURST 12 HOUR

Team M-Sport Bentley survives challenge from McLaren, Porsche and Mercedes-AMG to secure breakthrough victory.

For the first time since the Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12-Hour was opened to GT3 cars, Bentley has won the once-around-the-clock event at Mount Panorama.

Against a high-quality field that included winning cars and drivers from previous years, Bentley won on their sixth attempt, with the #7 Team M-Sport Bentley Continental GT3, piloted by Jules Gounon (France), Maxime Soulet (Belgium) and Jordan Pepper (South Africa), holding the race lead off and on for almost seven hours. As there were up to eight cars on the lead lap at certain stages, pitstops saw the lead see-saw back and forth in the second half of the race, while a pitlane speed infringement by the leading 59Racing/EMA Racing McLaren 720S GT3 late in the race helped cement the Bentley win.

One of two Bentleys entered by Team M-Sport, the #7 car benefitted from early accidents and mechanical dramas from other entrants, including two of the three Audi Sport Team Valvoline R8 LMS GT3s, one of which crashed in the third hour with Garth Tander at the wheel, with the other out of contention after a hydraulic problem. The #7 Bentley had some luck, too, including blowing a tyre on its in-lap for a pit stop with just an hour to go.

Other early retirements included the Aston Martin Vantage of Garage 59, which completed only 37 laps before losing control at Skyline, leading to a heavy crash at the Dipper. The Wall Racing Lamborghini Huracan was out soon after with a crash at almost the same position. Two of the three MARC II Mustangs (which were in the Invitational class) also failed to finish, including the #95 car which was hampered by two separate pit lane fires.

The second Team M-Sport Bentley, the #8 car driven by Alex Buncombe, Oliver Jarvis and Sebastian Morris, was out after 225 laps with drivetrain failure.

Despite these dramas, large sections of the race were incident-free, with a 4-hour and 10-minute stint without safety car intervention the longest in the race's history. That long stint of uninterrupted racing meant this year's Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12-Hour was the longest, too, with the winning Bentley completing 314 laps.

Six other cars were on the same lap at the finish, including the Team Triple Eight #888 Mercedes-AMG GT3 that had Shane van Gisbergen and Jamie Whincup in the driver lineup, the Absolute Racing #911 Porsche GT3 R that secured fastest time in qualifying, (then pole in the Pirelli Top-10 Shootout with Matt Campbell at the wheel), and the 59 Racing/EMA Racing #60 McLaren 720S GT3 that featured Ben Barnicoat, Tom Blomqvist and Bathurst rookie Alvaro Parente.

The heavens opened just as the race was completed.

Maxime Soulet in the Bentley holds off Luca Stolz in the GruppeM Mercedes-AMG late in the race.

Last year's 12-Hour winner, Earl Bamber Motorsport (Porsche GT3 R) was in the leading pack for most of the race and was holding fifth place before the #1 Porsche lost time in the closing stages with brake problems and ultimately finished two laps down in ninth.

In the final hour, the #7 Bentley held a small margin over the field, but light rain was starting to fall and a major storm front was approaching Bathurst, which could have really impacted the race. However, in a case of timing perfection, the heavens opened just as the winning Bentley crossed the finish line.

In the Absolute Racing Porsche 911 GT3 R, Matt Campbell was fastest in qualifying, then backed up to also secure pole in the Pirelli Top-10 Shootout. The #911 car lost time following a puncture, but still managed to finish on the lead lap.

GruppeM Racing's Mercedes AMG GT3 leads the similar machine of Triple Eight Racing.

Bentley's win came in their sixth attempt at the 12 Hour that included third-place finishes in 2016 and 2017.

As well as breaking Bentley's drought and covering the greatest race distance in 12-Hour history, the #7 car set another record in winning from the lowest starting position - eleventh on the grid.

Second place went to the #60 McLaren 720S GT3, with the podium completed by the #888 Mercedes-AMG GT3, but reflecting how close the finish was, a 30-second penalty for the #999 GruppeM Racing Mercedes-AMG GT3 dropped it from second at the flag to sixth.

GT Pro entrants filled seven of the top ten places, with the best-placed of the second-tier GT Silver class being the 59 Racing #59 McLaren 720S GT3 in eighth place overall and one lap down on the winner, while the best of the GT Pro-Am entrants was the

B12 SUPPORTS BUSHFIRE RELIEF

Prior to the 2020 Liqui-Moly Bathurst 12 Hour, the Lions Club of Bathurst Macquarie launched a bushfire appeal that drew widespread support at the race.

The campaign was boosted significantly by SRO (promoters of the Intercontinental GT Challenge), who pledged to donate $5 for every race lap completed by Intercontinental GT Challenge entries. That commitment alone generated $25,200.

Motor Active (Australian distributors of Liqui-Moly) matched that donation dollar-for-dollar, taking the total to over $50,000.

The victorious Team Bentley M-Sport got into the spirit and held an impromptu auction of damaged body panels after the race that raised more than $4,000.

Finally, donations at Mount Panorama and through a GoFundMe page contributed a further $10,000 to bring the total to more than $74,000.

All money raised will go to the Australian Lions Foundation National Bushfire Appeal for distribution to bushfire-affected communities and wildlife rescue services.

Hot, dry conditions contributed to long periods without safety car intervention, including one stint of more than four hours.

Team Australia Grove Racing #4 Porsche GT3 R in tenth overall and two laps down.

The first of the Invitational MARC II Mustangs across the line was the Scandia Racing Industries #91 car that was 15th overall, while the two-way fight in GT4 went the way of the JET Battery Services #13 BMW M4 GT4 in 22nd overall and 12 laps ahead of the usedtrucks.com.au #19 Mercedes-AMG GT4.

THE START OF SOMETHING GREAT

In a private collection for many years, this significant piece of FPV history recently re-emerged and is now on the market.

PHOTOS Courtesy of Classic Motor Studio

With Ford's Australian manufacturing operations now a part of history, the interest in past Ford vehicles is growing. As evidence of that, we've seen two classic Falcons crack the million-dollar barrier at auction recently and increased demand for Aussie Fords from the 1980 and 1990s.

New millennium Fords are still a long way off the million-dollar mark, but one that has investment potential written all over it is the vehicle presented here.

It looks like a stock FPV BA GT - and for all intents and purposes, it is a stock FPV BA GT - but what makes this particular unit special is that it's the very first FPV-badged vehicle produced.

THE NEW CHALLENGER

At the risk of covering well-worn ground, the Ford Performance Vehicles brand was formed in 2002 as a joint venture between Ford Australia and Prodrive, the British motorsport and engineering company perhaps best known for their success in the World Rally Championship.

Prior to the formation of FPV, Tickford Vehicle Engineering had been producing fast Fords for the local market, both Ford-badged XR6 and XR8 models, and FTE (Ford Tickford Experience) 'T-Series' cars based on Falcons and Fairlanes. As good as the T-Series and other Tickford-enhanced cars were, they never captured enthusiasts in the same sort of numbers that HSV did.

FPV aimed to change that and would start with the re-introduction of the GT; a model that hadn't been in regular production since 1976.

Prototype is identified by this badge positioned aft of the gear shifter and some other minor changes, backed by factory documentation confirming the car's one-of-one provenance.

The GT would be FPV's entry-level model in a three-pronged attack that included an up-spec, Fairmont-based 'GT-P' and a 'Pursuit' ute. Aimed at HSV's ClubSport, ClubSport R8 and Maloo respectively, the trio carried a small price premium over their Holden-based competition, but also carried some impressive kit, led by a 5.4-litre DOHC 32-valve 'Boss 290' V8 engine.

Pipping the equivalent HSV's 260kW and 475Nm with 290kW and 520Nm, the engine was common to all three FPV variants, as was a Tremec T3650 five-speed manual transmission (a four-speed auto came soon after).

In GT spec, 100km/h could be reached in under six seconds from this drivetrain, with top speed in the region of 265km/h.

Suspension was made up of double wishbones and coil springs up front, with Control Blade IRS at the rear and thicker anti-roll bars. A front and rear body kit, big rear spoiler and 18-inch alloys were all standard.

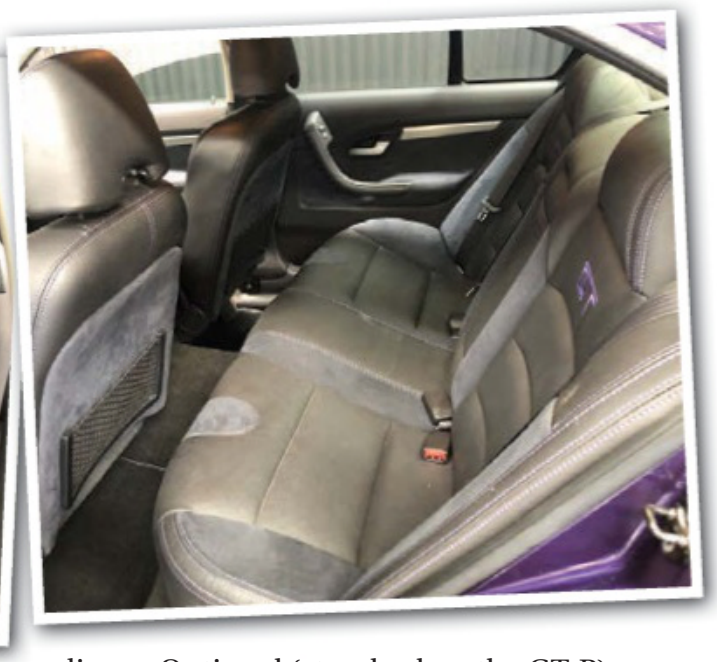

A PBR-developed braking system was standard, too, with 325mm front rotors and two-piston, FPV-badged calipers, and 303mm rear rotors with single-piston calipers. Optional (standard on the GT-P) Brembo brakes added 355mm cross-drilled front rotors and 330mm rear rotors with four-piston calipers at each end.

Running gear is the standard FPV GT combination of the 5.4-litre Boss 290 V8 and five-speed manual transmission.

Fifteen years hidden away in the possession of the first private owner fuelled speculation the car had been lost and even led to calls from magazines querying its whereabouts.

Reflecting the time of its introduction, a CD player was standard, with other features including sports seats, a power-adjustable driver's seat, remote central locking, power mirrors and windows, trip computer and an immobiliser.

Options for the GT (that were mostly standard on the GT-P) included leather seats, performance steering wheel, six-stack CD, DVD-based sat nav, power-adjustable pedals and FPV floor mats.

Also optional were the lower body stripes, even though every first-generation FPV GT you see seems to have them.

Following a preview in late 2002 and the national media launch in February, 2003, the first FPVs reached Ford dealerships a month later. All the first FPV GTs were 2003-plated vehicles. Except this one…

FIRST FPV

The car featured was the first - and only – FPV GT manufactured in 2002. Described as a prototype, this particular FPV GT was built in November of 2002 and used to promote the new Ford Performance Vehicles range ahead of the 2003 launch.

Featured in the first brochures announcing the FPV range, this car was also used in a promotional video where John Bowe put it through its paces at Ford's You Yangs proving ground. This accounted for much of the 5,800kms on the odometer when the car was sold in April, 2003.

Condition of the exterior is reflected in having covered less than 7,000kms from new.

Wheels and tyres are virtually new.

How it came into the first private owner's possession is a bit of a mystery, but like the tale of the first Mustang sold in the US, it must have been a mistake, as Ford allegedly tried to buy the car back a few months later. Realising what he had, the owner refused and it remained in his possession for the next 15 years and was even thought to be lost before it resurfaced in 2018.

It's now listed for sale with Classic Motor Studio in South Australia.

THE PROTOTYPE FEATURES

Obviously, talk of a "prototype" car conjures up images of something half-finished and covered in camouflage, like a development mule. This car, however, is identical to the production FPV BA GT in all bar a handful of minor areas. So much so that, if you weren't told it was a prototype, it's unlikely you'd pick it.

It runs the standard Boss 290 V8 and five-speed Tremec manual. It's finished in the factory colour of Phantom (purple), the exterior is stock, as is most of the interior, but reflecting this car's role as a promotional vehicle, it carries gear normally reserved for the GT's options list, like the aforementioned leather seats and orange stripes.

The first deviation from the BA GTs that

VALE ROD BARRETT

The Ford family recently lost one of their most passionate and stalwart executives in Rod Barrett, who passed away on 27 January, aged 59, following a long battle with cancer.

The boss of Ford Performance Vehicles during what was arguably its most successful and innovative period, Barrett came to the role following success as the Commercial Manager at Ford Performance Racing earlier in the decade. Prior to that, Barrett had served in a number of executive roles with companies like Coca-Cola and Fosters.

While he excelled in the corporate world, what first led Barrett into this environment was motorsport.

A keen amateur racer, Tasmanian-born Barrett was still a teenager when he journeyed to Europe in 1979 to pursue a career in motorsport. In the decade that followed, most of his racing was done in production cars, but Barrett was also involved in endurance racing, while his emerging business skills during this period saw him join the management team at the Brands Hatch circuit in the UK.

Returning to Australia in the early 1990s, Barrett was now firmly entrenched in the corporate world, but retained his passion for racing. Joining Coca-Cola, Barrett would be involved in Coke's sponsorship of both Frank Gardner's BMW 2.0-litre touring car team and Wayne Gardner's V8 Supercars outfit in the 1990s.

In March, 2005, Barrett took on the role of Commercial Manager at Ford Performance Racing, which gave the then 44-year-old a good grounding to take on his next challenge.

Following one of the management shakeups that characterised the fractious relationship between FPV's controlling partners Ford Australia and Prodrive, Barrett stepped into the General Manager's role at FPV in August, 2007.

As head of FPV, one of Barrett's first actions was to introduce the limited-edition Cobra GT, paying homage to the XC Falcon-based model that had been released almost 30 years earlier.

At the start of 2008, the FG Falcon was introduced and FPV vehicles followed suit, along with the first non-Falcon FPV offering in the turbocharged, Territory-based F6X.

An FPV GS was also introduced, reportedly on Barrett's insistence, and had he had his way, Barrett would have also introduced the ultimate FPV GT in the form of a GT-HO Phase 5.

While the Phase 5 project never became a reality, several others did, including the supercharged Miami V8 (in 2010) and GT 'Black Edition' (2011), but what was perhaps the greatest legacy of Barrett's time at FPV - the GT R-Spec – came just after his departure.

In June, 2012, another staff cull saw Barrett (who had already been diagnosed with cancer by this time) and 13 other FPV staff shown the door. Prodrive quit the partnership soon after, with all FPV operations taken in house by Ford. Two years later, FPV itself would be history, with the last vehicles produced in 2014.

Outside of the boardroom, Barrett returned to racing in various categories over the past decade, including stints in Improved Production, V8 Utes and MGs, in which he won the 2013 Victorian MG Championship in an MG ZR 190.

Barrett would also race a classic Lotus Cortina in the 2014 Phillip Island Classic and campaign the same car in the 2015 HTCAV Championship.

After FPV, Barrett joined Castrol as National Sales Manager and remained with them until declining health led to his stepping down over a year ago.

A funeral was held on 5 February in Melbourne. JUST CARS extends its sympathies to Rod Barrett's family and friends.

followed is, obviously, the 2002 compliance plate. Other variations include an ECU with hand-written details and no factory bar code. There's also a slight variation in the appearance of the gauges, but the most obvious difference is the 'P001' badge on the centre console. Why Ford would go to the effort in identifying a prototype with a professionally produced badge is unknown, but it suggests Ford had a plan for the car after its promotional duties were over (like a competition, for example) and explains why they were keen to get it back.

PRESERVED HISTORY

In the first private owner's possession, GT #P001 was given the kid glove treatment. Regularly maintained and correctly stored, the minimal use in those 15 years of ownership is reflected in only 1,000 extra kilometres being added. As such, when it first came to market after years in hiding, it was in close to new condition and still looks good today.

Now, before the skeptic in you denounces this as some sort of scam or mock-up, there is a bunch of accompanying documentation, including a certificate of authenticity from Ford and a compendium of paperwork confirming the car's provenance.

Also included are some rare FPV promotional items and accessories that were offered with the car when new, like FPV-branded luggage, mini cooler and an FPV watch. Even the Ford-branded tissues are still in place.

Matthew White from Classic Motor Studio describes the car as a significant part of Australian motoring history. This car was used as a launchpad for the FPV brand and subsequent push of FPV into V8 Supercars. For years, many Ford fans have been searching for this vehicle, and now it has resurfaced, it represents a fantastic opportunity for the astute collector to buy a one-off GT prototype in immaculate condition.

FOR SALE

Currently in stock at Classic Motor Studio in South Australia, FPV GT #P001 is a genuine piece of Australian performance car history and a true collector's item.

The asking price of $170,000 ono may seem steep now, but this car is an investment, and like the GT-HO Phase IIIs that were picked up for a song in decades past, the asking price will seem affordable when Fords of the new millennium reach the seven-figure mark.

Located in South Australia, the car carries expired Victorian registration, but its condition would make gaining an RWC and re-registration easy.

FEATURE – 1951 CADILLAC SUPERIOR HEARSE

MOURNING Glory

Bold, black and very, very big, this Cadillac hearse is nothing short of majestic.

WORDS & PHOTOS Mike Ryan

It's not often a classic hearse like this comes on the market, so when one does, it's worth a closer look. And a closer look at this particular example uncovered a lot of interesting features and an intriguing history.

There's provision for a radio behind the 'Cadillac' dash decoration, with space for the speaker below.

Nature of the hearse rear means the spare wheel is stored behind the driver's seat.

A PASSION FOR CLASSICS

The 1951 Cadillac Superior hearse presented here is not the first Cadillac owned by Les Smith, nor is it his first American classic, but it's certainly the most interesting vehicle he's owned.

That back catalogue includes a '23 Ford T-bucket, '74 Lincoln Continental MkIV, '66 Cadillac Brougham and a '61 Cadillac Fleetwood. That latter car was RHD converted from new, used by the American ambassador in Canberra and even pressed into service for US President Lyndon Johnson's visit to Australia in 1966.

The hearse is something different entirely, though, and Les originally had a unique plan for it.

"We were going to put a coffee machine in the back and take it around to shows and food truck events – and call it 'Dying for a Coffee' or something like that!"

The red tape involved in getting such a business up and running meant the idea never went ahead, but the passion for a classic hearse remained. It had to be a particular era of classic, too.

"I love the shape of the '50s hearses," Les explained. "Most later hearses are flat and square, but the '50s have character and that's what I like."

A car broker was enlisted to track down the right vehicle and initially came up with a 1972 Cadillac hearse, then a 1965 example. Les wasn't interested in either of them.

Originally built as a hearse, conversion to ambulance use in the 1960s saw a heater added to warm patients and attendants in the rear area.

Engine is the stock 331 V8 for 1951, but electrics have been upgraded to 12-volt and the wipers upgraded from vacuum operation to electric.

"When he started presenting hearses from the 1953 and 1954 era, I knew we were getting close," Les recalled. "Then this one came up."

Located in Sydney, this '51 Cadillac Superior hearse had a patchy history, but subsequent investigation by Les and this writer uncovered a more detailed picture of its background, including an interesting origin story that unites Les with this vehicle.

IN THE NAVY

As a young man, Les served in the Royal Australian Navy, and this hearse's first duty may have been with the US Navy.

Built in 1951 by Superior Coach Corporation of Lima, Ohio, it's believed the first customer for this hearse was the US Navy (USN). A subsequent owner bases this, in part, on its original paint scheme of mid-grey, which is a highly unusual colour for a hearse of this era, but common to USN shore transport, like trucks, jeeps and motorcycles. Backing this up are known cases of US Air Force hearses from the same era ordered in mid-blue and US Army examples in olive green.

While the hearse-building business was never huge, building hearses for the armed forces was a niche within a niche, making these ex-military examples even rarer.

What also makes this hearse rare is its unusual configuration – being a 'rear-loader' with dual suicide rear doors and a limousine body.

In hearse parlance, a 'limousine' usually means a vehicle with six side windows, while a 'landaulet' describes a body with blanked-off rear windows and faux landau irons.

At the time, ambulances and 'combination cars' (that could serve as both hearse and ambulance) were usually built with limousine bodies, while hearses were almost exclusively landaulets.

However, on this vehicle, despite its limousine body, it featured all the opulent interior trimmings of a hearse, including velour lining throughout that would be impractical for the sorts of spills and staining that happens in an ambulance.

This unusual combination may have been a USN request, but either way, it's believed this vehicle is one of only five of its type built by Superior on a Cadillac chassis in 1951.

While the USN connection is unproven, this hearse's subsequent history is better known. In the early 1960s, it was purchased by a fire department in Morrow County (a semi-rural area north of Columbus and less than 100km east of Lima), for ambulance use.

To convert the hearse, the fire department sent it back to Superior for fitting of a removable hospital gurney and attendant's chair, as well as a heater for the rear area and a few other extras.

Repainted red, the '51 Caddy served in the region for more than a decade, after which it was sold to a private collector, also located in Ohio, in 1973.

Whatever plans that owner had for the hearse are unknown, but it sat mostly unused and was still in ambulance-spec when he passed away in 2006.

Sold at an estate auction soon after, the hearse came into the possession of its next owner two years later, who found out most of its history, including the possible Navy connection.

Plans to part-restore and possibly even hot rod the hearse were mooted before it

Superior Cadillac

SUPERIOR STYLE

The story of Superior Coach Corporation started in 1923, building deluxe timber-framed bus bodies on Garford truck chassis. Two years later, Superior built their first hearse and ambulance bodies, using supplied Cadillac chassis.

In 1926, Studebaker decided they wanted a piece of the funeral car and ambulance market, contracting Superior to build the bodies for their chassis. This arrangement continued into the 1930s, but from 1935, Superior started marketing these creations under their own name, based on both Studebaker and Packard chassis.

In 1938, Superior introduced the industry's first all-steel hearse body and also returned to using Cadillac chassis in this year, although most of their production was now based on Pontiacs. A few Studebaker-based hearses and ambulances were still being produced at this time, but Pontiac, Cadillac and La Salle chassis would account for the bulk of production leading up to World War II.

During the war, Superior built a handful of car-based ambulances for military use, but mainly produced truck-based field ambulances and mobile workshops, as well as rocket launchers for the war effort.

Continuing with Pontiac and Cadillac-based vehicles after the war, Superior added a new line based on Chrysler/Dodge/DeSoto chassis in 1948 that included ambulances, hearses and even flower cars.

This experiment seems to have been short-lived, though, as by 1950, Superior were exclusively on Cadillac chassis again.

The year of the feature car, 1951, proved to be a banner year not just for Superior but the industry as a whole. The reason? The start of the Korean War in mid-1950 had led to a flood of orders. When the US government halted all civilian car production in February, 1942 after the country's entry into WWII, many funeral directors running old or outdated vehicles were stuck with them for the duration.

Fearing another halt in domestic production, this 'panic buying' increased sales across the industry by 40 per cent compared to 1950 figures, while Superior's sales increased by more than 23 per cent.

When no such halt in automobile production was introduced, Superior sales dropped by more than 65 per cent in 1952.

was put on the market at the start of 2009 with barely 30,000 miles on the odometer. That's where the Australian connection begins…

SHIPPED, SPRAYED, SEIZED

When posted on the US Cadillac La Salle Club forum, the hearse attracted immediate attention, not least for its remarkable 'survivor' condition, thanks to undercover storage for the past four decades.

While some of the identifying fire department signage had been removed, the red paint remained, as did the ambulance interior features. Some mechanical refurbishment was required, but the rest of the vehicle was just as Superior had built it in 1951.

Sold within weeks of its forum listing, the hearse was bought by an unknown Australian buyer and shipped here by mid-2009.

Evidence suggests the first Aussie owner was based in Queensland, as photos of it from this time carry QLD plates. A mild hot rod treatment by that owner included a full respray in satin black paint, custom exhaust, mag wheels and BF Goodrich white letter tyres. The brakes were rebuilt, linkages for the column-shift gear change refurbished and some of the side glass was replaced.

The hearse was still running its original drivetrain – a 331 V8 and 3-speed La Salle manual transmission – though, with the stock diff, drum brakes and suspension, too.

What happened next is unknown, but when Les purchased it in 2012, the hearse needed a LOT of work.

"When I got it, it wasn't running and couldn't even roll on its wheels. Those wheels weren't authentic Cadillac, either. They looked like Holden wheels, and to make them fit, someone had just cut a stud off the hub!"

Worse was to come when the engine was pulled out.

Completely seized, including one piston that was virtually welded into the head, Les was advised to replace the engine entirely, but wanted to keep his new purchase as authentic and original as possible, so went down the rebuild route instead. That meant calling on a lot of specialty businesses in Geelong (Les's home town) to handle everything from the radiator to the diff, and getting help from a few mates, too.

Some of the Cadillac-specific parts required were available within Australia, but most of the hard-to-find parts Les needed were sourced through Caddy Daddy, a US specialist that carries a remarkable inventory of Cadillac parts from 1936 to 1992 models.

To get a sense of the scale of the job involved in getting this hearse back on the road in running condition, it was more than three years after purchase that the engine was ready to be re-installed.

Other work was going on at this time, of course, including replacing the exhaust system, rebuilding the transmission, refurbishing the diff and brakes, replacing the starter motor, recoing the radiator, repairing the gauges and fitting all new hoses and rubbers throughout.

Surprisingly, the factory wiring was pretty good. Some wiring replacement was required, but not for the reasons you might think…

SEEING THE LIGHT AND ENJOYING THE RIDE

For fun and a bit of extra coin, Les plays country and western music, and uses the hearse as his "tour bus", travelling to shows and events all over country Victoria. As you'd expect, the hearse is a very practical tour vehicle, with PLENTY of room for guitars and audio gear in the back.

After the hearse had finally been restored to running condition and registered in August of 2016, Les discovered one of its factory foibles.

"I was driving to Bendigo to do a gig, the battery was going flat and the lights were so weak I couldn't see shit," Les laughed.

The culprit, as you might have guessed, was the Cadillac's factory 6-volt electrics. With more gigs and more miles planned, Les decided a 12-volt conversion was a practical upgrade, even though it deviated from stock. This was done in early 2017, with the vacuum wipers upgraded to electric operation at the same time.

Other practicalities included adding mirrors to the front wings, which were originally from a '53 Cadillac but don't look out of place. Even with these, reversing can be tricky, so Les added stick-on blind spot mirror enhancers.

New carpet was laid in the casket area, while the coffin is a good talking point – and source for many practical jokes!

Five-door rear-loader hearse on a limousine body is an unusual combination.

Superior were one of the few American coachbuilders to brand their vehicles so boldly.

Pale panel above the sliding glass window is a storage area for funeral paraphernalia like casket holders.

The hearse body means this vehicle only carries a relatively small fuel tank – not a problem for city and suburban funeral work, but more of an issue when "on tour". Les has got a pretty good handle on how long he can travel between refills, but carries a jerrycan - just in case.

Apparently, a larger fuel tank from a Statesman DeVille will fit the Cadillac, but Les is determined to keep his hearse factory, so the factory tank – and a watchful eye on the fuel gauge – remain.

"I've been taking it around to country and western shows so often now, and the vehicle's become so familiar, that people know me as 'the hearse driver'!" Les laughs.

As well as pubs, clubs and events, Les likes to entertain the residents at nursing homes and retirement villages, too. A hearse turning up at a nursing home - say what?!!!

Les laughs again as he says most people have the same reaction initially. "When I turn up in the hearse, the residents do a quick head count, thinking I'm there for a pick up!"

When Les pulls his guitar out of the coffin in the back, the residents have a good laugh themselves and get a real kick out of his visits.

While he's never had to 'multi-task' on those nursing home visits, Les has used the hearse on the occasional funeral, but only for friends and by special request.

Car show appearances over the past few years have been minimal, but Les says it always attracts attention. That attention has increased since he put it on the market last year (see breakout).

These rollers in the cabin lock the rear suicide doors in place.

Superior's premium models would all be based on Cadillac chassis after World War II.

"I get a lot of tyre kickers, but they all want to 'change' the vehicle. I'm really fussy about who I'll sell it to. It'll stay with me forever if I can't find the right buyer."

Since he got this hearse back on the road, Les has travelled just under 4,000 miles. He's had a lot of fun with it, and adding the coffin in the back has enabled him to play a bunch of practical jokes, too.

"You do kind of fall in love with cars, and I did with this one."

FOR SALE

As much as he's enjoyed this hearse, the ravages of time (Les is talking about himself, not the car!) means it's time to move it on.

Ideally, Les would like to see it returned to funeral service, in the vein of similar classic vehicles employed by some funeral homes.

Some cosmetic work would be required, but with refurbishment, particularly to the casket area, this vehicle could certainly be a popular addition to the fleet of any large funeral home.

With all the work that's been put in, mainly undoing damage done by past owners, this vehicle needs nothing if all the new owner wants to do is jump in and cruise.

Subtle upgrades, like the 12-volt conversion and electric wipers, make it more practical for modern driving, too.

On full Victorian registration (expires 08/20), a full book of receipts for past work done is available for inspection, with a rare Superior Coach Co. factory parts and service manual included in the sale.

DRIVING

Miss Lilly

After eight years of looking and six years of negotiations, this classic Cadillac hearse was meant to be.

They say there's someone out there for everyone. That applies to cars, too. From hot rods to supercars, there's a car out there for everyone. For evidence of that, look no further than the car presented here.

MIXED BAG

The vehicle collection of James and Justine Talevski may be small, but it's incredibly diverse. The couple owned a 1964 Wolseley 24/80 MkII in the past and currently have a 1975 International D 1610 truck and a '77 VW Beetle.

When you understand James and Justine are based in Clarence Town, a rural township north of Newcastle, the pair of vintage tractors in the collection makes sense. The addition of a 1964 Cadillac hearse needs some explaining, though!

"James has always wanted a hearse!" Justine laughed. "He had been looking for one for eight years."

Justine was a little frosty on the idea at first, but James was persistent. He needed to be, because it took six years before Justine finally caved in and said yes to buying one in early 2018.

"It was actually me who found this hearse – for sale online," Justine explained. "I looked at the pictures and said to James, 'If you have to have a hearse, this should be it'."

What Justine had found was a 1964 Cadillac hearse – specifically a 1964 Cadillac Superior Royale Landaulet rear-loader, to give it its full name.

Custom rego plate is an appropriate detail!

While this coffin is just for show, James and Justine have used their hearse for a few local funerals.

Tail lights and lower body panels were also stock Cadillac, cleverly grafted into the hearse or ambulance body by the coachbuilder.

Located in Victoria, the hearse looked complete and appeared to be in good condition. An initial phone call confirmed the hearse was still for sale and the seller provided James and Justine with detailed pictures that confirmed the condition. That was enough to get Justine's nod and seal the deal. Understandably, James was rapt!

"Within a week, we had organised flights from Newcastle to Melbourne - before Justine knew it, we were on a plane to buy this beautiful hearse," James recalled.

SUPERIOR STORY

One of the oldest coachbuilding firms in the US, Superior had evolved with both the automotive and funeral industries. It had managed to survive the arrival and departure of several competitors, too.

By 1964, Superior was one of only four major coachbuilding firms producing hearses and ambulances on Cadillac chassis. The others were Hess & Eisenhardt (which produced some vehicles under the S&S name), Miller-Meteor and Eureka.

There were a handful of other coachbuilding firms, like Cotner-Bevington, National, Siebert and Flxible, but these firms tended to use chassis from other manufacturers.

Superior's Cadillac-based range for 1964 was split across four series - the 'Royale,' 'Sovereign,' 'Crown Royale' and 'Crown Sovereign' - all of which were available in hearse or ambulance form. The two main series, Royale and Sovereign, were mainly defined by the upper body styling and side window treatment, while the Crown variants added an over-the-roof chrome bar (in the style of the Ford Crown Victoria sedans from a decade earlier) and a more lavish treatment to the interior.

Superior also produced a small number of 'flower cars' based on the Cadillac commercial chassis in '64. With their single cabin and long rear storage space, these look like utes at first glance, but were made specifically to carry wreaths at large funerals.

These flower cars were part of a total production of 1,223 vehicles built by Superior on Cadillac chassis in '64 – the most of any coachbuilder using Cadillac chassis that year and one of the best years in the company's history.

The Ohio-based firm also manufactured a line of ambulances and hearses based on Pontiac chassis. Naturally, these were far cheaper than the equivalent Cadillac, but were less opulent, too.

Hearse body aside, the '64 Superior that James and Justine had bought was mechanically unchanged from a Series 75 Cadillac of that year. That meant a 429 cubic-inch (7.0-litre) V8 producing 340hp (253kW) and 480lb/ft (651Nm), matched to a three-speed Turbo 400 automatic transmission and Cadillac diff, although the tailshaft was usually longer than the equivalent 9-passenger Series 75 sedan and limousine that Cadillac built in-house in small numbers.

Suspension for the Commercial Chassis was made up of the same independent coil springs at the front as the passenger cars, but with leaf springs and live axle at the rear.

While the casket area was opulently trimmed, such luxuries rarely extended to the cabin. Dedicated hearse bodies generally carried a simple bench seat and basic instrumentation, with features like air conditioning and power windows being optional. Ambulances and combination cars (vehicles that could serve as both ambulance and hearse) did tend to be fitted with a radio – or provision for a radio – to allow two-way communication equipment to be added.

A look into the interior of the Talevski Cadillac hearse shows just how spartan these vehicles were for the driver, but it's understandable, really – the focus was on the rear, not the front.

There is abundant space, though, and Justine jokingly says there's room for four – three on the front seat and one laying down in the back!

SQUIRREL PANIC

When they purchased the hearse, James and Justine were given a large quantity of information that enabled them to track almost its entire history.

When new, the Superior Royale Landaulet rear-loader was delivered to Palm Mortuary in Las Vegas. Given the name of 'Miss Lilly' by the Palm staff due to its white paint, the hearse remained in use in Nevada for more than four decades before it was consigned for sale at a funeral convention auction in 2006.

At that same auction was a hearse with a more significant history in the form of the '64 Cadillac Miller-Meteor that carried John F. Kennedy's body from Parkland Hospital in Dallas to Love Field for the flight back to Washington D.C. following his assassination.

The 'JFK hearse' has done the rounds at several auctions since, bidding as high as US$900,000 at one auction but failing to meet its reserve. A more realistic US$176,000 was achieved at a Barrett-Jackson auction in 2012.

In something of a 'Superior connection', the vehicle that received Kennedy's body at Washington was a '63 Pontiac 'Model 207' ambulance by Superior.

Sold to Ken and Karen Morgan in Western Australia in 2007, Miss Lilly's arrival in Fremantle caused no small amount of consternation for its new owners, as quarantine officials believed a tiny amount of fluff and soil on the casket rollers could be more extensive under the casket area and insisted the entire section be ripped up for inspection.

Obviously, this was no simple task, but the hearse wouldn't be released without the quarantine officers being satisfied there was no additional soil or plant matter inside. As such, the Morgans (who also own and operate a '59 Cadillac hearse) spent four hours removing the flooring and inner side panels.

Ultimately, no additional dirt or other material was discovered and the hearse was cleared. The Morgans believe the officials had been spooked by the discovery of dead squirrels (yes, really!) in the previous car they inspected and that made them super cautious with Miss Lilly.

Before it was cleared, the hearse suffered more damage while in port, including a badly-dented rear bumper, chrome damage and stripped paint, leaving the owners with a heavy - and unnecessary – repair bill.

The Morgans spent close to a year getting Miss Lilly ready for the road, including bumper repair and rechroming, rebuilding the carby for the 429 V8, fitting a new fuel tank, refurbishing the transmission, rewiring most of the electrics and a full retrim of the casket area. That left nothing to allocate to the cabin area, which needed some attention, too, but the hearse was nevertheless ready for the road by late 2008.

Driven from Beechboro to Lancelin to attend a motorcycle and hot rod show that September, the Morgans used this as a test run to find any faults before the hearse was registered. Despite poor weather on the three-hour round trip, the hearse performed faultlessly and was duly registered, used and enjoyed in WA for the next six years.

CROSS CONTINENTAL

The next chapter in Miss Lilly's story came when she was sold in 2014 to the enthusiast in Geelong, Victoria, that James and Justine ultimately bought her from.

James said the Victorian owner had used the hearse mainly as a show car, but for a few funerals, too.

The engine was rebuilt during this period and most of the suspension refurbished or replaced, too, as the weight of these vehicles tends to lead to premature suspension wear.

Overall, the hearse has been used sparingly, both here in Australia and in its original life back in the USA. When James and Justine picked it up, only 7,000 miles were on the odometer.

As purchased, the hearse was solid and reliable enough to drive home to NSW, which James and Justine duly did. Since then, Miss Lilly has been treated to new headlight assembles and a new float in the fuel tank, with a coffin added to the back for show. New air con parts are still on the to-do list, but the rough bench set was recently repaired and completely reupholstered, with 'Miss Lilly' embroidered into the uprights.

The seat has recently been rebuilt and re-upholstered.

With James a shift worker and Justine studying, the couple have had few opportunities to take Miss Lilly to car shows, but when they do, it certainly draws attention. At the 2018 Stroud Brick Throwing Show (what a name for an event!), this hearse picked up the Judge's Choice award.

It's occasionally been sought by local funeral homes for services, too.

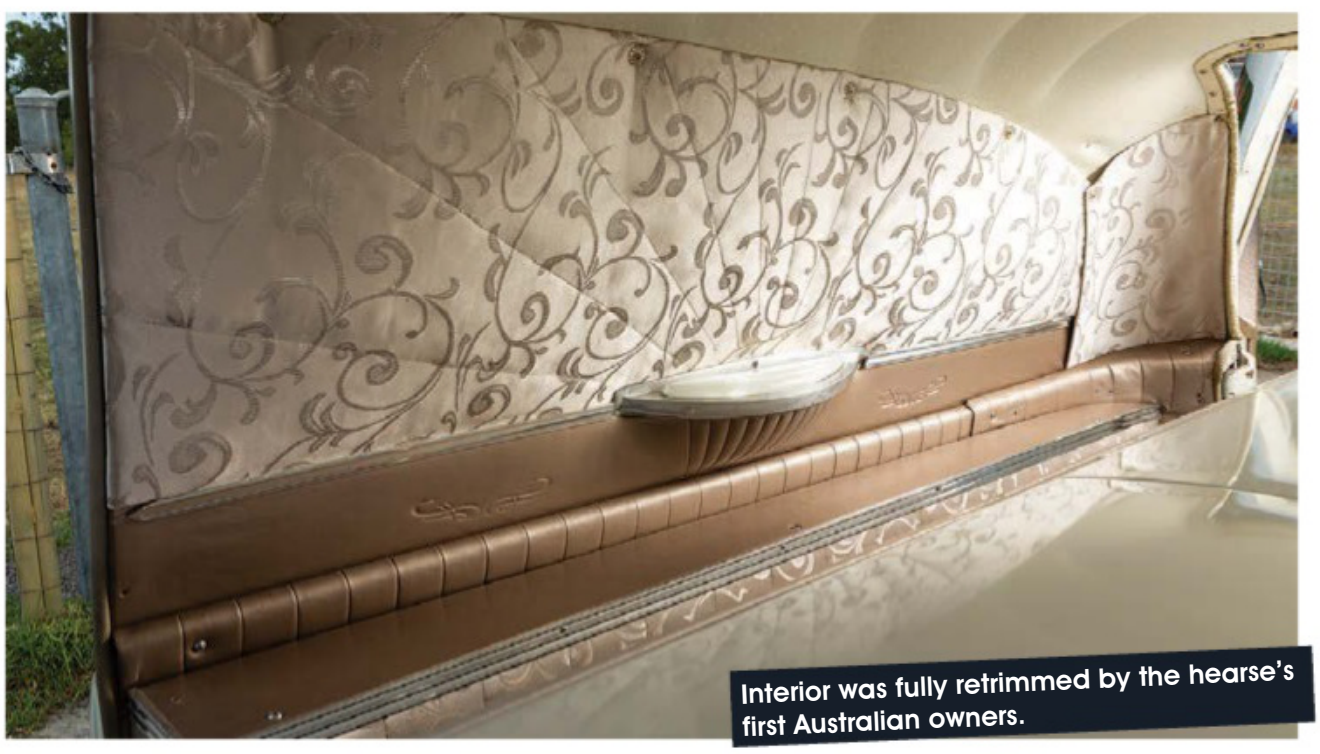

"We also have 'bookings' from some friends that are alive," Justine said. "They want to go out in style with Miss Lilly when their time comes."

MEANT TO BE

When James was asked if he'd ever sell Miss Lilly, his answer was a resounding 'no'!

"We love her uniqueness and character. She gets looks wherever she goes and is a great conversation starter."

Interior was fully retrimmed by the hearse's first Australian owners.

After initially failing to be convinced by the merits of a hearse, Justine's come around, too, and shares the story of their return trip to NSW that proved they'd made a good call in buying this hearse.

"Just after we purchased Miss Lilly and were driving out of Geelong, we stopped for lunch at a highway service station."

At 6.4 metres long and 2.3 metres wide, the hearse is far too big for a conventional car parking space, so they had to park in the truck parking area.

"When we were walking back towards the truck parking, there was a little shop selling fruit, vegetables and fresh flowers. The shop had a big sign up out the front, and what did it say? Fresh white lilies!

"We thought that was a sign we had definitely made the right decision in purchasing Miss Lilly!"

INDUCTION MAGICIAN

At Weber Performance, they not only understand carburation, they also put it to use.

WORDS Mike Ryan

PHOTOS Daniel van Stokrom (Weber Performance)

A small block Chev with a set of Webers. It's a combination that sounds as American as apple pie, right? Errr, not quite. As most enthusiasts know, the man behind the Chevrolet name, Louis Chevrolet, had Swiss-French origins, but did you know Weber carburettors have similar European beginnings?

FROM ITALY TO THE WORLD

Born of Swiss and Italian parents, Edoardo Weber was a mechanical engineering graduate who had originally worked for Fiat before founding Fabbrica Italiana Carburatori Weber after World War I. Due to post-war fuel shortages, the first Weber carburettors were actually made as part of a conversion kit for running petrol-engined trucks on kerosene.

By the mid-1920s, Weber had developed a two-stage, twin-barrel carburettor for use with supercharged Fiat engines. This design proved to be just as effective on normally-aspirated engines, too.

From there, Weber was – literally – off and racing, as Alfa Romeo and Maserati racers of the late 1920s and early '30s featured Weber sidedraft carbys. By the end of the 1930s, Weber was an OEM supplier to just about every Italian car manufacturer.

After World War II, Weber carburettors would achieve even greater success, becoming standard fitment on everything from Volkswagens to Ferraris. With the release of Weber conversion kits in the '50s, the brand went global, as car owners found that Webers not only offered more performance than their factory-fitted carburettors, but were easier to tune, too.

From their original base in Italy, Weber carbs survived the arrival of fuel injection and are still being manufactured in Spain to this day.

WEBER DOWN UNDER

Daniel van Stokrom, owner/operator of Weber Performance, knows a LOT about Weber carburettors, as he's been in the business of selling, servicing and refurbishing Weber carbies for more than a decade.

"We have the largest range of genuine Weber carburettors in Australia," Daniel says. "And we also stock service kits, replacement parts like jets, venturi and linkages, as well as adaptors, tuning tools, manifolds and more."

On the repair side, Daniel can handle the full gamut of work, from general servicing to full restorations to concours standards.

Extensive knowledge in the field has seen Daniel build up a big client base, from individual vehicle owners to workshops and specialists in the repair and restoration of classic exotic cars.

In the past, carbs and parts for the like of Aston Martins, Lamborghinis, Ferraris, Porsches and Jaguars have passed through Weber Performance's doors. It's not entirely exotics, though, as Daniel says that owners of everything from true blue Aussie Fords and Holdens, to classic Japanese sports cars and sedans can benefit from Weber induction solutions.

Owners of classic Citroens and Renaults are often surprised to find their vehicles were factory-fitted with Weber carburettors. And of course, hot rods and street machines can benefit from the Weber Performance touch, too.

"We're the only business in Australia that specialises in Weber," Daniel adds. "And that includes carbs, manifolds and related parts for not just street cars, but also full race applications."

GETTING RACY

As well as simple requirements for classic car owners, such as reducing the tuning required (for those who'd rather spend their time behind the wheel than under the bonnet!), Weber Performance can also re-jet carburettors to suit all sorts of motorsport disciplines, from classic Formula 1 and all the junior formulae (like Formula Vee and Formula Ford), to historic touring cars and even rally cars.

Daniel tests a trio of Webers on the engine out of his Group N Torana.

Naturally, the demands of motorsport are far greater than those of street cars. Daniel jokingly says that historic race car owners can be just as demanding, but he should know, because he's one of them!

As a member of the Historic Touring Car Association of Victoria for the past six years, Daniel's been able to "test what he sells" on his Group Nc '72 Torana XU-1 on some of Australia's fastest racing circuits.

"I've built up a good relationship with the historic racing fraternity and gained a lot of feedback from blokes who've been racing these cars a lot longer than I have," Daniel says. "It's been a two-way street, really, as I've also been able to introduce my customers to new and updated carburettors, manifolds and related parts that are modernised, but won't impact historic racing rules and regulations."

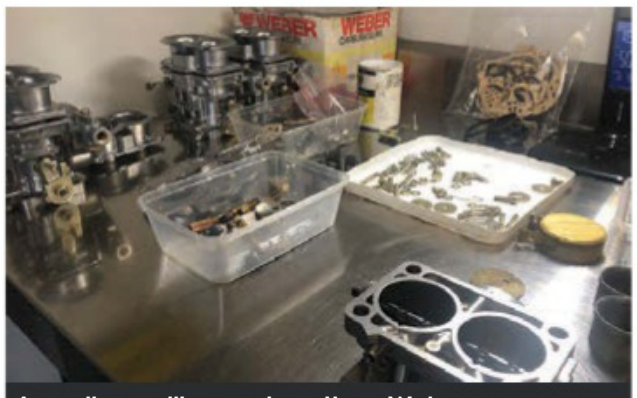

An example of this is the Lynx range of inlet manifolds, originally developed by Leon Thomas and John Bruderlin in the 1950s, that are now being continued by Weber Performance using modern casting and machining techniques. When Daniel acquired the Lynx brand back in 2015, he also gained a lot of wisdom from Bruderlin himself, so the passing of the Aussie performance pioneer last December has made the continuation of the Lynx brand all the more important.

UNDER PRESSURE

While fitting a Weber carburettor can improve performance, bolting on the carby is only part of the story.

"The right fuel pressure is critical to carburettor efficiency," Daniel explains. "A Weber carburettor – any carburettor, really - is only as good as the fuel system supplying it. The two go hand-in-glove."

To that end, Weber Performance also offer

As well as selling carburettors, Weber Performance also service them – everything from basic repairs to full rebuilds to concours spec.

Since the first units were built in the 1920s, Weber carburettors have been applied to everything from rotaries to V8s and VWs to Ferraris.

a range of fuel system parts, from hoses and fittings to gauges and fuel pumps, to ensure Weber carbs perform at their best.

"We're the Australian distributor for Malpassi fuel pressure regulators," Daniel adds. "Made in Italy, Malpassi has been around for years and are widely regarded as the best regulator for low-pressure applications."

Keeping the Italian theme going, Weber Performance also stock Dell'Orto carby and fuel system parts.

TRUST THE EXPERTS

Like auto electrics, carburation can be frustratingly complicated. Even those handy on the spanners regard carby tuning as something of a black art. So, rather than tear your hair out trying to get your carburettor performing at its best, why not get the experts to do it.

BULLDOG ATTITUDE BREEDS SUCCESS

Mark Johnson's intensity, tenacity and never-say-die attitude is reflected in the British Bulldogs he and his wife breed.

WORDS Geoff Vernon

Helping his customers and anyone else who might need a hand, it seems like Mark Johnson is everywhere at a race meeting. Tracking him down in his day-to-day life isn't so easy...

At an industrial estate in Lilydale, nestled in a row of drab concrete and glass, you'll find the home of HTCAV sponsor, MJR Motorsport. But you'll have to look carefully to spot the tiny 'MJR Motorsport' sticker on the grey plastic-covered windows of what is the "Office".

SIMPLE BEGINNINGS

Mark started MJR back in 2001, initially doing work for VHRR member Ian Ross and then Ross Jackson (both Group S cars) in a small garage with a carpet-covered dirt floor. About a year later, he decided to move into a proper garage. (The present facility is only 300 square metres, about 1,200 too small according to Mark, but it's all about economics).

Soon, Mark was fettling a go-kart for Ian's son, Fraser, who's now a race-winning McLaren pilot in the Australian GT Championship.

That was life for the next four years or so until, in 2009, Ian bought the ex-Drew Marget Mustang from Jim Richards for Fraser to drive. That gave Mark his first taste of Group N Historic Touring Cars that has grown to around ten Group N and three Group S cars, as well as a Group C and even a Formula 5000. Mark is also getting involved in MGs and other British cars, including Rover V8s.

FAMILY BUSINESS

Mark's wife Nikki runs the business side of MJR Motorsport from the family home - it's easier that way, given there's also a houseful of bulldogs to tend to.

Home is in Seville East, nestled in the Dandenong Ranges - 15 minutes from work and in desperate need of completion of the renovations Mark started but, with a thriving business, has had no time to finish. The bathroom was pulled apart nine years ago and hopefully will be done this weekend. Maybe… (hearty laughs ensue).

Mark met Nikki when she worked as a sales assistant at Repco. Married in 2007, the couple share three children: son Damien (22);

Mark's introduction to historic motorsport came with Ian Ross's Shelby GT and the ex-Jim Richards Mustang for Ian's son, Fraser.

stepson Joshua (soon 18), who now works as an apprentice at MJR Motorsport; and daughter Jade (9) who's already plotting a new name for the business when she takes over (more laughs).

TEENAGE RESPONSIBILITIES

Although he was an A-Grade student, Mark preferred the garage to the classroom. Deciding to become an A-Grade mechanic, he was apprenticed to his father at 14. By 16, Mark was also racing, putting a Mini Cooper S through its paces at hill climbs. The teenager was also pulling Minis apart to learn how the components worked.

Together, Mark and his Dad ran a towbar and towing business on the Mornington Peninsula. When Dad opened a wrecking yard, he left Mark in charge of the towbar business, selling it to him when he turned 17.

In between teaching himself all things mechanical, Mark attended trade school and eventually got his papers as a fully-fledged motor mechanic.

Father and son also worked together doing up cars at nights and on weekends to make a few extra quid (that's dollars to you young 'uns).

With that and two businesses to run, Mark still wonders where all the hours came from back then.

FUTURE GENERATIONS

Mark strongly believes in teaching today's young 'uns the "old" ways – not just pulling out an old part and replacing it with new. His penchant for seeing young mechanics right extends to a working relationship with the Wodonga Motorsport TAFE, where Mark hosts work experience students. He also provides in-house training at MJR for apprentices and currently has two on board – Mason (third year) and, of course, stepson Joshua. TAFE teachers call in regularly to assess the progress of their boys.

MAJOR MOMENTS AT MJR

In the early 2000s, Mark learnt the internals of gearboxes by pulling apart the transaxle in Ross Jackson's Pantera when no-one could be found to repair it. Mark is now known for his expertise in ZF transaxles, having repaired and rebuilt around 50 over the past 20 years.

To date, the most exotic auto Mark has fettled is a Lamborghini Countach – tuning the string of Webers by ear when all the machines in the world couldn't get it right. The owner was astounded!

Mark's shop pretty much handles it all today – chassis, suspension, brakes, engines, gearboxes, diffs and more. The only things he won't touch are panels and paint.

Mark also supports visiting historic racers and their race cars - Brabhams, Lolas, Ferraris, Lambos and Porsches - at events like the Phillip Island Classic and Historic Sandown.

Working over 50 hours a week, Mark and his team will often be found at the track, supporting customers and pitching in whenever a mechanical issue rears its ugly head.

Highlights of Mark's career so far have been:

- Fraser Ross – his career from push starting his first go-kart to where he is now.
- Ian Ross and Ross Jackson's first race wins in cars maintained by Mark.
- Darren Collins' wins in the Camaro at Sandown in 2012 – 3 races, 3 wins, pole and lap record.
- John Mann's top running finishes in his Camaro.
- And most of all, making heaps of great friends through both business and motorsport.

And the not-so highlights? While logic will tell you components will always break on race cars, particularly old ones, failures can be hard to take, no matter what causes them. Accidents are the worst, though – especially that time waiting to hear that the driver is okay when a car fails to come 'round past the start-finish line.

Mark's work in sorting the suspension on the Darren Collins Camaro brought the lap times down.

THE MJR TOUCH

If you have a problem that needs tenacity and determination to solve, or if you want more power or better handling, call in to MJR Motorsport and say hello. You might even get a lick from a British Bulldog!

Tyres wearing on the inside. What does that tell you?

1 NIKI LAUDA: HIS COMPETITION HISTORY

EVRO Publishing
evro.com.au

While the story of Niki Lauda's tumultuous 1976 F1 season has been repeated ad infinitum, the rest of his competition career has received less attention. This book documents Lauda's entire driving career, race by race, from 1968 to 1985.

Author Jon Saltinstall covers not just Lauda's Formula 1 career with Ferrari, McLaren, Brabham, March and BRM, but also his starts in other classes, including Formula 2, Formula 3, Sportscars and even a Mini.

Illustrated with 500 photos and with a foreword by John Watson, this 376-page hardcover is a detailed dissection of Lauda's 316-race career.

Available from specialist motoring booksellers, priced from $90.00 RRP (approx., depending on stockist). ISBN: 9781910505465

2 PHILIPS RCH21S RECHARGEABLE INSPECTION LAMP

Philips
philips.com.au/c-m-au/led-inspection-lamps

Philips' RCH21S cordless inspection lamp features high-quality LUXEON LEDs that provide 300 lumens of 6000K natural light over a 90-degree beam angle. A reduced-brightness 120 lumen 'eco' mode extends battery life from 3.5 to 6 hours.

The 1800 mAh lithium battery lasts five times longer than traditional batteries and can withstand 1500 charging cycles using the incl docking station.

Rubber-coated for impact resistance, the RCH21S is also resistant to oil, grease and solvents, while the built-in 360-degree swivel hook and magnet allows hands-free use.

Available from selected automotive parts outlets, priced from $130.00 RRP (approx., depending on stockist)

3 HOW TO BE AN F1 DRIVER

Blink Publishing
allenandunwin.com

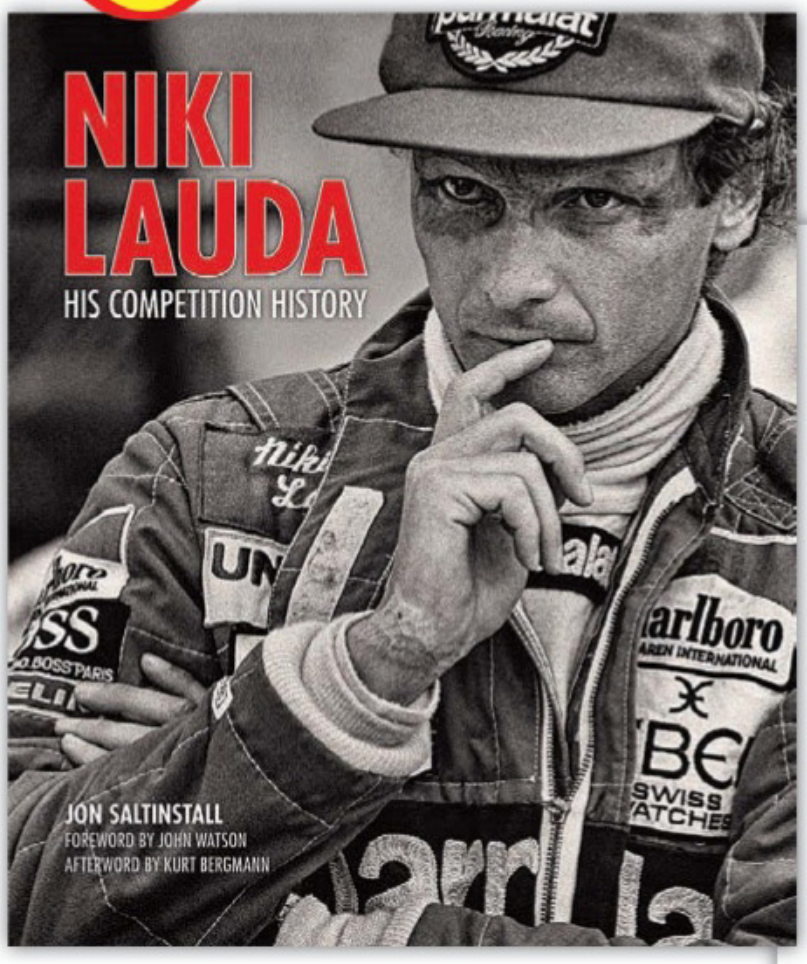

In his 17 years in Formula 1, Jenson Button learned a thing or two. He shares those learnings in this irreverent guide to what to do – and what not to do – to make it the top in Formula 1.

Subtitled My Guide to Life in the Fast Lane, Button explains why you should practise your champagne spray, how to face down your team after a major bingle and why it is never, ever a good idea to buy a yacht.

Now available in paperback from specialty motoring bookstores and selected general booksellers, priced from $29.99 RRP.

4 RECHARGE: THE ULTIMATE EV TRAVEL GUIDE FOR EUROPE

teNeues

teneues.com / peribo.com.au

Is touring Europe in a Tesla feasible? This book says it is. Authors Ralf Schwesinger and Nicole Wanner, aka 'Mr & Mrs T', started their electric driving adventure in 2018, criss-crossing Europe in a Tesla, & have continued their journey around the world.

Tailored specifically for e-travel, Recharge presents the best of the couple's eco-adventures through Europe, with information on route planning, e-mobility and the availability of charging technology.

The best hotels and accommodation recommendations are also included in this 224-page hardcover, beautifully illustrated with 223 colour photos.

Available from selected book retailers, priced from $75.00 RRP. ISBN: 9783961712328

5 FORD GT40 REPLICA NOSE PANELS

Le Mans Coupes

lemanscoupes.com

With interest in the Ford GT40 at a new high, UK company Le Mans Coupes Ltd. are now offering replica GT40 nose panels as wall art. The UK importer of Superformance GT40 replicas (as used in Ford vs Ferrari), Le Mans Coupes produce and individualise each nose panel to order.

From the familiar Gulf Racing colours, patinated with mock dirt and real oil, to other Le Mans liveries and even completely unrelated designs, each unit is painted and detailed to order by Belgian gentleman racer Jean-Denis Claessens and street artist Edmond 'Pogo' Thonnard.

Prices start at £3,000 (AU$5,750 approx.), excluding shipping.

6 THE ULTIMATE BOOK OF THE PORSCHE 356

Veloce UK

ultimate356.veloce.co.uk

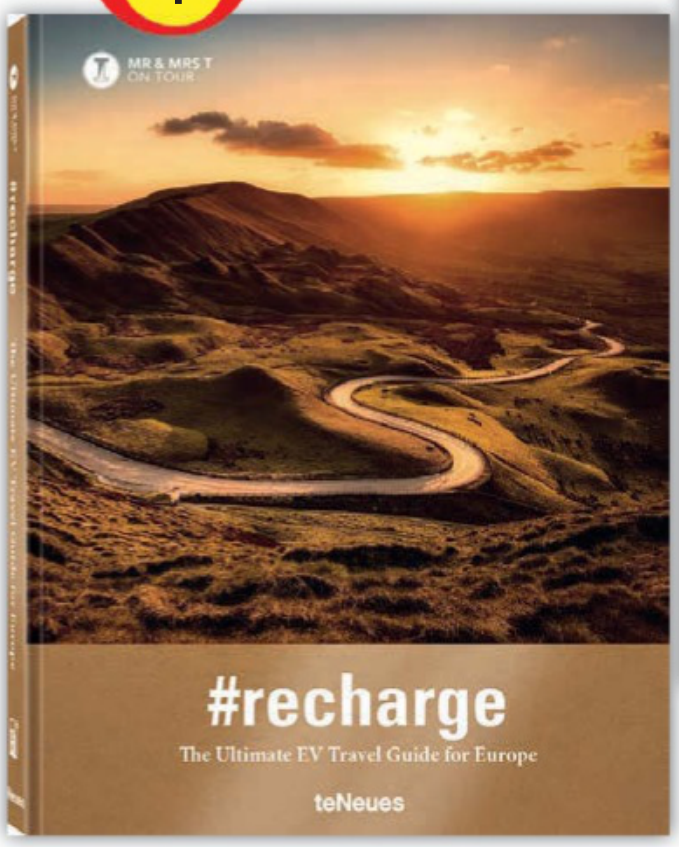

Limited to 356 copies, this book tells the Porsche 356 story in exhaustive detail.

Marque expert Brian Long provides the definitive account of all 356 models produced between 1948 and 1966, with details on production figures, colour choices and trim options, plus appendices on engine specs, chassis numbers and year-by-year range information.

Illustrated with 545 colour photos, reproductions of original literature and historical images, each 256-page book is individually-numbered, leather-bound and slip-cased. A true collector's item for early Porsche lovers.

Only available direct from Veloce Publishing in the UK. Priced from £356.00 (AU$685.00 approx.), excluding postage. ISBN: 9781787112131

Engine Overheating?
Tried Everything?
Is Rust & Calcium Scale the Cause?
This Kit Can Fix That.

Peter Maher – The Person Behind the Chemistry of Liquid Intelligence

What is the main root cause of overheating problems?

If your vehicles temperature gauge continually moves past centre whilst idling at a set of traffic lights or when driving in city traffic on hot days. Then your cooling system is probably compromised with an insulating build up of calcium and mineral scale which is preventing it from working to its full efficiency.

But even if your radiator has been cleaned or replaced because of calcium and rust deposits, the engine block and head can still be coated and compromised by those same deposits and everyone seems to forgets about that. Scale one millimetre thick on the internal walls of the water jacket can reduce cooling system heat transfer efficiency by 30% and that's where most overheating problems are originating.

How to Fix Engine Overheating

We recommend you have a look at Liquid Intelligence 239 Radiator and Block Cleaning Kit. Liquid Intelligence 239 Part A is the business end of the kit. It's a concentrated organic cleaner that is designed to dissolve and break down insulating build ups of ferrous and mineral scale. And it will do it safely without reacting with or damaging aluminium, copper, brass, solder, cast iron, zinc alloys or any other component found in a cooling system.

LIQUID INTELLIGENCE 239 KIT COOLING SYSTEM CLEANER

- ✓ Completely Dissolves Rust & Calcium Scale
- ✓ Strong, Non Corrosive Safe Organic Formula
- ✓ Australian Made 100% Guaranteed

The Part B is also an important part of the cleaning process. It's a strong neutralized alkaline soap based cleaner that flushes the cooling system of impurities and waste materials and prepares it for the coolant to be then added.

How Can You Purchase the Liquid Intelligence 239 Kit?

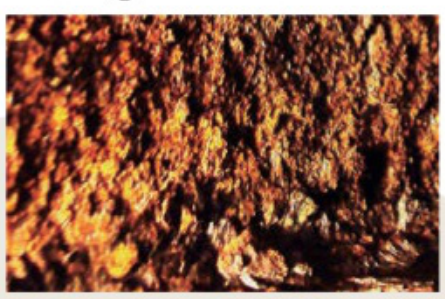

We only sell directly to end users and mechanics and not through part shop retailers or distributors.

So, you can only purchase Liquid Intelligence products over the phone using a credit card or off our website using PayPal. We deliver them directly to your door using TNT or Australia Post.

Our Technical Support is Available 7 Days a Week

If you would like to have a chat about the technical and practical aspects of using the Liquid Intelligence 239 kit in your vehicle please give us a call. You will get personal service from one of our qualified technical staff. We are available on 1800 441 163 or +61 2 81882060 from 7am to 7pm seven days a week.

Engine Block & Radiator BEFORE Liquid Intelligence 239

The image taken with a fibre optic camera shows deep rust and calcium deposits in the water jacket and radiator of an older vehicle. These deposits can decrease cooling system efficiency and cause engine overheating.

Engine Block & Radiator AFTER Liquid Intelligence 239

Liquid Intelligence 239 dissolved the insulating layer of rust scale back to bare metal...allowing heat to pass unimpeded to the coolant..fixing the overheating problem.

You can call Peter for a chat about product and application information or simply to purchase Liquid Intelligence 7am to 7pm seven days a week

HERITAGE Holden COLLECTION

™ General Motors LLC

Genuine LICENSED PRODUCT

Over 70 years ago, Holden's 48-215 was launched to an ecstatic Australian public. More than 70 years later, Holden remains Australia's favourite car. Now, you can celebrate our beloved icon with the "Holden 70th Anniversary Watch" which takes you into the next 70 years in gleaming style!

The watch case is plated in shimmering gold enhancing its strength and making it shine with a pride that Holden drivers know well. The watch face features a Holden logo with "70" making a heartfelt statement of the enduring bond Holden has with Australia. Three chronographic sub dials give you accuracy as well as a handy stopwatch function. A wealth of Holden icons are engraved through the design including "She's a Beauty!" Prime Minister Ben Chifley's affirmation of the 48-215 which has been voiced by Australians in every successive generation of Holdens. Your watch's individual issue number is engraved on the back. It's a hallmark that assures your watch is an official part of an edition which celebrates the greatest name in motoring!

Don't Pay Thousands To Have Oil Leaks Fixed. Do This Instead.

This oil leak repair will safely fix leaking seals for years & prevent other seals from leaking.

Peter Maher – The Man Behind the Chemistry of Liquid Intelligence

How the Synthetic Nano Chemistry of Liquid Intelligence 230 Works.

The superior professional strength concentration and unique chemistry of Liquid Intelligence 230 have all the properties required to rapidly rejuvenate and increase the life expectancy of automotive seals and gaskets. The Liquid Intelligence 230 Synthetic Nano Chemistry uses engine heat to thermally induce the deep absorption of active ingredients into dry hard leaking seal. This key infusion treatment dramatically stops and prevents seals from leaking for years. Liquid Intelligence 230 will rejuvenate all the known rubber gaskets and seals that have been used in automotive applications since the late 50's…..And if the seals are not mechanically unsound but just dried and hard and a little worn, then there is every chance it will eliminate a leak.

Why Seals Leak?

Eventually all cars develop them. Over time and accelerated by heat, seal materials lose their plasticizers. These plasticizer chemicals give the seals flexibility, memory and volume. Once these substances start to deplete they cause the seal to shrink, deform and go hard which is generally the recipe for most oil leaks. All oil seals and gaskets in engines, transmissions, power steering units and differentials are subject to this type of deterioration. If you have a leak, investigate using Liquid Intelligence 230 Stop Leak Seal Expander….Because the experts at NRMA tell us that the average oil leak seal replacement costs between $900 and $3500 depending on make and model.

LIQUID INTELLIGENCE 230 "I GUARANTEE IT WILL WORK"

✓ Safely Fixes Dry Leaking Oil Seals & Gaskets For Years.

✓ This Is The Strongest Oil Leak Fix You Can Get.

✓ Made in AUSTRALIA & Comes With My Money Back Guarantee.

How Can You Purchase Liquid Intelligence 230?

We decided years ago that we would only sell directly to end users and mechanics and not through part shop retailers or distributors.
So you can only purchase Liquid Intelligence products over the phone using a credit card or off our website using PayPal. We deliver them directly to your door using TNT or Australia Post.

Our Technical Support Available Seven Days A Week.

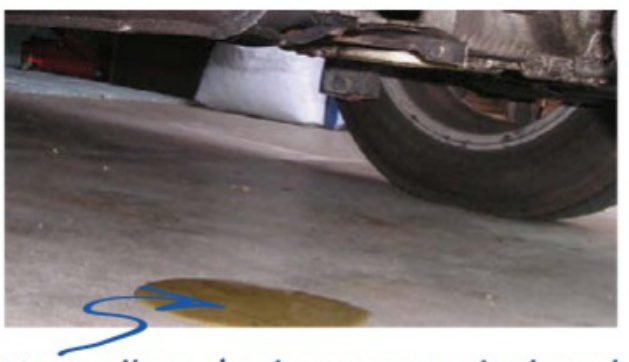

If you would like to have a chat about the technical and practical aspects of using the Liquid Intelligence 230 in your vehicle please give us a call. You will get personal service from one of our qualified technical staff, some of which have more than 40 years' experience in the industry. We are available on 1800 441 163 or +61 2 81882060 from 7am to 7pm seven days a week.

I'm confident that Liquid Intelligence 230 will work regardless of seal construction or material if the seals integrity is undamaged.

Often these leaks go unchecked as the cost of replacing them is too high or you decide to "live with it".

Normally a broken or cracked seal will leak profusely whilst a worn, hardened or dried seal will just leave irritating puddles of oil under the vehicle each day.

You can call Peter for a chat about product and application information or simply to purchase Liquid Intelligence 7am to 7pm seven days a week

KRYPTONITE

HOLDEN: SSX

The SSX could possibly be another example of an opportunity missed by Holden. Or possibly the ideas expressed in the SSX were judged as being before their time. You choose. Holden described it as "Our vision of the future" and "The ultimate expression of Holden performance in a niche vehicle."

Painted a stunning "Kryptonite" metallic green colour, the VY-based Commodore SSX stunned the crowds at the 2002 Sydney Motor Show. By making it a hatchback rather than a station wagon gave the rear of the car a certain style that complemented the rest of the car perfectly. Actually, it was not a true hatchback because the rear tailgate was in two parts–a lift-up upper section and a fold-down lower section, plus with the back seats folded down it gave a floor space that was around 2-meters in length, all useable. The styling was the work of Max Wolff, Mike Simcoe's protégé.

Not only did the SSX (SS + Crossover) feature versatility but it also previewed an All-Wheel Drive (AWD) system developed by Holden that would later appear under the Adventra station wagon, the first all-Australian all-wheel drive passenger car joining the ranks of Subaru and Audi, as well as the future Cross8 and the now hugely collectable HSV Coupe4. The SSX sat on huge 245/35ZR19 tyres that required the wheel housings to be flared to accommodate them.

The rest of the SSX's technical specifications mirrored the production VY Commodore; power came from the Gen III 5.7-litre V8 engine developing 235kW and 465Nm and was mated to a four-speed automatic with 355mm Harrop-made ventilated disc brakes along with ABS and traction control; the AWD system had a torque split of 45/55 front-to-rear.

It was the undoubted star of the 02 Sydney show but what happened from there? There was talk of the SSX being available off Holden showroom floors within 2 years following a period of diligence where numbers of around 7000 units a year were openly discussed. To achieve that volume, on top of existing Commodore volume, would have required expanding the company's export program. While the prototype had an automatic gearbox if production had eventuated the company's 3.6-litre V6 would have been an option plus maybe a manual gearbox, too.

Obviously the numbers did not stack up because after the sales and marketing folks had done their research everything went very quiet. Wheels magazine in particular pleaded with Holden to put the SSX into production and the huge dealer network, too, was keen but not as keen as when the Monaro was displayed a few years previously. Maybe in there somewhere is the reason the SSX never set foot onto a Holden showroom floor. Only one example was ever built and it is on display at the National Motor Museum.

Brad Keillor reviewed Fuel Doctors - 5★
15 March at 16:21
Ford Australia could not fix the ticking noise in my 2016 XLT ranger have been putting up with noise for 30k km and has been to ford dealer 5 times and has not been fixed. I have used fuel doctor for 3 tanks with initial heavy dose and the ticking has gone completely gone. Highly rate this product I now enjoy driving my Ranger again.

optimum combustion maximum power
fuel doctor®

Fuel Doctor is multi faceted. Lubricity is one of those facets, by increasing your fuel's lubricity you have decreased the metal to metal contact that was making the noise

1988 CHEVROLET C1500 SILVERADO STEPSIDE 350 T700 LHD Clean northern California pickup, no rust issues faded peeling factory blue paintwork. Very clean glass chrome and stainless. Factory blue trim in very nice shape needing only a drivers' arm rest. Motor looks to have been changed out to a GM goodwrench at some stage the truck runs very well, all new brakes fitted and trans shifts nicely, the truck drives down the road without any squeaks or rattles. Fully optioned truck with AC, elec windows, cruise control and tub liner. Will make a great cruiser these 88 up stepsides are getting very hard to located in decent shape. IN STOCK. SN# S1274 PRICED AT $11,250

1966 CHEVROLET CAPRICE 4 DOOR HARD TOP WAS 396 AUTO LHD. Super dry Chevy from Redding Northern California, straight clean body minor damage on RH rear quarter panel. Original paintwork faded and browned off over the last 40 years surface rust only in the boot floor the rest of the car in incredibly well preserved, the vinyl top is all but gone but there are no rust issues. Very good glass chrome and stainless. The factory black trim is sun burnt but can be saved for the most part dash is original and uncut right down to the Am radio. The 396 and T400 is long gone. This car is begging for a coat of clear to preserve what has taken mother nature 40 year to perfect. With and power plant and some TLC, this will make a stand out of the normal cruiser. IN STOCK. SN#S1198 PRICED AT $12,950

1967 FORD FAIRLANE 500 2 DOOR FASTBACK 289 /AUTO LHD. Decent dead stock Fairlane paint work is faded, blotchy and has chips and scratches though it, presents well from 10 feet away. Good clean body has had some floor pan work previously. Glass and chrome are good with the exception of the bumpers where the chrome is average. Interior is very clean and original, new carpets, some damage to passenger seat back fabric and crash pad is cracked around speaker. Dash is all original right down to the factory AM radio with GT style steering wheel. The little Windsor 289 fires right up has a nice deep twin exhaust rumble the car drives, steers and stops very well. By no means a show stopper however will make a very nice survivor driver IN STOCK. SN#S1340 PRICED AT $22,750

1978 CHEVROLET CORVETTE 350 AUTO LHD. Dry clean northern California Vette, faded and peeling Black paintwork - not the original colour, decent clean straight body with small damage to lower edge of RH guard at rear, good front and rear bumper covers. Decent factory clean trim that will need a good tidy up, console side carpets and new T Top underside covers. The drive line on this car has been completely update, the previous owner fitted a new complete GM late model crate motor and trans. The car has had brake and suspension work. This is a very dry clean unbutchered basic project car with a lot of the hard work done. IN STOCK SN#S1351 PRICED AT $15,950

1988 CHEVROLET C3500 EXTRA CAB DUALLY 454 / AUTO LHD. Dry northern California truck faded white paintwork not the original colour no rust issues, some cracking on the rear dually guards. Decent glass chrome and stainless. leather trim in need of seat repairs to the front seats and a good detail, 454 / T400 the truck starts runs, steers and drives very well. Will need Compliance, basic roadworthy items and some TLC to be a very nice tow car. IN STOCK. SN#S1251-2 PRICED AT $13,950

1965 CHEVROLET C20 327 4 SPEED MANUAL LHD. Decent old truck, some minor panel rust, issues in sills and floors, painted in black primer was a Harley Davidson dealer shop truck for bike deliveries. 327 4 speed truck no brakes or clutch and present Cool old truck right down to the Gun rack in the back window. good honest project truck. IN STOCK. SN#S1272 PRICED AT $11,950

1968 CHEVROLET CORVETTE ROADSTER HARD AND SOFT TOP 327 4 SPEED MANUAL PROJECT LHD. Dry northern California project Corvette, decent dry body with minor damage to RH head light area, faded peeling blue paint work and very tasteful 1980s fender flares. Clean dry straight chassis with no signs of damage or rust. Factory black trim in fair and useable condition with some seat repairs and carpets. Hard and soft top in tact. 327 4 speed car condition of motor not known at present but I would say bank on being a rebuild. New rally wheels and BF tyres. Chrome on the rear bumpers is poor. This is a very good resto base 68 Roadster and there not getting any easier to locate . IN STOCK. SN#S1240 PRICED AT $24,750

1965 FORD MUSTANG C CODE V8 COUPE 289 AUTO LHD Decent stock C code Mustang faded paintwork some minor panel rust in doors and lower quarters the rest of the body is clean and straight. Factory black pony trim needing carpets, rear parcel tray cover and minor seat repairs. Very strong crisp and sharp little 289 with new dual exhaust. Cars runs and drives well. Car has new brakes all round, new exhaust, new tyres and new fuel tank and sender. This is a great easy resto basic project a blank canvas to paint whatever colour you desire. IN STOCK. 2005 CHEVROLET SILVERADO LT 4 DOOR CREW CAB C1500. 5.3 LS AUTO RHD VIC REG DUAL FUEL INJECTED LPG. My personal truck very clean condition decent black paintwork with the minor marks and scratches. Full leather trim in very good shape mirror RHD Conversion steers and drives well. Sat nav DVD screen and reverse camera. Head rest mounted DVD system. Hard lid and tow bar, 5.3 Cast iron block LS with L 460E trans, fitted with sequential LPG injection gas system. Starts and runs on petrol until operating temperature is reached then switches instantly to LPG. Very economical to run. Factory 2018 18inch Silverado wheels with near new tyres. 228000 KMS. Selling as not being used travelled under 2000 Kms in the last 12 months. IN STOCK. SN#AME913 PRICED AT $44,750

1975 CHEVROLET C10 SHORT BED FLEETSIDE 350 -T350 LHD. Fair condition old truck rust issues in lower doors, sills and lower section of rear tub, faded Maroon paint work not original colour. Tub has dents and scratches. We can supply good clean doors at an additional cost. Decent usable glass, chrome and stainless. Factory trim in use able condition will need carpets and a clean up. 350 -T350 motor fires right up sounds strong truck drives steers and stops well. While there are some panel rust issues and there may be a few more unseen under the paint it is a Short bed fleetside and even with its panel rust issues would be a $4/5 K USD truck in the USA today and would owe well over the Asking price by the time it landed here. IN STOCK. SN#S1234 PRICED AT $11,950

1966 FORD THUNDERBIRD LANDAU 390 AUTO LHD SURVIVOR. Very clean unmolested T-bird off the road since the early 80s. Original faded copper bronze paint work, small damage to RH front guard the rest of the car is very straight with no rust issues we have seen. The door close as they would have in 1966. Vinal top US but no rust damage under the top. Exceptional factory off white trim, head lining starting to sag and small damage to drivers door trim. The glass Chrome and stainless is in very, very good shape. The Motor fires straight up new brakes and tyres all round. The old girl drives very well . She still needs a little TLC to go on the road however a super clean time capsule. IN STOCK. SN#S1241 PRICED AT $14,750

1974 CHEVROLET C10 STEPSIDE 6.0 LS AUTO LHD Super dry sun-burnt northern California C10, factory black truck the paint is burnt off any were that points up. Showing some old repairs on the Lh front guard, surface rust but not a rusty truck, needs to be sealed up to stop the surface rust advancing any further. Very clean black trim, new carpets, tilt column, working Dakota digital dash. Decent use able glass chrome and stainless. 17 inch centre-line billet wheels. Nicely fitted 6.0 Cast block allow head 6.0 Litre LS and Auto. The truck drives very, very well. You can drive this truck around like Miss Daisy it idles along smoothly with just a nice burble. Or you can scare the pants of your passenger and yourself in seconds (so I'm told). This is one cool blank canvas needs a little TLC to be great. I don't think you could put this truck together or bring it in from the USA today for the asking price IN STOCK. SN#S1391 PRICED AT $24,950

Our main aim is to enjoy taking our vehicles out for a run and displaying them whenever possible at other Club's shows. The main revenue raiser for the Club is the annual 'Show N Shine' in March at the Finley showgrounds. Meetings are on the 3rrd Wednesday of each month, except December, in the Flnley RSC beginning at 7-30pm, Members and Guests most welcome. SRVMC is part of the NSW Logbook Scheme. If you are looking for a friendly Club, we are the one so check us out. A Club newsletter is printed and sent out monthly to keep Members informed. 44 Davis St, Berrigan, NSW, 2712 0458 218 720, darrylculhane444@gmail.com

AUSTRALIAN LANCIA REGISTER The Australian Lancia Register is dedicated to tracking and helping to ensure the preservation of one of the most important automobile marques of all time. The Australian Lancia Register was formed without any formalities in 1970, in preparation for celebrations of the Lambda's 50th Birthday. The Lambda is particularly significant in the Australian Lancia scene with some 450 being sold new in the country, of which well over 100 survive today. The Register's major event is the biennial Castlemaine Rally, held in October of the odd years. This event attracts well over 100 Lancias with most models from the Kappa through to the Thema being represented. In addition to running the Castlemaine rallies, the Register publishes a Newsletter five or six times a year. We do not hold monthly meetings because our membership of about 250 is scattered across a country about the size of central Europe. Instead, members keep in touch through informal local networks, state clubs in Queensland and New South Wales, or with distant members with similar models. We also have some 30 overseas members. Events throughout the year published in the newsletter, AGM first Sunday in December. Contact Treasurer Michael Southgate 0405 452 500 or email treasurer@alr.org.au Website: www.facebook.comAustralianLanciaRegister PO Box 463, East Melbourne, VIC, 3002
